WILMINGTON, N. C.

WILMINGTON AS A SUMMER RE-

The popularity of Wilmington as a summer resort is increasing every year, as the people of this and adjoining States become better acquainted with her and the attractions she has to offer. Without any disposition to depreciate the claims of other places in the State, or out of it, we do not believe there is a city on the Southern seacoast which can furnish to the visitor for a brief or protracted sojourn more or a greater variety of modes of pleasant, refreshing and invigorating recreation. Situated on a narrow strip of land between the river and the ocean, but eight miles distant, she is never without a delightful land or sea breeze to temper the atmosphere, even when the thermometer marks the highest degree of heat, which is seldom above ninety, and that never for more than a day or two at a time.

The visitor who may wish to loiter in the city will find it a pleasant place with its broad, airy splendidly shaded streets, the broadest of them with double rows of shade trees in the center, presenting a beautiful view, and all of which will compare favorably with those of any city. The public buildings, business houses, handsome churches, elegant private residences and grounds, that line these streets, give evidence not only of the liberal spirit but of the fine taste of the builders, while electric lights, gas works, water works, steam fire engines, street cars, etc., show that she is not one of those cities which live in the memory of the past, but looks to the future and keeps at the front in the progressive procession. In addition to this the visitor will find hotel accommodations with comfort and elegance to satisfy the most exacting demands, while, if preferred, private boarding houses may be had, pleasant cosy homes, where life may be enjoyed in the society of agreeable and refined

A few years ago it was an eight mile drive by turnpike across to Wrightsville; now a splendidly equipped railroad spins passengers over to banks channel, lands them on the pleasant ride across, with varied scenery of forest growth, highly improved truck farms and flourishing | than prohibition. orchards.

At Wrightsville and the Hammocks are beautiful, commodious, splendidly kept hotels for the accommodation of the public, and more delightful, attractive and inviting places it would be hard to find. The picturesque, perpetually green and These are the families of miners who side and on the other, facing the hotel the broad, blue ocean with its restless, heaving tide in full view, with the inlets between alive with sail boats with their spreading canvas flitting in and out, form a picture that the eye dwells upon with delight. One who seeks sport, recreation or rest, will! find it here. Along the banks of the Sound facing the open sea are other pleasant places of entertainment for the visitor, and handsome summer residences, which add to the attractions of nature, and lend variety and beauty to the scenery. Within a mile and in full view northeast are the elevated delightfula ly shaded encampment grounds of the N. C. State Guard.

A few minutes ride from Wrightsville, on the Ocean View railroad, constructed within the past year, lands the passenger on the broad beach where the great ocean spreads out in full view and the surf dances upon the sands. It is a grand sight, this eternity of waters, heaving sea, with white-crested tidal wavelets chasing each other shoreward as far as the eye can reach north and south. It is a glorious picture for the eye that loves the grand, and a glorious place, too, for him who delights in sporting with the surf or toying with the waves, noble beach, and with its numerous places for entertainment, pleasure and amusement no visitor capable of enjoyment will find the hours drag wearily there.

But this is not all. A ride of fifty minutes down the river in fleet and superbly equipped steamers, which make regular trips daily, and ten minutes' ride by rail a few miles across the peninsula, brings one to the grand Carolina beach, another delightful resort, where the surfbather revels in delight, and nature presents her varied charms. There, six miles north of Fort Fisher, is a magnificent beach with a reach of four miles, and one of the finest or the Atlantic coast. As a resort, although opened as such within the past two years, it has already become famous and is drawing visitors from States near and far. With one good hotel now in operation, which is being enlarged this year for the accommodation of guests, there are a number of neat cottages, and also places for the entertainment and amusement of visitors. As a pleasant resort it is becoming more popular and more largely frequented every year.

In addition to these are the frequent opportunities for pleasant excursions up the Cape Fear, with its grand sweep of beautiful scenery, wooded higlands and cultivated lowlands on either side, or down to its mouth and the sea, presenting a delightful pastime especially to those who have not the opportunity of enjoying such pleasures often.

And last, but not least, is the glorious sport of fishing, in river, sound or sea, which may be indulged in at any time when one cares to throw a line or cut bait.

The health seeker, rest-seeker or sport-seeker has here his paradise, and need not go elsewhere to seek it, for right here in Wilmington and in her suburban resorts they are within as easy reach as anywhere on terra

MINOR MENTION. As a U. S. Senator Mr. Harrison said in a speech on the spoils system, when discussing some of the appointments by Mr. Cleveland, that he prayed that we might either have a civil service which a President and his Cabinet would honestly pursue, or if not that, "that other frank and bold if not brutal method of turning men and women out simply for political opinions." Late developments seem to indicate that Mr. Harrison has forgotten some of his utterances, or that his Cabinet are not much influenced by any opinions that their chief may have then entertained.

Within the past year nine States have voted against prohibition amendments to their constitutions, the last being Rhode Island, which voted for the repeal of the prohibithe Hammocks in thirty minutes, I tion amendment by a majority of when another railroad, spanning the 5,469, which had been carried there years before by a large majority. beach in a few minutes. Statements made by Montana papers show that there are in Clay county, of that State, 5,000 people in a suffering condition for the necessaries of life, for the support of whom contributions are now being taken up. densely shaded hammocks on one worked in the coal mines. The men earned about five dollars a week, and because they protested against a reduction of eighteen per cent. the mines were closed, and the men are now idle, penniless and left with starving families. An investigation into the condition of the families of the miners in the Braidwood, Illinois, coal district shows also that thous sands of people are in a suffering condition, who will have to be supe ported by the charity of others. And this in one of the protected industries, which the Republican tariff manipulators look after with such keen solicitude.

President Harrison seems to be annoyed at the newspaper criticisms of his Sunday excursions in Mr. Wanamaker's yacht. He says he don't think it is just, because he does not violate the Sabbath and needs the rest which these excursions give him. A man who is bedeviled as much by mad factions with applicants for office as he is, doubtless needs rest, but surely they would not besiege the White House on Sunday, nor button-hole him on the way to church. Mr. Cleveland, with all the racket, preserved his health for four years, and left Washington a pretty able bodied man, and he never took refuge Sundays in a yacht, but went to church and said his prayers like othhundreds of bathers do daily. STATE TOPICS.

The Franklin Times says the very best use in the world to which the croaker can be put is to bury him. The croaker is a relic of antiquity which still lingers occasionally in this busy world, because he is not accommodating enough to die and get out of the way. But he does die occasionally and then he is always buried. We have seen towns with fair prospects before them killed as dead as Hector by the persistent croaker who happened to have just money enough to be of some importance, and just energy enough to be bobbing up at the time he wasn't wanted to throw obstacles in the way of some proposed improvement or enterprise which would have gotten the town out of the old ruts and sent her along on the highway to prosperity. But the stock of croakers is not as large as it was. The car of progress has run over and laid out a good many of them, and their posterity in this progressive age 18 not numerous.

North Carolina has some noted springs which come as near curing all the "ills that flesh is heir to," as any springs that bubble up out of the ground. But Cabarrus county comes to the front with one, a few drinks of which restored the voice of a young lady after physicians had treated her in vain. A contracted cold two years ago resulted in a hoarseness which became chronic and caused a loss of voice, which we are told was restored within half an hour with two drinks of this remarkable water. We are not disposed at this late day to question any claim that may be put in for North Carolina springs, but so far in the way of marvelous performances, this Cabarrus county spring is considerably

CURRENT COMMENS

--- The wool growers and wool manufacturers appear to have abau. doned attempts at a reconciliation of their differences in reference to the tariff. Before the last Congress convened every endeavor was made to unite forces in a demand for a revision of the wool and woolen tariff on principles that would suit all concerned except the unfortunate and unconsidered consumer. But the confliet had already broken out, and it was not easy to keep up an appearance of harmony. There were manufacturers who saw that their interests demanded a lower tariff on wool and that public sentiment would not sustain nor trade conditions justify the schemes of prohibitory duties Now that a new Congress is approaching, and the wool growers are even demanding an extra session to increase duties on raw wool, the breach between growers and manufacturers is widened, and the declaration is made that the manufacturers may be forced to meet the unreasonable demand of the growers by urging free wool. This conflict between factions both rigidly protectionist in sentiment is bringing out plain statements of fact as to the economic effects of the wool tariff, and from sources that cannot be denounced as "free trade." nor hostile to American manufacturing interests.-N. Y. Com. Bulletin, Ind.

- The Michigan Senate has passed, by a vote of 19 to 5, an anticombination bill. If this bill shall become a law the copper companies bined to exact 12 cents a pound for copper may be called to account under its provisions, and it will be difficult for the Michigan Salt Association to avoid prosecution. The chief officer of this association or combination is now working with certain English capitalists to perfect.

A gentleman who has but recently returned from quite a long trip from the "Land of the Aztecs" has been giving some interesting details of his experiences to his friends. Among other things, he said that when he was in the City of Mexico he was shown through some ancient buildings, convents and jails, that were erected by the Spaniards several in the lake region that have com-plans for the proposed combination of all the salt makers and salt fields in this country .- N. Y. Times, Ind.

- A secret political organizas tion, the members of which rejoice in the title of "Patriotic Sons of America," has been holding its second "National Camp" in Washington, Whether this be an offshoot of the old association under the same name which made a not very creditable figure in politics some years ago, or an entirely new concern, is not very clear. At any rate its avowed principles and purposes very distinctly betray its descent from the ancient Order of Kaow-Nothingism .- Phil. Record,

New York Commercial Chronicle FRIDAY, p. m., June 21.-The move ment of the crop, as indicated by our telegrams from the South tonight, is given below. For the week ending this evening (June 21), the total receipts have reached 3,301 bales, against 5,188 bales last week, 6,710 bales the previous week: making the total receipts since the 1st of September, 1888, 5,485,700 bales, against 5,416,973 bales for the same period of 1887-8, showing an increase since September 1, 1888, of 68,727 bales.

The exports for the week ending this evening reach a total of 23,617 bales, of which 13,347 were to Great Britain, 187 to France and 10,083 to the rest of the Continent.

Yesterday the opening was strong er, but prices soon took a down turn under sales to realize, but partially recovered, and the next crop was firm on some reports of bad weather in Texas. To-day there was further decline, under an unexpectedly weak report from Liverpool, and better weather in the Southwest, but there was a partial recovery in the last hour on a demand to cover contracts. Cotton on the spot was active for export, and the spinning demand continued good. Quotations were reduced to on Monday but recovered 1-16c. on Tuesday. The export demand fell off on Thursday, and today prices quoted 1-16c lower, middling uplands closing at 11c. The total sales for forward delivery for the week are 376,500 bales.

Drawback on Cotton Coverings. Correspondent New York Commer-

WASHINGTON, June 20 .- The subect of the brawback to be allowed on the coverings of exported cotton has been the subject of a report by the Collector of Customs at Norfolk, Va.,

to which Assistant Secretary Tiche-

nor has replied as follows:

"It appears that the shipments in question included some baling which was not made exclusively from imported jute, and that the exporters are therefore unable to make oath on the combination entries to the exact number of yards of bagging entitled to drawback. You recommend, at the request of the parties, that authority be given you to deduct from the quantities of baling stated in the entries a certain percentage to be determined by yourself for coverings which were made from materials other than imported and to allow drawback on the remainder, You state that, being fully aware of the irregularity existing this season in the materials used for covering of cotton in bales, your office did from the incipiency thereof institute close and special vigilance over this branch of ts business that the Government might be fully protected and as far as might be fully protected and as far as possible the exporter also, and that your office has not contented itself with the reports of its subordinates, but has fortified itself with the opinions of the cutton factors who have actually handled the cotton bale by bale and who are not parties to the benefit of drawback, and feels itself in a position to deal intelligently in this matter. In reply, you are informed that, in the opinion of the Department, no drawback can properly be that, in the cominion of the Departsment, no drawback can properly be allowed on the shipments in question, inasmuch as the exact quantity of the baling entitled to drawback does not appear to have been determined at the time of exportation either by the porters themselves or the Government officers supervising the shipments and as there is no provision of law or regulation to authorize a comingling in preliminary entries of goods entitled to drawback with those not so entitled or to compromise claims of the character mentioned, as suggested by the exporters." tioned, as suggested by the exporters.

centuries ago. In the wall of one of these ancient edifices he saw a small opening, so he naturally inquired of ils Mexican guide what purpose it served. He was told that it was one of those buildings in which criminals were walled up alive. "But what was the use of the hole in the wall?" he asked. "Well, senor," replied the guide, "as long as the prisoner lived his food was handed to him on a plate and he handed back the empty plate through the hole, but when the prisoner handed back the plate with the food on it untouched, then the jailer knew that he was dead already, and didn't give him any more."

The Washington correspondent of the Alexandria Gazette says: "Among the Virginians in the city Wednesday was Col. U. L. Boyce, Clarke county, Va., who has just returned from a visit to Richmond, where he went to examine the books in the State land office there for evidence of the validity of the claim of the Wolcott heirs for 1,500,000 acres of land lying in Southwestern Virginia, in West Virginia and in Kentucky. The lands were entered by Wolcott of Connecticut from 1775 to 1781. The Colonel says he was entirely successful, and has established the validity of the claim. He says the claimant so far from intending to dispossess the settlers, will give them good titles to the lands they have cleared and have improved, but will take possession of all wild lands, of which there are hundreds of thousands of acres, and upon which there is valuable

Texas Siftings. An individual who made a business of composing obituary notices, epitaphs, etc., used to solicit business far and near. In making appointments to office President Harrison's course thus far indicates that he is actuated principally by a desire to increase his own strength and that of his party in 1892. He recently removed a woman from the position of postmistress at South Pittsburg, Kansas, and appointed a man in her stead. The lady was Mrs. Livingston, wife of a Union soldier and a good Republican. She could not vote, however, and that rendered her ineligible from the Harrison stand-point. - Raleigh News- Ob-

Some of the journals persist in calling the State of Franklin, as if the name was in honor of the old patriot and philosopher. Benjamin Franklin. The name is Frank land-free land-a suggestion of the free, bold spirit which set up a State in the wild erness, detached from, and independent of all other support but the strong arms and clear brains of the men of Frankland. We look for accuracy in respect of the name to the Tennessee papers and do not find it .-
