A Maine farmer is proudly boasting of raising 738 bushels of Irish potatoes on one sore of ground, for which he received a prize of $500, offered by an agricultural paper. But he will have to surrender the horns to Mrs. Eliza Day, of Wyoming, who trips proudly to the front with a record of 1,015 bushels. But North Carolina is still in the lead, with a pan out of 1,100 bushels from a patch within the corporate limits of the city of Asheville.

Catholic young ladies of the city of St. Louis have organized a society known as "The Daughters of the Queen," the object of which is to secare employment for young women who aspire to something above menial service, and to establish training schools for girls where they may be taught stenography, type writing and other callings suitable to their

There is honor among criminals at least Kentucky criminals. Jeff Tuson was convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for malicious shooting. The sheriff being unable to accompany him, he took the papers, went to Frankfort and surrendered himself. Probably he thought Kentucky was going to have a bad winter and a late spring.

The Colored Exeducters. James B. Robinson, colored, who went from this city to Arkansas, writes from Little Rock to J. O. Nixon, giving a doleful account of the condition and prospects of the colored people who emigrated from months since. He writes as follows. Tell Mr. Jno. Evangelist this is the country for truck farming, if he ould like such business; but he must bring money-if he has none, stay in North Carolina. Also, you can tell all the rest the same. Now let me tell you a few words: In Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas people from North Carolina are faring very bad-that came on the emigration movement. Just remember the first crowd from Wilmington—they were sold for five dollars a head by the agent,

Williams, and sent to Sunny Side, Ark., and put into the woods. One hundred and furty-eight or more of them would not work for the pay-50 cents per hundred pounds of cotton. Quite a number ran away soon after arrival. Mr. Swan, West Nicholson, Joe Williams and family stayed a week or more. Those who remained held a meeting and would not pick cotton a: all Then the gen leman that bought them tried to compel them, but they would not, and so, about 140 or more, taking their things, left. Then Mr. Martin, the gentleman that brought them, sued them and got judgment, and they gave bond by giving up all their things. Then they raised money and sent Mr. Swan to Little Rock to see the Governor of that State. Mr. Swan

The pamphlets will be sold for the benefit of the Monument fund.

Picked Up by the Guir Stream. A telegram received at the Signal office at 9 o'clock last night, from the observer at Southport, reported that the Clyde steamship Gulf Stream, Capt. Tribou, from New York to Wilmington, arrived at Southport at 7 20 last evening having in tow the American steamer Raleigh, Capt. E. H. Littlefield, from Doboy, Ga., bound to New York with lumber. The Raleigh lost her propeller at sea; otherwise, she is all right.

STATE OF WASHINGTON. Extracts from a Letter from a North ( arottelan.

Mr. Isaac A. Murchison, who recently removed from Cumberland county, in this State, to Seattle, Washington, in a letter to a relative in this city gives an interesting deseription of that country and its wonderful development. He says:

I am very much pleased with this Puget Sound country, and with this city, which well informed people think will be the metropolis of the Northwest, being situated in Puget Sound, one of the most beautiful bodies of water-with its land locked harbors-in the world, and which together with its branches, has eighteen hundred miles of coast, and being so deep that the Grest Eastern could navigate its entire length, Besides, there are a great number of rivers flowing into it, all navigable by steamboats. The banks of the sound being very high, it is never as rough as 1 ave seen the river at Wilmington, con sequently the little stern wheel river steamboats, some of them that run up the small rivers being no larger than the Black river boats, have no trouble in traversing the sound to Seattle or any of the other up-the-sound ports. There are many steamers on the sound; two regular lines of passenger boats, besides a number of reight steamers and sailing vessels that carry coal and lumber from here to San Francisco; two lines to Alaska, two or three to British Coumbia and Portland, Oregon. There are being built three million dollars worth of steamers for the sound Itrade, while about fifty steamers are now running from this place to the different points on the sound and rivers, besides those that go to outside ports. The Western Pacific railroad has bought the road from this place to l'acoma, and the Missouri Pacific has bought the D. R. & N. road. Both transactions were completed within the last week Seattle is now the terminus of both these great trans continental systems of railroad. The Canadian Pacific is now connected with this place by steamers from Victoria, B. C., but it will in a few months, be connected with the Seattle, Lake Shore and Eastern road, thus giving us then three through lines to the East. We have here the finest timber in the world-boards often being sawed seven feet wide; have coal, iron and lime in abundance, and some gold and silver mines are being worked. The land is very rich, and a great deal of it is being cleared for farming purposes. People are flocking here from all parts of the world, and from every State in the Union; the South being largely represented. There are eight lawyers here from North Caro-

I don't know of a better country than this for a young man with some money to start a business, as all closses of labor get such high wages a great deal of money is in circulation. You may go into any store at any time of day and you will find every clerk busy and customers waiting to be served. I have been told by merchants that they make good profits. It is thought that there will be 250,000 people here in three years. Real estate is increasing in value every day.
