OUTLINES.

Yesterday was the third and closing day of the great Washington centennial celebration in New York, and as on the previous two days the weather was of the most delightful character; the feature of the day was the great civic and industrial parade, and the accounts indicate that it was of a most gorgeous and imposing character, thousands and tens of thousands were in the line, and there were hundreds of beautiful tableaux representing scenes in our country's history; the President and a large number of other distinguished personages viewed the grand parade from a stand in Madison Square; the only accident reported is that of an officer being thrown from his horse and having his leg broken. - The examination of Mr. Parnell was concluded at yesterday's session of the Parnell Commission, when he had occasion to refute a large number of serious charges which had been made against him. - The steamer Weser, which left Baltimore, April 17, for Bremen, is reported to have yellow fever on board, three men having died, and several officers and twentyeight men being ill with the disease. - A meeting of Southern manufacturers was held in Augusta, Ga., yesterday, to consider the question of cotton manufacturing in the South, and to take measures for permanent organization; a practical speech was made by the President, and there was an evident purpose manifested to substitute cotton bagging for jute bagging; the annual meeting of Southern manufacturers will occur in Augusta in October. — Two postal clerks have secured a verdict for $15,000 damages for injuries received in the Four Mile Run collision on the Virginia Midland Railway in 1887. - At Jasper, Ala., on Tuesday evening, an operator in the telegraph office was killed by an electric discharge which entered the office while he was taking a message. -- The Dick Hawes murder case, at Birmingham, Ala., will, it is expected, be given to the jury this evening; all of yesterday was spent in speeches for the defence, and the prosecution will close to-day. -A general strike of the ouilding trades was inaugurated in Pittsburg yesterday; about five thousand men are affected, and there is a suspension of work on every new building in the

OYCLONE AT WARSAW.

A fearful cyclone visited the town of Warsaw, Duplin county, on the line of the Wilmington and Weldon railroad, yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock. The storm came from the northwest with tremendous force, but fortunately its width was only about half a mile. Scarcely a chimney is left standing in the town, and many trees and telegraph poles were prostrated. On the outskirts of the town a few small houses occupied by colored people were destroyed, but no loss of life is reported. ;

The storm was accompanied with hail which covered the ground to the depth of two inches and caused much damage to crops, especially straws berries.

Advertisements Are Read. It is a fact, says the Waterbury Republican, that newspaper readers do not slight the advertisements. They have come to realize that the advertisements in a newspaper represent the goods which the merchants have for sale, and they take pains to familiarize themselves with what storekeepers have to offer. Moreover, the constituency of a paper are very apt to be governed by what they read in their own paper. If the paper is accepted in its political, moral and intellectual tone as our home paper, its advertisers share the respect and confidence bestowed upon the paper itself. This an important fact for advertisers to remember.
