Children's Day.

The committee on "Children's Day made a prompt and very full report on the Seacoast Railroad yesterday. There were school crildren straight, school children by brevet, grown children's children, married children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, and children put up in the smallest sort of packages. In point of fact, there were four coaches full of 'em; and the fellow who took that train while laboring under the hallucination that it was not "Children's Day" was early and often reminded of his mistake by the exhibitions of infantile lung power that greeted him on every side. But everybody, from the veteran Judge Shipp down to the smallest brand of baby known to the trade, had all the fun allowable under the new constitution.

The train was run through solid to the terminus of the Ocean View rails road, near Masonboro Inlet. And, by the way, this road is correctly named, as a magnificent view of the ocean may be had from the cars on its track. But there was nothing grand, or tempestuous, or majestic about old ocean yesterday. On the contrary, the old fraud lay basking in the sun, lazy as an alligator and placid as a millpond. Uncle Tom Burnett in his dugout could have paddled over its peaceful surface for miles from the beach without the slightest danger.

After a half hour spent in strolling on the beach and a somewhat longer stop at the Hammocks, the party were soon "all aboard," and a run of twenty-five minutes brought them safely back to the city.

Superior Court. There was no session of this Court

In the case of H. W. Humphrev e al. vs. the Board of Trustees of Front Street Methodist Church, set for trial next Thursday, Mr. Koonce, attorney for the plaintiff, yesterday filed an affidavit with petition for the removal of the case to some other county. Counsel for defendants, Messrs. Russell & Ricaud and E. S. Martin, desired to present a counter affidavit, which Judge Shipp has agreed to consider on Thursday. The Court will meet again Monday, at 10 a. m., when the following cases are set for trial:

Geo. Harriss and Julia O. Harriss vs. Wm. Sneeden and Silas Sneeden. Russell & Ricaud for plaintiff, and T. W. Strange and Iredell[Meares for defendants.

Sol. C. Wiell, receiver, vs. The First National Bank. J. D. Bellamy, Jr. for plaintiff, Russell & Ricaud and J. I. Macks for defendant.

Evangelist Pearson.

There are hundreds of good people in Wilmington; who like to keep up with the movements of the great evangelist Rev. R. G. Pearson, and for their benefit the following is reproduced from the Shreveport, La.,

"There were over thirty con versions at the enquiry meeting held last even, and many backsliders have been reclaimed. Interest in the meeting is increasing, and the throngs who go to hear the great evangelist are largely increasing each night. Mr. Pearson has a way of handling the Queen's English which is very effective, Everybody who is interested in the work reports the prospect as flattering and an increasing interest among all classes."

Runaway.

About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a street car was crossing Fourth Street bridge, coming towards Red Cross street, when an engine passed under the bridge and frightened the horses. They broke from the car, ran down Fourth street to Red Cross, down Red Cross to Second, and in turning the corner at the residence of Mr. M. S. Heyer, ran into the fence protecting the grass plot in front of the residence. The horses, entangled in the harness fell, and the driver on another car caught the team and cut the harness from them. One of the horses was hurt a little but both were attached to the car again.
