The Morning Star

THURSDAY MORNING, Nov. 24, 1887

POVERTY AND SLAVERY. The South has less money by a very great deal than the North has. In fact, the South is quite poor in this world's goods and barely shabby genteel as compared with the plutocrats and bosses in the rich North But the South is poorer in other things than in money and splendor of show as compared with the North. It has far less of splendid misery and gilded sin and decorated vice and squalid poverty and languishing unfortunates. It has but little pauperism and no "white slaves" now. A long time ago some one-Corbett it may have been-published a volume on "The White Slaves of England," the people who delve in the mines a thousand feet in darkness beneath the earth. There are white slaves in New York. The Sun says there are between 40,000 and 50,000 sewing girls in that vast city who have to toil at starvation prices-"sewing a shirt and sewing a shroud"to borrow the idea and words of Tom Hood, though not in their proper arrangement, perhaps. So poorly paid are tens of thousands of this class that the dens of pollution are kept supplied with their victims, and the number of persons dependent solely on their needles is increased annually, thus making more difficult the struggle for life-the battle for bread.

The South, thanks to a benignant Providence and the character of the people, knows but little of this source of corruption and this form of extreme destitution and dependency. There is vice and there is poverty and there is suffering and there is hunger in the South; but no one need to starve or steal. The very poor and the helpless are cared for, and those disposed to work can generally obtain a place.

After all the distribution of favors is not so unequal as many believe. The South is really populated by a different race—as Tourgee saw—and is guided by motives and principles that are also dissimilar to those prevailing in the more populous centres. It has less greed, less invention, less love of intermeddling, less money, less influence, less vice, less crime, less official patronage. But then it has to compensate more love of truth and honor and fair dealing; more glory; more unselfishness; more regard for fundamental principles; more pure statesmanship and, we believe from all we can hear, see and read, more religion of the Bible sort.

SHERMAN'S SURPLUS PLAN.

In our notice of John Sherman's plan of a campaign we did not refer to his grand scheme of getting rid of the surplus. It has a double ad-distributing to the States and making them a present of the millions. There is no justice in excluding twelve States, as Sherman proposes, when the distribution takes place. He proposes to limit the distribution to the number of States in the Union in 1837. His ideas of justice are as strange as his ideas of honor. He has availed himself of opportunities afforded as Secretary of the Treasury and as U.S. Senator to grow very rich-more than a millionand that too, on a salary that keeps honest men like our Senators poor. He now gravely proposes to take from the Treasury a great sum raised taxation and for speciconstitutional purposes, and distribute it among the States that composed the American Union in 1837. That this would be unjust; nay, that it would be miquitous no one will doubt if he only reflects. Why should twelve States be omitted from the distribution list when they have contributed so much of the great sum raised? No one but a fool or a knave would think of making such a proposition. Mr. Sherman is too keen-scented a politician not to have known long ago that the surplus was wrong and that it would have to be stopped. He has not chosen to combine with the Democrats to put an end to this unwarranted raid upon the pockets of the people-collecting moneys for the support of the Government (such is the plea) when the Treasury is full to repletion, and the trouble is what to do with the great excess. But Sherman seriously suggests his plan of wrongfully distributing the surplus, and, in doing this, to take from certain States moneys to be distributed among other States. And this is statesmanship in the eyes of John Sherman, Among honest and fair men it will be regarded as base, unjust and rascally.

MEMORIALS OF GREATNESS.

May Black Clayton, daughter of the late Judge Jeremiah S. Black, has published a volume of reminiscences, of her father, together with two speeches of great interest-one on the relations of the State and Federal powers; and another on Railroad Monopoly. Of course we are interested in this publication as we are in all that concerns the fame and personality of one of the greatest men of his time-of one of the ablest lawyers and statesmen of this country. Judge Black was a master with the pen. At his death the ablest men admitted his greatness in statesmanship and at the law. His published works are a treasury of profound thought, wise admonition, splendid invective, corrosive irony, and massive eloquence. They are a monument of great powers wisely directed. and of his love of virtue, country and political honor. He would have made a great President, a great Chief Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, a great Senator, a great Cabinet offl cial. We honor the memory of this noble, honest, candid, patriotic, trustworthy, staunch man-this illustrious American. He is one of "those simple, great ones, gone forever and ever by," we fear. We doubt if such men are bred now; men of the profoundest convictions; of sincerest manhood; of noblest aspirations and ideals; of thorough devotion to principles; of unswerving integrity and entire manliness both in life and mo-

We cannot recall in the South any such destructive forest fires as are now raging over a great area. The accounts represent great loss. The extent of the damage already done is not definitely known, and the fires are still raging with unabated intensity. The long dry season has rendered it possible for these fires to extend with exceeding rapidity, and it seems to be almost impossible to stop their ravages. One of the annoying features of calamity by fires is that so many of them are the result of sheer carelessness or devilish-

A STATESMAN IN DISGRACE. It is a sad sight to see a great and eminent man living too long for his reputation and sinking below the standard of a distinguished career that had made his name both illustrious and honored. Such is John Bright. He is now the fast friend of coercion for Ireland, and prefers the company of the Tory party he has so pertinaciously fought through the decades, to the company of Mr. Gladstone and his Liberal and Home Rule allies. Sprung from the people, John Bright's whole long life has been one of antagonism to Tory-ants. It is pitiful to see bim now ish Liberal, sprung from the people can be twisted into a benchman of Tory misrule and folly and cruelty is indeed hard to understand. It would have been better for the fame of John Bright if he had died ten years ago. He has betrayed the cause of the people because he has betrayed the cause of local selfgovernment.

RAILROADING.

Editor of the Star: It appears to me that all who are acquainted with what has been attempted and what has been accomplished in the way of internal improvements in this State; as well as the different roads under contract, and that seem likely to be soon constructed cannot fail to see the importance and necessity of having the North Carolina and Atlantic and North Carolina Railroads united and operated as one road from Charlotte to Morehead City under a lease, with all necessary and proper restrictions for a term of ninety-nine years to the Richmond & Danville Railroad.

All who are well posted as to what is doing and will soon be done, cannot fail to see that such a step should be taken at as early a day as possible. If this is not done, I cannot see how it is possible to prevent great and lasting injury being done to the roads in question and to many of our towns, cities and to the State generally.

I am largely interested in our railroads, and I have been driven to this conclusion from stubborn facts that have been forced on my at-

If we wish the above roads to conribute the greatest good possible to our people the consolidation and lease should certainly be made and that at an early day. Such was the design of those who first projected the Central Railroad from Beaufort harbor to the Tennessee line, and their purpose should be carried out, and can only be done by adopting the plan I have suggested.

Time and experience have conclusively demonstrated in this and most of the other States and that at the cost of untold millions, that improvements of ne kind, cost or length, can be prudently and profitably managed by State officials appointed by partizan legislators or State officials, however partiotic or gifted they may be. The Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railroad is soon destined I hope to be extended to Wilmington, and to the Virginia line, there to connect with he Norfolk & Western Railroad. When this important connection is made it will open a long and direct line of road from Pulaski City to Wilmington, which will pass through as fine and productive a country as is to be found south of the Ohio river.

When the road and its branches are all completed and fully equipped the freight that will be crowded on t from the great coal and iron mines and furnaces of western Virginia, to say nothing of the lumber and other articles of freight that will be offered for transportation along the line, wil soon surprise the most sanguine of

In one word, the two roads will be the great North Carolina State highways that are soon destined to tell with great power upon the growth and prosperity of our State and people. So, in order that every part of the State may chare in the great benefits that may by good management be made to flow from these two general lines of imhave a railroad speedily constructed from Wilmington to ber own wharves there to connect with the above named roads, which if managed as they should be, will do all that can now be done by such improvements as they in turn became the assail- promises to do as little for the commercial growth and prosperity of North Carolina as they do to benefit handling the missiles of oppression ty of the North Carolina Railroad and torture. How an honest Brit from Charlotte to Goldsboro and still ish Liberal and the state of the North Carolina Railroad from Charlotte to Goldsboro and still ish Liberal and the state of the state of the North Carolina Railroad from Charlotte to Goldsboro and still ish Liberal and the state of the state of the North Carolina Railroad from Charlotte to Goldsboro and still ish Liberal and the state of the st olina and New Bern road. A full and useful survey of all that is going on in the State it seems to me, cannot fail to convince any and all well informed minds that the policy I have above attempted in a hurried way to describe, is the only one that can be adopted that will prevent great harm coming to my native State.

NORTH CAROLINA.

CURRENT COMMENT

_ It has been said that the reelection of Gov. Foraker in Ohio would put an end to the aspirations of Sepator Sherman for the Presidency. We do not think so. The Republican party will be put upon its mettle in selecting its next Presidential candidate. Mr. Sherman is a fit man nomination for the great office, and there are few men in the country so noted as Gov. Foraker who are so incapable. The Republican party is very much disordered in its mind, but it has not reached the stage of dotage, and has no use for its Forakers as Presinential candidates. - Phil. Record, Dem. - When Bob Taylor put himself up for Governor of Tennessee there was sentimentalism enough in the State to elect him, just because his brother was the candidate of the minority party; but in view of Bob's flop on the tariff and Blair bill propositions he will go to the wall when he attempts to defeat that old lion, Isham G. Harris, for the United States Senatorship. The Democracy of Tennessee ought to discipline the Governor of Tennessee, and see that he and his coterie have wedding garments on when they attend the next Democratic wedding feast. - Louis ville Times, Dem.

-- The Kentucky idea would not go down in Ohio. It will not be tried on the rest of the country .-Atlanta Constitution. It "went down" with the Democrats, but "would not go down" with the Republicans. Does the Constitution desire the Democrats to adopt a platform that will go down with the Republicans? It would seem so. But they will not do it. The platform on which New York was swept will be the Democratic deliverance in 1888, and on it Grover Cleveland will be re-elected. - Augusta Gazette, Dem.

Harvey vs. Brevard et al. Plaintiffs had sued defendants on their bond to indemnify the sheriff for seizing certain goods, and defendants moved to remove the action from Lenoir to Buncombe county, under sections 191 and 195 of the Held, That obligors in a bond of indemnity are not entitled to have the cause removed under the statute. Perry vs. Peterson.

Held, Where an order of sale made by the late Court of Pleas and Quarter Sessions in a proceeding to sell laud was irregularly made, and it becomes a matter of inquiry whe ther the purchaser at the sale had notice of the irregularity and such inquiry is not fully made, there should be a new trial to ascertain the fact.

Townsend vs. McKimmon. Defendant had given plaintiff a written instrument conveying his crop to secure advances, which plain tiff undertook to enforce in a summa ry way under the statute as an agri cultural lien, defendant objecting that the instrument was a chattel mortgage.

Held: It appearing from the in strument that the purpose was to create such a lien as that contemplated by the statute, and in effect only a lien being created by the words of conveyance used, that no particular form is essential to create the lien under the statute.

Held: That though the instrument have the form of a chattel mortgage yet it must be so treated as to effectuate the intent of the parties under the statute which becomes a part of it and gives character to the lien. Allen vs. Griffin.

Plaintiff, heirs of R. L. Allen, seek to recover, possession of land which R. L. Allen had in 1880 rented to one Lassiter who subdefendant, who has to kept possession ever since. Defendant showed a deed from R. L Allen, dated in 1879. Among the two issues submitted to the jurywas first, was this land embraced in Allen's deed to defendant; and second, did defendant enter as tenant of Allen. The jury found the first issue in the negative and the second in the affirmative, but the court set aside the finding on the first issue as being against the weight of evidence.

On the second issue, judgment was rendered against defendant, who appealed.

Held, That when the error as signed sufficiently appears on the face of the record the court will take Held. That the first issue being undecided, the defendant was entitled ovement. New Bern if she is wise | to a new trial, for notwithstanding will exert herself to the utmost to his entry as tenant, he would be entitled to the possession, if the land was conveyed to him by R. L. Allen.

In cotton certificates there has been fair animation and a general firm tone, with still another addition made to values. An inspiring feature appeared to be found in the cable advices, in response to our advance of yesterday, with some orders from Liver-pool, keeping offerings within narrow lim-its and the desire of shorts to cover and go over the holidays with engagements protected. The absence of anything to fully contradict the Government estimates and comparatively light receipts, with strong Southern markets, also helped the situation, The advance was 10@18 points, from which small set back took place, but the close remained pretty steady all round.
