Georgia has a madstone that it is said has been successfully used for over a hundred years. It is known as the Gibson stone, and a great many people go to it for cure. Here is the history of it, and it is identified with North Carolina. The Atlanta Constitution says:

"In 1743 a vessel from the East Indies touched the coast of North Carolina, where the great-grandfather of Mrs. Gibson's husband lived at the time. A passenger who was sick was put off and Mr. Gibson took him to his home, where the stranger was welcomed and nursed back to health. When about to take his departure he took from his pocket two stones, one of which he presented to Mr. Gibson, telling him that it was of great age, as he had been assured by the gentleman from whom he procured it in Bombay and that it possessed remarkable powers in all cases of blood-pois-

Coons' Tails.

There is big money in dealing in fur, a Water street merchant says-almost as much as in cotton futures-if you handle enough of it, but the man who aspires to trade in coon skins has got to be well posted and keep his eyes open, especially if he goes down into the swamps in Richmond and Robeson on business, or he will as surely "get left" as the cotton future man who buys "Auguses at 70 and is closed out at 65." This is also the conclusion of a well known dealer in furs on Water street, who has handled more goods of this kind probably than all the rest of the dealers in the city. He buys all sorts of furs, from a buffalo robe or a cow hide to a rabbit skin, and is so expert that he can tell the quality of mink, otter or musk rat fur in the dark. He can tell also many wonderful stories touching his experience in the business. One curious fact he mentions, and it is well vouched for by others, is that a singular variety of raccoon exists on Eagle Island, opposite the city, closely resembling a red fox in color. with the exception of the tail which shows the distinctive markings of a coon-"a regular Robeson county ring-tail rouser." A short time ago this dealer went up the Carolina Central to buy furs, but the season was about over, and all that he could gather was a few opossum skins and a coon skin with a magnificent tail-paying five cents each for the 'possum skins and forty cent for the coon skin-all on account of the tail. He brought his purchases back to the city, and when he went to examine them found that the alleged coon skin for which he had paid forty cents was a five-cent 'possum's hide turned inside out and a coon's tail tied on so adroitly as to deceive the most careful buyer. He is convinced. that it is not safe to judge of a Robeson county coon by its tail.

- A reader of the STAR congratulates our citizens upon having a mayor who is disposed by imposing heavy penalties to break up the use of vile language, cursing and swearing on the public streets, and he expresses the hope that the Mayor may be so successful that women and children may walk our streets or occupy seats upon their piazzas without having their ears shocked with foul language.

- The curious behavior of the fire-alarm Monday evening is explained. The alarm for the fire on Tenth street was turned in from Box 35, corner of Eighth and Market streets, and just after this alarm had been sounded, some one through a mistake turned in an alarm from Box 25. corner of Seventh and Harnett streets. The system is all right and in perfect order.

The case was tried two years ago, when the jury gave a verdict in favor of the defendant, but Judge Gudger then on the bench, set the verdict aside and ordered a laew trial. The case has been continued at each term until the present.

Fight in a Magistrate's Office. George Dickson, the colored man who attacked constables Whitney and Statcher when these two officers attempted to serve warrant upon him several days ago, was brought from jail to Justice Millis' office yesterday for a hearing on the charge of assaulting Whitney. After the evidence in the case had been heard and the magistrate had remanded Dickson to jail in default of bail, the prisoner suddenly attacked Whitney, who was standing near by. Other officers in the court-room seized the man, however, before he had time to strike a blow, and after a struggle threw Dixon on the floor and put hand-cuffs on him. As he was carried off to jail Dickson said that he would kill Whitney and Statcher yet-if he lived long enough.

For the Star. INTER-STATE COMMISSION.

MR EDITOR:-A communication in the STAR of Sunday, the 17th inst., signed 'J." refers to the fact that mercantile exchanges in other Southern cities are sending committees to meet the Inter-State Commerce Commissioners at Atlanta, Ga., to urge the making of the temporary relief already granted the railroads permanent as regards the "long and short haul clause" and asks: "Will not the Chamber of Commerce or Produce Exchange of Wilmington take some action on such an important subject?" The Congress of the United States passed the bill known as the "Inter-State Commerce bill," and after careful consideration the President approved it and it became a law. It was supposed that some necessity existed for this or a similar law, and that the "long and short haul" provision was one of, if not the main feature of an act demanded by the people. Now, before the people of this city join the movement for the "relief of the railroads," would it not be well to look at both sides of the question. What advantage are the long haul rates o Wilmington? We are told that it enables us to dispose of our naval stores and other products in Western cities and towns otherwise closed to us. Does it? Compare our rates for the past two years with hose granted Charleston and Savannah. and you will find that the rates given us amounted virtually to a prohibition of trade so far as Wilmington was concerned. It enables us to bring flour, corn, meat, hay, &c., from Minneapolis, Chicago, Cincinnati, and Western points generally, and to sell these articles to our farmers lower than they can produce them, and thus it renders the farms of North Carolina valueless and people have no inducement to come here, settle and engage in agriculture No, they go instead to the West, because the long haul discrimination gives hese every advantage. Thirty years ago Wilmington handled flour milled almost entirely at Fayetteville, or in the wheat growing section of our own State, and the wharves were lined with corn aden vessels from Hyde, Onslow, Perquimans. Hertford and the great corn growing section of East Carolina, Our farmers were prosperous and money was abundant. How is it now? Well, we are compelled to get our flour from Minneapolis, and our corn from Chicago or other far Western points, and the farmers of Minnesota, Illinois and other distant States receive our

Again, why is it that we can only have team communication with New York not half sufficient to do the business from this

What is the reason that a traveller from Wilmington, a city of over 20,000 inhabitants, can seldom obtain sleeping car accommodation save by telegraphing to points north or south and paying full fare for a berth from Richmond or Jacksonville Simply because, (do you doubt it?) that we submit and do nothing. In view of these things, and columns of similar facts that might be enumerated, would it not be best for our people to wait and see if the en-forcement of the Inter-State Commerce law will not grant the people some relief, before we rush in and secure the abrogation of its provisions in behalf of the rail-
