The intelligence of the death of Colonel Duncan K. McRae reached us yesterday. It occurred at his daughter's residence in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Sunday evening, 12th February. He was born in Fayetteville in 1819, and had just turned into his 69th year. For a year or more he had been a great sufferer, and last summer went North to seek such skill as New York could afford. It has been apparent to his friends that he could not last very long, and he contemplated his departure with satisfaction. North Carolina has produced the fewest number of men who could be compared with him in brilliancy of intellect. In wit he was equal to any man we ever knew. In powers of repartee he was indeed a master. In eloquence when at his best, and in his prime, he was of a high order. In mental resources he would compare with most men of his time. He was an admirable illus tration that splendor of mental parts is not incompatible with solidity of reasoning. He was a good lawyer, but a better advocate. When in full health he had but few rivals at the North Carolina bar as an advocate. Col. McRae was an extraordinary boy. At five years of age he made

He was educated at William and Mar College, Va., and entered the bar as soon as the law would allow. He der and lightning were a feature of soon attracted attention. He settled in Raleigh after a few years and practiced in Wake and the adjoining counties. There were great lawyers on his circuit then, and he soon took an 33,448 bales. excellent rank among them. As a po litical speaker, he was bold, dashing, earnest, witty, arcastic, vigorous, elo o'clock to-nght. quent. He was a dangerous man to meet, because of his remarkable combination of gifts. He was Con ul to Paris for six y-ars. In 1858 ne was an independent candidate for Goversor against Gov. Ellis, and was defeated. He made a very splendid campaign. He was Colonel of the 5th North Carolina Regiment, and did some heroic fighting at Wiliamsburg, Va. He was also in the battle of South Mountain and per haps other engagements. He edited a daily in Raleigh for a year or so during the war. It was called The Confederate and rendered signal service to the great Southern cause. It was a dashing, slashing, lively paper. After the war Col. McRae re moved to Memphis, Tenn., where he became distinguished, as we know, as the most consummate advocate in that city. He was suc cessful there, but on account of the health of a daughter he removed to Chicago where he practiced law for a few years. His heart was always in old North Carolina, the home of his fathers and his affections, and and financially. about 1879 or 1880, he removed to this city. Here he has been a well known figure on our streets. Here he obtained a good practice; here he made political speeches; here he delivered some of the most magnificent lectures that have been heard in the South. Here he had many friends tary on or before March 1st. and relatives who will be deeply pained to learn of his death. He has passed away at a somewhat ad vanced age, honored, respected and venerated. He was a man of physical and moral courage. He was not a great man, perhaps, but he was certainly a man of unique, striking, captivating, commanding gifts. He was a man of something like genius. He was no plodder. He reached his highest

Col. McRae married a daughter of Death of Mr. R. E. Calder. Hon. Louis D. Henry, of Virginia, She and two daughters survive him. The Greensboro correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch writes of the political pot-boiling in this good "Old North State" as follows: "The political stew-pan of North Carolina is beginning to simmer; in fact it boils. A full schedule of political race-horses will be trotted out after a thorough groom ing by their respective friends for the race. The census returns are being overhauled for all the illustrious names, and they are legion If we are to judge by the newspa-per puffs, it would seem that most of the present generation, especially the men folks, are patriots "

It is a breach of privilege to arrest a member of Parliament after it meets. The arrest of Mr. Gilbooly is clearly an outrage, for he was leaving the House during a session of Parliament. But the Tories have grown reckless. They have long been overbearing.

Mr. Robert E Calder, senior member of the well known mercantile firm of Calder Bros., died at his residence in this city at half-past 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, from a pulmonary affection which had incapacitated him from business for several months. Mr. Calder was aged about forty-six years; he was a native of Wilmington, and a member of the vestry and treasurer of St. James' church. During the war he served as lieutenant in the Second Regiment of N. C. State troops, and received a severe wound refer to the second class. in one of the seven days' battles in front of Richmond, Va., in 1862, by which the sight of one of his eyes was destroyed. Upon the announcement of his death yesterday morning the rooms of the Produce Exchange, of which he was a highly esteemed member, were draped in the emblems of mourning and a joint meeting of the members of the Exchange and the biggest fool of all. Chamber of Commerce was held at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. At this meeting, held in the Erchange building, Mr. H. C. McQueen

We are assembled to consider a mournful event-the removal by death from our business and socia community of a young and active member of these associations. From the prime of manhood, in the midst of usefulness, Mr. Robert E. Calder. has been called away; and to express our sense of the loss we have sustained and our appreciation of his many virtues and his honorable record, we offer the following resolutions

- A STAR reporter looked at the new moon over his left shoulder last Resolved, That in the death of Mr. R. E. Calder, a former president of the Wilmington P oduce Exchange and an active member of the bodies here represented, we have lost one who has been honored as a merchant worthy of honor, a citizen conscien-tious in the discharge of his duty to his city. State and county-one who was in his family relations a devoted and affectionate son, brother, husband and father, and in his Christian character consistent and upright. Resolved, That as his death sepa rates us from valuable and pleasant ing the parties, neither of whom intercourse with our friend and shrouds our hearts in the mantle of regret, memory recalls his sterling business intelligence and active Chris tian virtues, and mingles with our mourning the consciousness of his rich example. Resolved, That his quiet and gentle manner in his transactions with men. bespoke the dignity and manhood of his nature, and awakens the more a sentiment of profound and appreciate sympathy with those who more directly feel this bereavement. Reso led, That with these reflections inadequately suggesting our appreciation of the character of our departed friend, we tender our sympathies to his deeply bereaved family and as a mark of respect, recommend that we attend his funeral in a body, and that during his obsequies the rooms of the Produce Exchange be closed and business suspended Resolved. That the name and date of the death of the deceased be inscribed on a blank page of the records of the Produce Exchange, and Chamber of Commerce, as a memorial, and a copy of these resolutions be engrossed by the secretary and sent to his family.

A missing Man.

Mr. Oscar Nuhn, of Tacoma, Wash ington Territory, in a letter to the STAR accompanying an advertisement which appears in this issue, making inquiry for his lost brother, Julius L. Nuhn, says that he disappeared from this place, where he was last heard from on the 15th of January, 1885, and that all personal research to ascertain his whereabouts since have failed of result. Persons to whom the matter was mentioned yesterday are of the opinion that one of the agents or members of the band of the Wizard Oil Co. which visited Wilmington several years ago and remained in the city a week or two was known as Julius Nuhn. If this is true it may furnish a clue to the missing man. The representatives of the Wizard Oil Company had a team of five horses and a large band wagon, with which they paraded the streets. They were on their way north and the manager of the party said they would
