Accident on the Rail.

Trains from the North last night were delayed by an accident on the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac road about nine miles north of Richmond. The mail and passenger train, No. 23, bound South, ran into a freight train, resulting from the engineer of train No. 23 mistaking the signal. Mr. H. G. Burkhimer, mail agent, of this city, engineer of a fine, and the two cases against | Bowen, and Chas. Tinsley, the colored fireman, jumped from the train. Susan Mary Frank, colored, charged Mr. Burkhimer's right leg was broken above the knee, Bowen was slightly injured, and Tinsley, the colored man was injured internally. A physician was summoned and accompanied the wounded men to Richmond. Persons arriving by the early train last night reported that Mr. Burkhimer desired to come to Wilmington, and his arrival here was expected on the delayed train.

Picnic at Wilson. A correspondent writes the STAR as

On the 18th inst. the writer hereof attended one of the most enjoyable picnics of his life. It was given by the young people of Wilson, and all her beauty and her chivalry had gathered there; and not only that, but the world's larder must be in close proximity to Wilson. Certain it is that my vocabulary is all too inade-quate to tell of the meats and the weets spread by the Wilsonians. And besides, after-thoughts of scenes like this are so enticing that the pen will drop from the hand and the mind grow lazy in contented revery. The pionic was at Barnes' mill, by a beautiful stream, and the party was cha-peroned by Mr. James Wiggins and Mrs. Frank Barnes, to whom, together with the whole party, the writer accords all praise and thanks for one day of unalloyed pleasure.

The movement of cotton at this port shows receipts since the beginning of the crop year-Sept. 1st to June 16th-167,625 bales, as against 133,634 to same date last year; an increase of 33,991 bales. SEACOAST RAILROAD.

Driving the Silver Spike-Interesting Ceremonies-The -Addresses, etc.

At 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon the large crowd gathered at Front street depot filled the canary-colored coaches of the Seacoast road, and were soon flying towards the Sound and the Hammocks. The occasion was the final completion of the road, and the driving of the "silver spike." Arriving at the grounds, where a large crowd was already gathered, Mr. W. H. Chadbourn, the contractor, formally turned over the road to its present management. Mr. Chadbourn spoke as follows: Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Board of Directors of the Wilmington Seacoast Railroad

It now becomes my pleasant duty, as one of the contractors, to turn over to you this completed railroad: but before doing so, I wish to say just a word:

It was early in March when the final contract was made with us, and but few even of the most sanguine thought it could be finished before the first of August, while very many contended that we could not complete it in time for any travel this season. Yet, in less than one hundred working days, on June 16th, your road is ready for operation, although it has a mile and a quarter of heavy trestling in it.

And now, Mr. President and gentlemen of the Board of Directors, we as contractors, wish in this public manner to acknowledge that but for your valuable time, counsel and advice, which we have so frequently sought and which you have so cheerfully given, it would have been an impossibility for us to have so succeeded.

I have said the road was completed. Yet one thing is lacking—a single spike—and all is done. May this spike in its purity and value be symbolic of the future of this little road. Mr. President I leave the honor of driving this silver spike to you.

Mr. Wm. Latimer, the President of the road, then responded as follows: Ladies and Gentlemen: Those of you who can recall the ever generous and openhearted hospitality offered to visitors at the Sound will, I know, rejoice that by means of this road, its healthful pleasures and innocent recreations can now be enjoyed by so much larger a number of those who, in this age of ceaseless effort and never ending struggle, surely need a place like this where they may rest their tired muscles and cool their heated brows. By a wise dispensation of Providence, such struggles and efforts are necessary, not only to earn the right to rest from our labors, but also to provide a place in which to enjoy such well earned rest. It is then to the ceaseless efforts and unfailing courage of the directors and subscribers of the Wilmington Seacoast Railroad Company that we owe the opening of so fittinga resort as this in which to spend a quiet season, free from the cares and worries ofo ur work-day life, and to breathe with never-ending delight the life-giving breezes which flow from the bosom of

I say that it is to the enterprise and courage of these gentlemen that we owe the building of this railroad and the establishment of this resort, since it did indeed require some courage to undertake and carry out this work. For who, a few short years ago, would have believed that the shunned and despised Hammocks, the resort of the solitary heron, and the breeding place of pestiferous insects, could be made to become so charming a place as it is now seen to be?

Firm, however, in their convictions, in the skill and untiring energy of the Messrs. Chadbourn was found the way to carry out their ideas, and I am more than proud and honored to stand before you to-day as the em-bodied will of these gentlemen.

Proud, because this is so essentially home enterprise, conceived and carried out by local judgment, energy and capital; and honored, by the confidence reposed in me by such men. But, my friends, while you may sincerely wish that these gentlemen may meet with that pecuniary success which their courage and enterprise deserve, do not believe that they were actuated by such a motive alone, for I know that they, too, desired by their efforts to help on the growth and advancement of our dear old city, and to add their mite to the many evidences, now so plainly to be seen, that Wilmington has at last awakened from her placid slumber, and is girdng herself for a place in the race of progress and improvement. Who, among us, if, after the toils of the day are over, he would but take a Daily Review of our city, should fail to see that our MORNING STAR is now rising or that a tireless Messenger is proclaiming to the world the daily record of Wilmington's advancement. The busy hum of enterprise and progress is now heard with equal distinctness along the banks of the Cape Fear, as on the slopes of the Yadkin Valley, and the fertile fields of Carolina Central will never be too numerous to supply the ever growing business of our Atlantic Coast Line. And now, ladies and gentlemen, you will I know join me in wishing that this Silver Spike may rivet the missing link in that great chain, which should ever bind our Eastern shores to the fertile plains of our midland counties, and the majestic mountains of our West, forming as one great and harmonious whole, the glorious old North State of Carolina.

At the conclusion of Mr. Latimer's speech the Cornet Concert Club played the "Old North State," many people joining in singing the patriotic air. Hon. Geo Dayis then addressed the crowd. His remarks were heard with breathless silence and each sentence was eagerly awaited by the audience. He remarked that from his long identification with Wilmington, and from his many years of citizenship, he was qualified to speak on the subject of her enterprise and progress. He gave a short sketch of the unwritten his-tory of the town, showing from the very first how determined and full of plack her inhabitants had ever been. He reviewed her conduc during the building of the Wilmington & Weldon, the Wilmington & Manchester and the North Carolina Railroads, and showed conclusively that her people had ever been a wide awake, active, intelligent, and progressive people. His remarks were also tinged with humor, as when he depicted the gunboats of her Majesty's service anchoring against the pilings in Moore's channel and bombarding the houses on the sound.

At the conclusion of Mr. Davis' speech the band played, and then Mr. William Latimerswung the sledge and drove the silver spike, which completed the road. Three cheers were given by the large crowd in honor of the event, and thus was finished an enterprise that has so long been discussed, but which few ever dreamed would be a reality.

Col. A. M. Waddell was then called for by the crowd, and, after some little delay, was escorted to the track by Mr. DuBrutz Cutlar. Col. Waddell replied in his happiest vein, prefacing his speech with the remark that he felt like the girl whose sweetheart had just kissed her-entirely unprepared for the unexpected pleasure-and then, after a talk filled with humorous hits, remarked that he had only one desire unfulfilled, and that was, he could not take the silver spike with him. This elicited a burst of applause and the ceremonies ended.

The undergrowth has been cleared away and seats have been made all over the island. All that conduces to the comfort of the public has been done, and with trains running every two hours to the Sound a pleasant time is ahead for our people, and a pleasant resort, built by Wilmington capital and enterprise, has been opened to the public.
