The Morning Star

By WILLIAM H. BERNARD.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

SATURDAY MORNING, 'APRIL 23, 188 FEMALE SUFFRAGE.

It is gratifying to see that thus far the fanaticism of woman's rights shriekers in the North has not suc sceeded in capturing the ballot box in but one or two States and Territories. The experiment thus far made has been rather disastrous. But there has been a steady gain, it must be admitted, with profound regret, and the day may not be very distant when in a majority of the Northern States women shall have the right to vote in State and municipal elections.

The outlook just now is unfavorable for such a result, but there is no doubt steady progress in the wrong direction. In one House of the New York Legislature a suffrage bil passed, but was killed in the other House. A proposition to allow women to vote on the license question in the Legislature of Massachusetts was slaughtered by a great majority. In Michigan a measure to allow women to vote in municipal elections was defeated in one House by a vote of 50 to 33. The Legislature of Pennsylvania has had to meet a bill to change the Constitution so as to allow women to vote in all elections. The Senate defeated it by a vote of 28 to 16. But all this shows that the minority is strong. A few years ago no such demonstration of strength on their part would have been possible.

We hope that every Southern State will set its face as if flint against this sweeping change that seeks to degrade woman and rob her of all that high and chivalrous courtesy that has at least been paid her from immemorial time in this section of the Union. The homes of America are the bulwark of liberty and the cradle of purity. Preserve the homes. The way to do this is not by extending the franchise to the charges $90 a month. It is crowded lows: to overflowing by Northern visitors There is a hotel at Kittrell that charges $90 a month. It is filled from September to April or May with Northern visitors. The climate of Wilmington is vastly finer than that of Kittrell or Asheville. Wilmington really offers very remarkable advantages to Northern tourists and health-seekers. It is not so enervating as Florida and it is much ailder than even the middle or northern section of this State and incomparably milder than Virginia or Maryland. Then there are the river and the shell-road to the sounds that offer peculiar attractions and will serve to break up the monotony of a winter residence. The church facilities and school facilare at least sufficiently abundant.

The STAR has used up much paper and pencil and printer's ink in wri ting up Wilmington as a Winter Resort. It has never written a line that was not believed to be true. It has urged again and again the superiority of our city to all others either north or south of us for a residence from October to May. Many Northern people have tried our climate for a few days and they have been delighted with it. This writer has been living in Wilmington nearly eleven years and he has seen but one snow two inches deep. The other efforts at snowing were too contemptible a failure to deserve chronicling. It rarely snows here so as to cover the ground; probably not more than once in five or six years.

What is needed? A Northern man three or four years ago answered this. He said, "Erect a hotel equal in all respects to the largest and finest in Jacksonville, Florids, and let it be known, and you will have it filled all winter. Your climate i quite superior to that of Florida."

The Hygeia Hotel at Old Point, where it is cold and raw, is filled to repletion all winter. A hotel here that could accommodate six hundred guests, and was conducted on a plan equal to the best, and that was prop erly advertised in Florida and in Nev England and the North generally would be a grand success. What Mr. Davis has done for years at Kittrell in the woods can be repeated on a far grander scale in Wilmington by the river and so near the Atlantic

HOW IRELAND IS GOVERNED.

It has been quite common for papers in this country that lean to Toryism to deny that Ireland is illgoverned or in any way more oppressed than the people of England, Scotland and Wales. The STAR has pointed to the records of history for two centuries in refutation of such a statement. But we will not go into this. It is a fact that Ireland is that have Helped Me." Prof. Davidson more heavily taxed than the other countries of Great Britain. It is fact that Ireland pays more taxes now with only some 4,500,000 inhabitants than she paid with nearly double that population. The London Daily News says:

"While taxation has increased in Ireland since 1881 from 12s 2d per capita to £1 11s 3d, the imperial taxation of Great Britain has diminished by more than 3s per head.

But this is not all. The News estimates that Ireland has paid $500, 000,000 into the British Treasury in thirty-two years more than her fair contribution. This is shamefully op pressive. It is open robbery. The effect has been to increase the poverty of the masses. When there were nearly 9,000,000 of people there were but 70,334 healthy paupers. Now with but 4,500;000 population there are 200,237. In three years the paupers have more than doubled. There are 309 in every 1,000 to be relieved, while in England there are but 28 in

And yet the Tories swear there is no misrule; that all is fair and just; and that Irish complaints are factious and without proper foundation

POTATION OF FOUR NATIONS.

In the American Grocer there is communication from Mr. F. N. Bar rett in which he shows that in 1886. in the United States $711,000,000 were spent for spirituous and malt liquors. There are 14,925,417 liquor drinkers, averaging each $50. Great Britain consumes as follows:

Wine..... 13,425,287 Beer......1,191,270,005 Cost $614,402,238, average $17.52 for the entire population. In France the consumption was:

Average of 1.24 gallons of spirits to each inhabitant, and 23,92 gallons There is a hotel at Asheville that of wine. Germany consumed as fol

Distilled spirits..... 40,682,180

Average of 1.19 gals. spirits to each inhabitant for the year, and of 23.78 gals. of beer. So the drinking capacity of the four great peoples is not "to be grinned at." But what an immense waste of money! This too without looking at the moral aspects of the question.

FALSE PROPHETS.

The gold organs have proved false prophets. It will be remembered how they were thrown into something like a panic over the proposed continuance of the comage of silver, They declared that it would ruin the for amusement—balls, theatres, &c., evil and insincere prophetic and ded to deceive and subserve a selfish end. No such results have followed the coinage of silver and gold has rather flown hitherward than thitherward. Says the Washington Post:

"Silver coinage has been continued at the rate of $2,000,000 a month for years, and the Tribune now presents the following table to show that gold coin has actually

Tree planting is not only profitable, but in many sections it is absolutely essential to health, prosperity and comfort. Nebraska is one of the States that have been signally benefited by having an Arbor Day. It is not well wooded and great treeless prairies are all about. This has been in part remedied. Fifteen years ago 12,000,000 shoots were planted. The United States Forest Commission report that there are fine groves growing 300 miles west of the Mississippi, and that 605,000,000 trees are thriving where a few years ago none could be seen save along the streams. Here is a lesson for other States. Let the farmers plant trees in all barren spots-on their worn-outlands. Let fruit-bearing trees and trees valuable for their wood be planted-the walnut, the peacan, the hickory nut. Cover waste places with trees. Have an Arbor Day. Train the children.

INTERRUPTING COMMERCE

Louisville Courier-Journal, Dem.

Fortunately for the country the Inter-State Commerce law gave to the Commissioners power to suspend the prohibition of a greater charge for a short than for a long haul. Unfortunately for the country, its business interests are so little represented in Congress that the members of that body seemed entirely ignorant of the effect of such a prohibition.

Because the railroads have made rates to meet water competition, and because, going beyond this, they have extended competition to territory the water lines do not reach, we have on this continent the most economical and the most serviceable system of transportation of any nation in the world.

The failure to understand the value of this competition led to the passage of the Inter-State Commerce law. Few Congressmen and few newspapers understood that the railroad pools did not destroy competition, and that the low rates on wheat to Liverpool, or on cotton to Manchester, were due to a higher law than one under the control of American railroads. They did not and do not yet understand that final competition is not between one road and another, or even between one place and another, but that it is between one pro duct and another product, or between American cotton and Egyptian cotton, or between Australian wool and the wool of California.

CURRENT COMMENT. --- Within thirty days of the inauguration of Mr. Lincoln Democratic postmasters and every other description of Federal officials were as scared as Republican officials are now under Cleveland at the end of two years and one month. They were thrown out by the wholesale and without a thought that there was anything discreditable about it. The Republicans have been led forth to the sacrifice one or two at a time, and many of them have been permitted to retain their offices until the expiration of their terms. As compared with the exhibition of a genration ago, the record made by the new Administration will be favorably regarded even by men who were not at the outset actively in favor of the reform which Mr. Cleveland has done so much to make respectable. - Chicago Herald.

-- The repeal of the law imposing the present taxes on liquors and tobacco would cause an annual loss to the public Treasury of more than $100,000,000. The repeal of the law imposing the present duties on wool, hemp, flax, jute, lumber and coal would lessen the public revenues to the extent of $19,000,000; but it would relieve the American people of a greater burden of taxation than country and that gold would take wings and cross the seas and leave this country bankrupted. But such evil and insincere prophetic announcements were all "bosh," intensive the national debt and the pensions to of the master who becomes flesh of her flesh.—Phil. Record. of a greater burden of taxation than soldiers. The compulsory taxes on the above raw materials do not go into the Treasury, but are taken out of the pockets of producers and consumers, and the industries and commerce of the American people are crippled. Yet for the sake of securely maintaining these taxes on industry and labor some demagogues propose to repeal the taxes on whiskey and tobacco. - Phil. Record, Dem.

- The "kerosene lamp fiend' yields a richer largeness of roasted humanity in Norfolk than in any other place in the country. The women, old and young, of that vicinage seem incapable of being taught by example. They will attempt to coax a reluctant fire through the meretricious aid of the deadly fluid. The above paragraph, taken from the Richmond State, sets forth the melancholy pre-eminence of this place in kerosene disasters, and we reproduce in the hope that our Senator and Delegates to the General Assembly will mature an Inspection bill for the whole State. We ought to have a high standard of excellence in oils -a safety standard-and when that is given our people the terrible deaths from kerosene accidents will no longer be recorded. We trust that the State will unite with us in this, and aid in getting a law passed which will reduce human combustion to a minimum within our borders. - Norfolk Landmark.

DON MIFF" IN ENGLAND.

The Pall Mall Budget, the weekly edition of the Pall Mall Gazette, has the following comments on "Don Miff," Mr. Virginius Dabney's popular novel: "This is a most delightful book. It is full of mysterious surprises. Every reader will heartily endorse the author's own opinion of it, humorously given in the introductory chapter: 'Now that my book is finished, t strikes me as one of the oddest works I have ever read. You can never tell what is coming next. Even to me it was a series of surprises. Read the first ten lines of any chap. ter. Now read the last ten. Heavens! how did he get there?' This same introduction has nothing whatever to do with the real story, but is a vehicle for much dry American humor. For it is only America that produces nowadays such a charming combination of infectious gaiety and touching episode, such sudden transformation from humor to pathos. Hardly a single chapter can be read without a laugh, and yet there are some which will bring an inevitable lump into the reader's is a tale of Virginia country life in pre-abolitionist days. And a very delightful time every one, slaves included, seems to have of it. The mysterious hero, Don Miff, whose name itself is not one of the least of the many mysteries that envelop him, is a fascinating and rather impossible compound of everything that is heroic and musical. The other characters are refreshingly natural and human. It is impossible to give an adequate outline of the story, for it is a hopeless jumble of flirtation and philosophy, childish fun and startling mystery, American wit and musical rhapsody, and withal a streak of sadness which reaches a climax in the final pathetic scenes of the war between North and South. There are passages which in sample pathos remind one vividly of Bret Harte, markedly so where blind Ponto dies at the feet of his long-lost master." that they builty is at the True Reform. Atlanta Constitution, Dem. In a recent editorial on the disposition of Federal patronage the New York Times unintentionally exposes the weakness of its own cherished civil service theories. The Times appeals to the President to remove all mefficient and intractable officials. It then makes a plea for non-partisan appointments. But the case it makes is entirely given away in its statement that it is a source of mischief to the public welfare that there should be continued in the public service persons hostile to the Admin. istration, opposed to its purposes of reform and to the principles upon which it reste A better argument against the civil service idea of the Times could not be framed than that which it has thus uttered. If it is wrong to have in office persons who are hostile to the policy of the Administration, it is also wrong, though in a less degree, to retain those who are utterly indifferent to that policy. This Administration is Democratic. It was brought into existence by the popular desire that the Government should be reformed and controlled by the Democratic party. The Administration needs all the honest, earnest Democratic officials it can place in office.

There are certain restrictions imposed by the civil service law as it now stands which the President is New York Weekly Herald. bound to respect. He has obeyed the law, as he should have done. But the people of neither party in this country believe in non-partisan appointments.

The civil service law was never popular and never will be.
