The wagon, which contained two colored men and 5 bbls of turpentine, was drawn by two very large mules. It is asserted that one of the men jumped at least 20 feet, alighting on the bank, while the other remained on the wagon till quiet was restored and then swam to the shore. The men and mules were considerably scared but no bones were broken. Every spoke was broken out of one of the wagon wheels As the bridge was about 18 feet high and the run about

B. Taylor, from Goldsboro. At the time he was on his way back and at the junction. As the train struck him it cut off both legs and injured him in the bedy. He was taken to St. John's Hospital by the police and is expected to die. This is the first fatal accident that ever happened at the Fair grounds. - The trains last night and this morning brought in many people, but not a tenth of the crowd which would have come had the weather been favorable. Unfortunately the rain continued and there was little abatement of the worst weather ever seen at a State Fair. - There were several hundred people at the Fair grounds to-day, which was formally opened at 1 o'clock by Gov. - Engines and hose reels and the hook and ladder truck made good time ingetting to the fire Wednesday night, and all did splendid service. Although, from the inflammable nature of the cargo it was impossible to extinguish the fire in the hold of the Regulator, the firemen had it under control in a very few minutes.

A Vessel Sold by Auction.

The German barque Albatros, her 'apparel and furniture," were sold by auction yesterday, on account of the owners, by order of Messrs. E. Peschau & Westermann. The sale took place at Mr. Thos. OPERA HOUSE.

Cora Van Tassel in "Hidden Hand." An appreciative and, considering the threatening character of the weather, a large audience welcomed this well known and popular little actress last night. The piece was played through in a go-ahead, business-like way, and without any long and vexatious "betweens;" but this is readily accounted for by the fact that the troupe had to fill an engagement in Charleston to-morrow and were obliged to take the train last night.

The advertised new scenery was not displayed, and detracted much from the merits of the play, but there was no cutting, if there was a rush, and for this they should receive the credit due them.

Miss Van Tassel was suited to her part, and played it with zest and vivacity. Her transition from the character of Archie, the Newsboy, to Capitola Black, the Heiress, was easy and natural, and in the role of heiress, surrounded by wealth and plenty, and dressed in finery, an odd expression here and there, and a little phrase learned in 'rag alley." revealed the once dirty faced urchin of the street.

Mr. Young, as Wool, the servant, deserves mention, and while his characterization is worthy of praise in a great many particulars, there is a good deal of the part he essays which he does not understand, and which, to those familiar with the conduct of the servants of the time he is supposed to represent, is absolutely laughable and grossly overdone.

The orchestra was better than any we have had in some time, and their music was as much appreciated as the play.

Miss Van Tassel has a better company than when last here, and we hope on her next visit she will present her plays with appropriate scenery and as advertised to the public.

The Burned Steamer.

The fire in the cargo of the steamer Regulator burned fiercely all day and was still blazing last night. The vessel is securely moored with chains on the west side of the river, opposite the Wilmington Compress, in a position where there'is no danger to shipping or other property.

The estimated value of the Regulator's cargo is $50,000. It consisted of 937 bales of compressed cotton, 370 casks spirits turpentine, 300 barrels rosin, 235 barrels tar, 75 barrels crude turpentine, 60 barrels pitch, 10 barrels bulbs, 60,000 shingles and 80,000 feet of lumber, and was fully covered by insurance.

The agent of the line in this city, Mr. Smallbones, was unable to state the value of the Regulator or whether there was any insurance upon the vessel. She was about twenty years old and had been running to this port from New York since 1869. Capt. Ingram, her commander, succeeded in saving the ship's papers, instruments and charts, and the crew saved nearly all their clothing and personal effects.

Capt. Ingram thinks the fire originated in the fire-room, but the cause could not be ascertained. He was on board, just getting readylto retire, when the alarm was given, and with his crew made efforts to subdue the flames, but they had gained too much headway.

From Fayetteville. The steamer A. P. Hurt arrived here yesterday about 2 p. m. with a heavy freight of cotton and naval stores and a lighter loaded with cotton in tow. Altogether the Hurt brought down 508 bales. The Hurt was loaded down to the guards, and with the strong wind and tide against her as she approached the city had great difficulty in rounding Point Peter. She made three or four attempts before she finally succeeded, and then it was through the assistance of the Navassa, which lent her a line and pulled her bow around so that she could clear the point. The steamer Cape Fear arrived a few hours after the Hurt with lighter and a large freight of naval stores. She brought only a few bales of Both vessels will clear for Fayetteville to-day.

Died from his Injuries.

A special dispatch to the STAR from Raleigh, says that George B. Taylor, of Wayne county, who was run over by a railroad train at the Fair grounds Wednesday afternoon, died at St. John's hospital in Raleigh, yesterday morning at half-past five o'clock, from the injuries he received. Mr. Taylor had both of his legs cut off above the knee.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP.—Ray Sylvanus Coas thus writes in the Boston Christian Freeman:—We would by no means recommend any kind of medicine, which we did not know to be good—particularly to infants. But of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup we can speak from knowledge; in our own family it has proved a blessing indeed, by giving an infant troubled with collo pains, quiet sleep, and the parents unbreken rest at night. Most parents can appreciate these blessings. Here is an article which works to perfection, and which is harmless; for the sleep which it affords the infant is perfectly natural, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." And during the process of teething its value is incalculable. We have frequently heard mothers say that they would not be without it from the birth of the child till it had finished with the teething sleep, on any consideration whatever. Sold by all druggists. 25 cents a bottle.
