And now here is the Louisville Courier Journal demanding "cheaper water." What earthly use have the Kentuckians for water,?

A new invention is mentioned in the papers. It is for seeing distant objects through the agency of electricity. Senator Sherman ought to have one of these, to enable him to spy out that nomination for the Presidency which he has been looking for so long.

Billy Mahone got so riled when the election returns began to come in that he went out and shot a man named Harrison. When the gentleman of that name up in Washington who had been boosting Mahone read the returns he felt as if some shot had been poured into him, too.

Now that the election is over in Virginia, and the boodle furnishers know how it has panned out, perhape it may be in order to inquire what became of the boodle and how much of it stuck in the wallets of those entrusted with its distribution.

The new law in Missouri prohibiting gambling devices, amusements such as cards, dice, pool, billiards, athletic exhibitions, and musical performances in saloons, went into operation Monday.

The reason why Billy Mahone shot Harrison on the night of the election was because he felt so lonesome being a corpse all by himself and wanted to have some company.

United Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church South.

This general body will have its third Convention in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, in this city, one week from to-day-Thursday, Nov.

The opening services of the Convention will begin at 11 a. m., at which time the Synodical and Communion Sermon will be preached by the retiring President, the Rev. E. T. Horne, D. D., pastor of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church at Charleston, S. C. The Rev. Dr. Henkel, of Virginia, will also take part in these services.

The people of St. Paul's Church, in this city, are busily engaged in preparing for this prominent event in the history of their congregation, for it is the first time in the life of Wil mington that a general body of the Lutheran Church meets in its midst. They are doing their best to provide entertainment for the Synod, and to make the stay of the distinguished divines and prominent laymen who will be their guests a pleasant and happy one.

The MacCollin Opera Company will present Cassaigna's charming comic opera "Falka" this evening at the Opera House. "Falka" is one of those sparkling works in three acts, of delightful ballads, choruses, etc The scene is laid on the continent, in the German Empire, and the story is one of love. An old governor, the guardian of a pretty niece and an adventurering nephew, seeks to make a match between the latter and a young woman of the nobility. While on his way to the Governor's home the young man is met by brigands. Edwige, the sister of the brigand chief, falls in love with the handsome young fellow and saves his life when in danger. Tancred promises to marry her in return, but escapes and is pursued. He hides in a cellar and disguises himself as a waiter at an inn. In the meantime Falka, the Governor's necie, reaches the inn on an elopement tour with her lover. She is pursued by an old monk, the keeper of the convent. So as not to be discovered, Falka personates Tancred and is to be wedded to the beautiful Alexina. The truth is made known through the fact that Arthur, Falka's lover, on being sent back to the convent as the runaway girl. claimed belonging to the other sex. Marriage all around furnishes the climax to the play.

THE FOLLOWING VOLUNTARY TRIBUTE to PANACEA WATER by that Christian gentleman, the Rev. J. P. Barrett, D. D., editor in chief of the Christian Sun, is only confirmatory of similar testimonials from other reliable sources on the same subject. Dr. Barrett says: PANACEA WATER—There are so many "quack remedies" for dyspepsia, and kinded dispases, that it is hard to get people to believe that all remedies advertised are not "quack" and worthless. In another column will be found the advertisement of the Panacea Water, by Mr. John A. Williams, of Oxiord, N. C. We have great confidence in its value, especially in cases of dyspepsia. We have used it with great benefit, and we know whereof we speak. In a week's time its use made a decided improvement, and we have no hesitancy in commending it to the suffering. We also know that when Rev. M. L. Burley, of Franklin, Va., had been reduced almost to a skeleton from a terrible case of dyspepsia of several years' standing, and when the medicine of first class physicians had failed to cure, or even give much relief, he tried this water as well nigh the last hope, and to his astonishment in a few says he found great relief. He continued its use for several weeks and he is a well man. We write this notice of our own accord, that we may persuade the suffering to try the PANACEA WATER.
