Blaine has two reasons for being opposed to it. He don't like Sherman, and consequently don't look with to capture these Republican strongholds. He thinks they are very good citizens and entitled to a great deal of respect and consideration whenthey vote the Republican ticket.

It is said also that he is disposed to cuff, figuratively speaking, the colored brethren because they did not tamble with as much alacrity heretofore to the support the Republican candidates, He seems to be under the impression that the Republican party had a lien on the German and colored voter, and that the had no right to vote any other than the Republican ticket, or to refuse to vote it. It is doubtless true that a good many German citizone did bolt Mr. Harrison's party, but we have no evidence that there was any considerable defection on the part of the colored element. It would not be surprising, however, if thore was. The surprising thing would be if there was not. It would 84040 (22) that the managers of Forsker's campa gn were appreheneive of something of this kind when they imported John Langaton, of Virginia, and ex-Congresseman Lynch, of South Carolina, to stamp among the colored citizens of Ohio and rally them to the Republican standard. They did their work and got their pay but whether they did much in the rallying way or not does not appear in the returns. There was nothing in the situation there to excite the enthusiasm of the colored voter and no reason why he should fly to the rescue of the Republican party, but on the contrary there were very good reasons why he abould let it very severely alone, if he couldn't work himself up to the notch of voting the Democratic ticket.

There are in Ohio about 30,000 colored voters. They hold the balance of power in that State, and by wirtue of their votes, which they have been in the habit of casting solidly for the Republican party, that party has been enabled to hold favor on efforts of this kind to assume the leadership of the party, and he is not in favor of arbitrary legstration of this kind anyway. He is a partisan in the full sense of the word, and in some things as unscrupulous as any partisan, but as a mema ber of Congress he took position against the force bills which would have put the South under federal bayonets, and he maintains his consistency by opposing these election bill schemes the object of which is to gain control of the South by other methods but not less arbitrary and despotic. Calling it a national election law is a mere fraud which deceives no one.

U. S. Senator Allison is not in a happy state of mind over the outlook for him. He felt so confident of a Republican victory as usual, although by a reduced majority, that he gave himself but little concern about a reelection. He runs the party in his State, and while he had some opposition he was still sufficiently powerful to lead and control the party. But now he finds the Legislature not only so close as to give Democrats hope of being able to elect a Democrat, but some Republicans elected who will vote against him even if they would not aid in the election of a Democrat. It is thought that there are enough of these with the Democrats who will be arrayed against him to insure his defeat. Of course he can't get any Democratic support, so that he must depend for his election on placating and securing the votes of the anti-Allison Republicans, who were pledged against him. There is evidently walking before Mr. Allison.

The shipment of American machinery into Mexico formed a very large part of our export trade to that country, but it is now reported war he was a member of the Confederate Congress, and in 1865 was elected to the House of Commons.

In 1878 Gov. Vance appointed him the up-town saloon keepers with a Chief Justice, to fill the vacancy "long-felt want' in the shape of a caused by the death of Chief Justice Sunday "growler." This arises from the fact that both of the distinguished butchers were bright and shining lights of the g. o. p. of moral ideas and advanced civilization. second Congress will take place in November next, it is not probable that in the present State of public opinion the Administration will attempt to pass any anti-Southern legislation for fear that a repetition of the disaster of Tuesday last should follow in the loss of the control of the House of Representatives. The somewhat bitter experiences that the Administration has encountered in its handling of the Southern question will probably induce it to leave the South severely alone for the rest of its term of office .- New Orleans Picayune, Dem reporter of an old tramp who reached Jersey City the other day on the bumpers of a freight car, "that tramps leave marks on gate posts, sign boards, doors and other places to tell the next comer what reception he may expect?" "Nawl" was his indignant reply.

"But how do you tell?"

"Personal experience, me boy, and that's uncertain. If the house looks all right and there are no men around and the dog is chained up in the barn you enter the gate and knock on the side door or go around to the back. If the woman isn't up-stairs sewing, and if none of the young 'uns are down with the measles, and if she hasn't got callers in the parlor, she'll answer your knock

"And then it's all right."

"Not by a long shot ! If she happens to be in good humor, and if her husband has promised her a new fall hat, and if her corns are all right, and if she happens to like the first look of you, she'll hand out cold meat and bread, and perhaps a boiled egg and an old pair of boots to go with it; but if she's the least bit out of sorts she straightens up, extends her arms
