FOR CONGRESS: Sixth District—ALFRED ROWLAND, of Robeson OUTLINES.

The editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer gave bond to appear before the U. S. Court in Georgia and answer an indictment for sending an obscene letter through the mails.

There will be no "wab" with Mexico.

Mrs. Cleveland has just celebrated her twenty-second birthday.

A pamphlet sharply ridiculing the Panama Canal scheme has appeared.

Cyrus Field obtained $25,000 damages of James Gordon Bennett in the libel suit. Perhaps Cyrus fields better.

The death rate by cholera in Japan is much less than the death rate in Savannah and Charleston among the negroes.

The crop reports from most sections of South Carolina are unfavorable. Improvement is reported all over the State.

The stories of the Pinkerton detectives among the Chicago Anarchists continue to be startling. The whole tribe ought to be swung up.

Mr. Garland does not read the New York papers. He does not know then how much crime, villainy, uncleanness and rascality there are in the world.

Why Virginia does not go Republican always is a wonder. We suppose that at least half of the Democratic papers of that State hold Republican views on the Tariff.

Mr. Gladstone is going on a yachting cruise as soon as he is released from office. He needs rest and recreation. May the elements be propitious and a benignant Providence smile upon him!

Mr. R. W. Knight, a young man of Rockingham, and local editor of our excellent and esteemed contemporary, the Rocket, has published an entertaining short story in the Arkansas Traveller entitled "A Revolver's Masquerade." It does credit to the young scribe. He should cultivate sedulously his true vein.

The extradition treaty with Great Britain was a terrible blow to the American thieves that had located in the Dominion. Wilson's lines on Paul Hayne were very tame. We did not see them. We have seen no lines in memory of the dead singer that did not fall far below the theme. There are not many genuine poets in the South and they are silent, we may suppose.

Edison is still busy at work. His latest idea is to utilize the earth's currents in place of telegraph wires. In a recent interview he said: "I am simply trying to cheapen the electric lamps and the carbons. I have had men almost all over the United States and South America looking for a vegetable or mineral substance from which carbon points might be made."

Raleigh News-Observer: Mr. David B. Ayers, who has been in Johnston county some days, says the crops do not as a rule compare with those in Wake. There is in Johnston, he thinks, about half a crop of cotton. The corn crop is not in as bad condition as the cotton, but is yet poor.

Rice Birds and their Ravages. In a work published by the Department of Agriculture in relation to birds and the crops, some interesting facts are given in regard to rice birds, whose depredations it seems entail an enormous loss on rice planters. Capt. Hazood, of South Carolina, one of the largest rice growers in the South, in describing the ravages of these birds says:

COTTON-BELL FULLETER. The following table shows the average maximum and minimum temperature, and average amount of rainfall, at the districts named. Each district includes from ten to twenty stations of observation, and the figures given below are the mean values of all reports sent to each center of district. Observations taken daily at 6 P. M., 75th meridian time.

Table with columns: Districts, Max. Temp., Min. Temp., Rain Fall. Rows include Wilmington, Charleston, Augusta, Savannah, Atlanta, Montgomery, Mobile, New Orleans, Galveston, Vicksburg, Little Rock, Memphis.

Weather Indications. The following are the indications for today: For North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama, fair weather, except on the coast, local rains, variable winds generally southerly and stationary temperature.

Personal. Many of the older citizens of Wilmington had the pleasure of greeting on the streets yesterday Gen. Wm. Wallace Harlee, of South Carolina. A friend tells us that Gen. Harlee was the first President of the Wilmington & Manchester Railroad—now the W. C. & A. R. R.—and did more than any other man in the country to assist that great project; and that the greatest internal improvement ever made in this city was by him in Masonic Hall, in furtherance of the enterprise.

RIVER AND MARINE. The river at Fayetteville continues to fall, but there is yet five feet of water on the shoals.

The new steamboat Cape Fear, under the command of Capt. T. J. Green, will start on her first trip to Fayetteville to day. The new boat takes the place of the steamer Bladen, destroyed in the great fire in February last. She is a light draft boat, about the size of the Bladen, and has accommodations for about twenty first class passengers. The Cape Fear was built at Capt. Skinner's ship-yard in this city.

IN THE LAND OF THE ALEUTS. Something About the People and Climate—Twenty Hours of Daylight—The Fauna and Flora of the Islands—The Value and Extent of the Seal Fisheries, &c.

Several weeks since we published a letter from Lieut. John U. Rhodes, in which it was stated that he would soon go on a cruise to the Seal Islands, away up among the Polar regions. We now have the following letter from the gallant Lieutenant, furnishing many interesting particulars concerning the country where the gay and festive seal doth most abound:

U. S. REVENUE STEAMER CORWIN. ONVALASKA, Aleutian Islands, June 23, '86. DEAR STAR:—Having an opportunity to write, which is something unusual for this place, I send you herewith a few rambling notes, which I hope will not prove uninteresting to your readers and to many of my old friends.

We left Astoria on the evening of the 10th, after a rough and stormy passage. Onvalaska (one of the Aleutian Islands) is in the Behring's Sea, latitude 54.09 N., longitude 166.08 W. The population consists of about two hundred and fifty Indians (Aleuts), when the hunters are at home. There are six white people on the island. The natives obtain their living by hunting seal and fishing, and are a peaceable race.

We leave on Saturday for the Seal Islands, which are about three miles from here. We shall cruise around the islands until September, when we shall go down to Alton Island, eight hundred miles in east longitude. Then, on our way home, we will stop at Kodiak, Urangal, Sitka and Belkofsky, the latter a Russian settlement, and then work down towards Astoria, arriving there about the first or middle of October.

This is the farthest north I have ever been. The climate so far about the same as Wilmington in the winter. As we go farther north of course it grows colder. We have twenty hours of daylight, and soon we shall have all daylight.

We are going to have a ball to-night, if the girls get through wheeling coal in time. There are some very pretty girls here, but they will not talk English, although most of them understand the language and can write it.

The Alaska Commercial Company employ most of the population. The company have steamers collecting the seal for transportation to San Francisco, and from there they are sent to England to be cured. The company pay the government $350,000 a year for the privilege of catching the seal, and they are permitted to kill only one hundred thousand each year.

We are here to prevent the seal pirates from carrying on their work, and to prevent whalers and others from selling or furnishing whaling to the Indians.

But I must close, as the mail steamer soon sails. This will be the only opportunity I shall have to write.

Yours truly, JOHN U. RHODES.
