EVENING EDITION

THE NEXT HOUSE.

The complexion of the next House of Representatives is destined to become a highly interesting question. The Republicans are determined to capture it if it be possible. It has already been announced that Blaine will take the field, and we suppose that all of the best Republican speak ers will go into all the Districts where there is a chance of gaining a member. The Democratic majority (including bolters and traitors) is 44. It is said that there are just 44 close Districts. That is to say, there are 23 Democratic Districts in which the members were elected by less than 1,000 majority; while there are 21 Republican Districts that went by less than 1,000 majority. It is also said that of the 44 there were 30 that were carried by less than 500 majority in each District. All of the close Districts but six are in the North. The six Southern are thus divided; Kentucky 2; Tennessee 2; Louisiana 1; Maryland 1.

Now what are the chances? The South will hardly lose any, and it will scarcely gain any. But if it loses three members the Republicans must gain 20 members in the North to secure a bare majority. It is not impossible that they should do this, but it is hardly probable.

You see they must hold their own in 21 Districts where the present members were elected by less than 1,000, and many of them by less than 500. It is hardly probable that they will be able to re-elect all of the 21 in the close Districts. Then of the 23 Democratic Districts they must capture all to overcome the 44 Democratic majority. They cannot do this. We have, therefore, the best hope for Democratic success. The majority will probably be reduced, but not enough to give the Republicans control, we may hope and be-

AN IMPORTANT INBUSTRY.

In discussing the road to Onslow the STAR has dwelt especially upon the importance of the oyster industry and the necessity of making Wilmington a great canning depot. We suppose it needless to say any more at present on this point. We turn to another industry that can be developed to a great extent in this section without taxing the people. The canning industry need not to be confined to oysters, although it could be made very important and profitable for Wilmington.

Do our readers know that the chief industry of the State of Maryland is canning? Its largest city, Baltimore, has some 450,000 inhabitants. bushels of "cove" oysters were pack. Union man.

ed. The hands average 70 cents a But let us turn to the canning of fruits and vegetables. The Richmond Mercantile and Manufacturing Journal says: "The largest corn-packing establishment in the world is said to be in Fredericksburg, Md., with a capacity of 75,000 cans per day. Hartford county is reported as em-ploying 16,000 hands in the canning busness, and its 300 factories put out in one year 38,400,000 cans of goods-tomatoes, 24,000,000 cans; suagar-corn, 12,000,000 cans; miscellaneous, 2,400,000 cans. This required the product of 10,000 acres of tomatoes and 5,000 acres of sugar corn, involving an outlay for agricultural labor of $200,000. One hundred and thirty thousand boxes of tin were used to make these cans requiring an outlay for labor of $125,000. The wages in this industry range from 48 cents to $1.78 per day. About 14,640 hands are employed in the oyster business."

If our people were to go extensively into the canning business we cannot see why it should not be remunerative and become the great feature of our town. If a State like Maryland can make canning a "big thing" why cannot North Carolina do so? If the same kind of judgment, energy and will is brought to bear why should not very important results follow.

Whenever the canning industry is developed in this section the steam ferry over the Cape Fear river and the free bridge over Brunswick river will be assured, for they will be too much of a necessity to be ignored any longer.

THE IRON TRADE.

The iron trade is prospering. Pennsylvania would be happy but for the Southern rivals. As long as the Southern Mordecai sits in the gate of the iron industry the Pennsylvanian Haman will remain unhappy. During the first six months of the current year there were produced 2,954,209 tons of pigiron, Bessemer steel and steel rails weighing 2,000 pounds per ton. This beats 1879. The Philadelphia Times

"The amount of Bessemer and openhearth steel produced during the first half of the year foots up 1,073,663 net tons. In no previous six months has the output been so large. There have been 707,447 net tons of steel rails manufactured so far. This amount was never exceeded in any half year except in 1882, when the total producion for the year was 1,438,155 net tous. a trifle more than double the 707,447 tons produced in the first half of this year. These gratifying figures are not accompanied with the ordinary characterics of a genuine boom in these three important branches of production. That is to say, prices are not advancing rapidly and orders rushing in faster than they can be filled. But they do indicate a condition of business that is in some respects better than

These figures are surely encouraging. They indicate a very decided recuperation in one great industry. Pennsylvania ought to be thankful. A High War Tariff walls out foreign iron and steel and gives an immense bounty to the workers in that State. But for the Tariff railroad building would become very cheap compared with former years.

The Clearing House returns for last week show a farther decline. Compared with the corresponding week of 1885, show a gain of § per cent. The tendency in money rates is higher. The average loan was 21/4 per cent.; renewals 24. North Carolina 6's 1919, at 126. The trade in flour and meal is dull. The tone of the market is fluctuating and unsettled. Stocks quiet and moderate. Indian corn was buoyant, but the market was unsettled on Friday. Wheat depressed. The New York dry goods market was only moderately active. The Chronicle says:

"The event of the week was a peremptory auction sale of 1,000 bales colored blankets, the manufacture of the Raritan woollen mills. The sale attracted a large company of buyers, and all the goods were promptly disposed of at very satisfactory figures, the bulk of the offering having brought full private sale prices—another proof of the inherent strength of the market, arising from light stocks and the recent advance in wool." cent advance in wool.

We gave the gallons of spirits drunk in Great Britain last year. The United States are not much behind in its bibulous propensities. The consumption of liquors in both countries is constantly increasing despite legislation and all efforts of temperance and other organizations to pre vent it. For 1885, the beer consumed amounted to 642,000,000 gallons, an actual increase of 1,527,000 barrels. Whiskey consumed, 70,763,010 gallons, an increase of 1,606,108 gallons over 1884. This was in this country

"We did not know, but we strongly suspected that the Boston Post was badly informed as to the nativity of Judge Fowle. A gentleman reared in Washington and who is a member of the same Church to which the Judge belongs, informs us that he was born in Washington, North Carolina. His father was from the North, but his mother, was Southern. Our and still canning leads. For the Star. THE SHOTWELL MONUMENT

"The Shotwell Memorial Associa tion, in a meeting held at the office of the president July 6th, passed resolutions requesting the ladies of North Carolina who are friendly to the Association to conduct a Bazaar during the State Fair, to be held in Raleigh in October next, and to contribute such articles as they may be disposed to give towards its success in order that a sufficient amount of money may be raised to erect such a monument as they desire to place over the noble and lamented Shot-

For a year the turf has grown green above the knightly heart of Randolph A. Shotwell, and still no stone marks his resting place. When the shock of his sudden and pathetic death first thrilled the State many were disposed to contribute towards the erection of a monument to perpetuate his name and record his dauntless courage, his heroic sacrifice, his stainless honor, but interest waned with the passing months and very little over $300 has been collected. If the ladies do not work for the bazaar and make it a success there will be no monument raised to his memory for it were far better to let the grave remain unmarked than to raise above it an insignificant stone all unworthy to bear so honored a name. Let us go to work at once and do what we can to show that Captain Shotwell is remembered and loved within the borders of the State for which he sacrificed all that made life worth the living and in which he has laid down to his rest after years of suffering, caused by those sacrifices.

The ladies of Richmond, Va., held bazzar for the benefit of the Confederate Home near that city, and to that every description of contribution was made, and it was a great success. The contributions suitable are fancy work of all kinds, mementoes of the late war, china and glassware, barrels of flour, articles from the farm and garden, flowers in pots and bouquets, fruits, preserves, jellies, pickles, cakes, catsups—in short anything that has a money value. Persons sending articles to be exhibited at the fair, such as bread, preserves, etc., could, if interested in this undertaking, mark them "For the Shotwell Memorial Bazaar," after they had competed for the prizes. Mrs. F. A. Olds of Raleigh, the president of the bazaar, will give all necessary information to those who desire it and requests all who will work for it to let her know as early as possible, so that she may form some idea of what will be contributed. It is earnestly hoped that the ladies throughout the State will respond to the appeal of the Monument Association, and do all that is possible to make the Shotwell Memorial Bazaar a success.

ANNA ALEXANDER CAMERON. Hillsboro, N. C., 1886.

THE SHERMAN-ALLISON TRICK.

Louisville Courier Journal, Dem. Messrs. Manning, Jordan and Fairchild, the trio of New York financiers, who represent the New York bankers and capitalists in managing the Treasury, have amassed the present enormous surplus under the guidance of their own theories, of course; and the Allison amendment simply de clares in effect that those theories shall continue to be the rule of action in respect thereof. They have declared that the huge surplus is necessary, not only by the implication of their action in amassing and holding it, but also in express words. In the Wall-street point of view in which they regard all such questions, the position of the silver question constitutes an "extraordinary emergency" of a chronic character; and they must, forsooth, shield the peowhose money constitutes the idle surplus in question, and who desire that it shall be restored to the channels of trade! Those gentlemen are mainly concerned lest the surplus should be reduced to a degree which might render it necessary even to turn loose upon the unsuspecting populace some of that white metal money which they have been so sedulously guarding in the Treasury quarantine to keep it from infecting the health of the other currencies. It is more particularly necessary in the light of their theories that a gold reserve, very big, indeed, must be carried, in order that there should not be even an approach to the dangerous range of the quarantined metal. To make a long story short, the Sherman-Allison trick, the trick of the man who devised the conspiracy of demonetization in 1873, and of the man whose amendment expelled the very life out of the act of 1878, by the same underhanded indirection paralyzes all the force in the Morrison resolution and leaves Messrs. Manning, Jordan and Fairchild at perfect liberty to pursue their former and present policy.

CURRENT COMMENT.

-- There is no bigot to compare with your recent convert. The Atlanta Constitution is constantly engaged in formulating new protection dogmas, which are rash enough to take away the breath of even Mr. Sam Randall. Here is its latest: "Free trade would be fatal to the further development of the South; fatal to its progress, and fatal to its prosperity. Under the operation os such a policy the farming interests of the South would decline, even though the Government were to furnish each farmer his implements and his clothes." The South has lived under the shadow of protection for many generations; where are the evidences of its prosperity under the system? Protection is in full blast to-day; what is the condition of the farming interest in every Southern State? The Constitution knows, if it knows anything, that the farming interest has been bled to death to support the manufacturing interest in this country, and it will find it difficult to convince the farmers of the South that they derive any benefit from the taxes they pay to make manufacturing profitable. Of every $12 or $14 the farmer pays in the hape of such taxes, it is estim that $1 is returned to him .- Charleston News and Courier Dem.

- In the South the pathway of the man of letters is indeed beset with thorns. "I think," says Mr. Stedman, in his "Poets of America," "that standard literature, including poetry, is read with more interest in the South than here; and oratory there is still more than a tradition, yet her poets, her seers, her true prophets are there without honor, without praise, without appreciation and support. The South to-day, in that she is stoning her prophets, and in a true sense persecuting them, is repeating the history of literature in England more than a hundred years ago. Men of letters, who are condemned to privations just short of starvation in the South, in the North receive not wealth, but bread, peace and freedom from harassing cares. Timrod, Lanier, and Hayne. The glory of this triumvirate is ours. We watch the opinion of the North for their praises, and we praise them too, though we read them not. They lived and died among us. What lives of heroic self-denial; what devotion to the highest principles of art; what unmurmuring struggles against adverse fortunes and ill health! Bright as are the lives which they have traced, sweet as are the measures they have sung, the legacies which far outweigh all these are those lives of noble rectitude, of unfaltering devotion, of a courage greater than that which led our sol diers to the field. Yet we have neglected them and passed them by and now, when the sod lies over al of them, we awaken only for a moment to our strange indifference to the literary life of the South .- Southern Bivouac.

CHAUTAUQUA.

To the Editor of the New York Sun. SIR-This name has become some what famous, and it is interesting to know that probably long before the lake in the State of New York was so designated an Indian town at the confluence of the Neuse and Trent rivers, in North Carolina, the exact site of the present town of New Bern, was so called.

The journal of Baron de Graffenriedt (who founded New Bern and so named it after the canton of Bern, in Switzerland from which he came) has very recently been published by the Secretary of State of North Carolina among the colonial records, and in it De Grafferiedt several times refers to this Indian town as "Chattawqua, "Chattauqua," and Chattoocka," and says it is the "place where Newbern actually stands," and is "the old name of the town of Newbern."

The settlement of De Graffenriedt was made in 1710. In the year 1714 (?) the North Carolina Indians, who named this town Chautauqua, removed to New York and joined the Five Nations. Did they not take the name with them and give it to the lake in New York? A. M. WADDELL.

The method by which it was made was obtained by a halfbreed from the Creek Indians who inhabited a certain portion of Georgia, which was communicated to one of the early settlers, and thus the formula has been handed down to the present day. The above cut represents the method of manufacture twenty years ago, by Mr. C. T. Swift, one of the present proprietors. The demand has been gradually increasing until a $100 .-000 laboratory is now necessary to supply the trade. A foreign demand has been created, and enlarged facilities will be required to meet it.
