Crazy Negro on the Hampage.

A strange negro, believed to be demented, kicked up a lively racket in the Auditor's office at the A. C. L. depot yesterday morning. He came there, he said, for employment, and was bound to have it. An attempt was made to eject him, when the negro showed fight. Mr. Holt, familiarly known as the "Umbrella Dude," happened to be in the vicinity with his bundle of wrecked umbrellas strapped on his back and his hungry looking black dog at his heels, and very kindly went into the office to assist Mr. Marshall, one of the clerks, in ejecting the man. The negro was more than a match for them, however, and they soon found that they had "caught a Tartar." The little black dog then sailed in, but he caught the wrong man by the seat of the pants, and Mr. Marshall found the fire in the rear so hot that he was forced to relinquish the fight. A telephone call was sent to the City Hall for police aswas fined six shillings for not sending | sistance, and in the meantime officer Grant, who was in the neighborhood, came up and attempted to put the "nippers" on the darkey, but the crazy negro managed to wrest the officer's club from him, and was only held at bay by the pistol levelled at him by officer Grant, Fortunately, by this time officer Howell arrived from the City Hall and with officer Grant took the negro into custody, and carried him to police headquarters where he was locked up. The man's name was entered on the police record as Robert Tillman alias Fox. It is said that he came here from Timmonsville, S. C., where he was recently in jail. He is a large powerful neg:o, dirty and ragged, and is evidently insane. Mayor's Court

Spencer Stanford, colored, disorderly, was fined $20 and costs in the Mayor's Court vesterday.

Eliza Finch, colored, selling liquor on Sunday, $20 and costs. James Henderson, colored, drunk and down, fined $5 and costs.

pearance before the Criminal Court.

An Account of the Loss of the Vessel as Told by a Passenger.

The passengers on the ill fated steamer Pioneer-Mr. G. W. Linder, and Master Elmer Myers, of this city, a Portugese sailor named Silva and Dan Spicer, a colored man arrived here Sunday night.

Mr. Linder, in the account he gave of the voyage to a reporter for the STAR, says: "We left New York Sunday morning, Oct. 13th, at 5 a. m. The weather was thick and rainy, and it began blowing a gale soon after cross-Lee sailed from Las Palmas October ing the bar. The gale continued with increased force and the seas were very high, but the Pioneer made good headway and passed Hatteras Light Monday night at 10 o'clock. The night was dark and the seas so high that the vessel was steered towards the coast in the hopes of getting in smoother water. Second Mate Ashley was in charge of the deck at the time, and soundings being taken at 11 p. m, thirteen fathoms of water was found. Twentyfive minutes later, the vessel struck on the outer shoals of Ocracoke, five miles from the inlet. We were right > among the breakers and could see Ocracoke light in the distance. The signal was given for full speed astern, but the vessel did not move, and a few minutes thereafter the main steam-pipe burst, and Mr. Fulton, the chief engineer, had a narrow escape from the scalding steam. The steamer listed to the leeward, the wind being off shore, and kept thumping on the beach and rolling with every heavy swell. The boats were got in readiness, but no attempt was made to leave the ship as no boat could live in the sea that was running. Distress signals were sent up all through the night, but no answer came from the shore. The vessel was found to be leaking, and five feet of water was reported in the hold. At daylight, some men came down to the beach and motioned for us to land, and at 7.30 a. m. a boat was lowered in charge of the second mate, Ashley, and succeeded in making land, with four sailors, and Mr. Linder and Dan Spicer, passengers. The people on shore assisted in making the landing through the breakers. The boat brought a line ashore from the skip, and by this means the rest of the crew and baggage were landed, in boats, with the assistance of the Life-saving men. All got ashore safely, but the third boat was swamped in the breakers. All the persons in it were saved by the surf men.

"By 10 a. m. all were on the beach and soon after started for the village of Ocracoke, having to wade through water and mud for three miles. All the party were take care of in a large boarding house at the village. "The Pioneer in the meantime lay broadside to the beach until Wednesday at 10 a. m., when she was finally dashed to pieces by the fearful gale and tremendous seas. She broke in two just forward of the smokestack, and then her cargo came tumbling out into the raging surf. The beach was soon covered for miles with

of soap to a grand piano. "Then commenced the harvest of the natives-men, women and children-who swarmed on the beach and could be seen by scores going to their homes with bags full of plunder. We remained on the Island until Thursday at 2 p. m., when Capt. Norton chartered the little schooner Bessie Capt. Williams, to take us to Newbern. After leaving the island we were becalmed and did not reach Newbern until 9 a. m. Saturday. Upon our arrival we were taken in charge by Capt. Gray, agent of the Clyde Line, and treated very kindly, and the pas-engers were forwarded to Wilmington and the crew to New York. Capt. Norton and first mate Chichester remained on the island in charge of the goods saved from the wreck, until the sale which will take place next Saturday.

"Theref was a small steamer at Ocracoke Island-the Gertie May-belonging to to the Pamlico Oyster Company, of which Capt. Winslow is master and superintendent. She was laid up to the wharf, doing nothing, and could have taken us to Newberne in eight hours. Application was made to Capt, Winslow, but he demanded $75 for the service, although the crew said they would give their time and the engineer offered to pay for the coal consumed if he would allow the steamer to go." The Pioneer was a wooden vessel of about six hundred tons. The Newbern Journal says she was valued at $75,000 and was not insured. The value of her cargo is estimated at the fun that was injected in every situation and the admirable manner in which that fun was sustained, shows that the flattering praise accorded it by the press was neither misplaced nor fulsome. The troupe is evenly balanced and the separate roles seem especially adapted to those to whom their interpretation has been entrusted. The play abounds in humor and bristles with the wit of bright and vivacious dialogue, while the situa. tions are side splitting in their ludicrousness. We have never heard such universal applause as greeted at times, the appearance of a favorite, or gave its approval to a clever extrication out of what seemed an impossible dilemma.

The troupe play to-night "An Arabian Night," and if the verdict of those who saw it lately in Raleigh approaches correctness there is amusement ahead which none shall fail to

The So-Called Exedus. The Raleigh Signal contains some astonishing statements in regard to the "Negro Exodus" from North Carolina to the "Promised land:" That Geo. W. Price, of Wilmington, is agent for a company who have bought twelve thousand square miles of land just opposite Arkansas;" that hands are paid from 75 cents to $1.00 per 100 pounds for picking cotton; that "the negroes are flocking to the Delta," and that twelve hundred families have already left Wilmington and five hundred more families are now in that city night seemed as if it would never awaiting transportation." Some of end, and to add to our anxiety the this may be true, but the latter part of it is the biggest sort of an exaggeration. Only one party of "exodusters" went from Wilmington, and by actual count of the railroad authorities there were one hundred and sixty persons in the party. As to the "five hundred families" awaiting transportation, no one here believes

Of this we are so sure, that we will teach our "Susy" to say, "A blessing on Mrs. Winslow" for helping her to survive and escape the griping, colicking, and teething siege. Mrs. Winslow's Soothine Syrup relieves the child from pain, and, cures dysentery and diarrhosa. It softens the gums, reduces infiammation, cureswind colic, and carries the infant safely through the teething period. It performs precisely what it professes to perform, every part of it—nothing less. We have never seen Mrs. Winslow—know her only through the preparation of her "Soothing Syrup for Children Teething." If we had the power we would make her, as she is, a physical saviour to the infant race. Sold by all druggists.
