OUTLINES.

There was nothing done in Congress yesterday except the further consideration of the customs administrative bill in the House; an additional section was adopted, and several speeches made, after which the bill was passed—yeas 138, nays 121, and the House adjourned.

A big trust on the cigarette has been organized under a New Jersey charter, embracing all the leading cigarette manufacturers of the country. It may end in smoke, but if it will raise the price of this little life-sapper and brain-destroyer so that the small boy can't reach it, we will strain our conscience and say a good word for it, if it is a trust.

It is said that Murat declined to marry Miss Caldwell because he found that she didn't have absolute control of her fortune. He probably discovered also that she didn't have absolute control of her temper, but that wouldn't have made so much difference if her cash had been available.

There are seventeen men in the U. S. Senate whose aggregate wealth foots up $80,000,000. But they are just as prompt at drawing their salaries, their allowance of stationery, pocket knives, etc., as their poor colleagues who can't put on million-aires airs.

John Vanderbilt, a cousin of the late Commodore, died last Tuesday in New Jersey, of the grip, at the age of eighty-two. He made his living catching fish. His cousin, the Commodore, made his living and got rich watering stock.

Decidedly the Cleanest. Burlington News. The Wilmington STAR, with its new dress of type, is decidedly the cleanest paper in the State.

A Prime Favorite. Carriage Blade. The Wilmington STAR is out in a new dress of type, and presents a handsome appearance. The STAR has long since been a prime favorite at this office, and we are gratified to note this evidence of prosperity.

The "Old Reliable." Jonesboro Leader. The "old reliable" Wilmington STAR appeared on the 10th in its new dress. Everything is new—heading, rules, cuts, body and display type, and all—except the heads and minds that conduct it. We hope those will not be changed for many years yet. We were glad to see that the style of the heading is unchanged; that should be kept as long as the paper exists. Success to it.

Two Polish factions had a riot in a cemetery in Pennsylvania the other day over the burial of a corpse, in which stones and clubs were used and thirty or more men banged up. The only one who didn't take an active hand in the row was the corpse, which was turned over and rolled out on the ground. The Republican press does not refer to this as an illustration of the lack of civilizing influences in that good Republican State.

A writer who had been probably painting things too red, has discovered that "riches take wings and fly away," and touchingly asks, "is there nothing secure, nothing certain in this world?" Yes, dear, despondent fellow, yes. Death, taxes, the grip, and Ingalls' periodic eruptions.

Lost Letters. On Saturday morning Capt. McGowan, who has been sick for two or three days, says he sent a colored boy for his mail and medicine; at Tenth and Market streets, the boy dropped two of the letters, but soon discovered his loss and returned to find that a colored man had picked them up and refused to give them to the boy. The man went up Fourth street, and though the boy does not know his name, he says he will recognize him anywhere. The party having these letters had better return them, as it is dangerous to tamper with "Uncle Sam's" mail.

Weather Forecasts. The following are the forecasts for today: For Virginia, showers in northern, fair in southern portion, warmer south-westerly winds. For North Carolina and South Carolina, fair, warmer in the interior, stationery temperature on coast, southwesterly winds.

— The article on another page, headed "Joseph Jefferson," will be read with interest by Wilmingtonians familiar with that noted actor's engagement here some forty years ago. Doubtless, Dr. W. W. Harriss is old enough to remember some of the incidents narrated.

The Wrecked British Barque. Parties who came up from Southport yesterday afternoon, report that the British barque San Antonio, ashore at the mouth of Cape Fear river, had broken in two, and that the crew of the vessel had nearly finished the work of stripping the wreck of all that it was possible to save. The San Antonio registered 497 tons, and was built about twenty-three years ago. Capt. Troop, the master, was part owner of the vessel which was not insured.

Excitement at Long Creek. A gentleman from the Long Creek section of Pender county, in the city yesterday, says that community was no little excited the past week at the discovery that a white infant a few days old, had been left at the house of a colored woman near Long Creek. The woman refused to surrender the founding, and legal measures were to be taken to compel her to turn it over to the county authorities.

A Seaman Hurt. One of the men of the crew of the British steamship Merjulio, while at work yesterday on a scaffold around the smoke-stack of the vessel, accidentally fell to the deck—a distance of about twenty feet. The injured man was sent to the City Hospital. He had a severe cut on the head and two fingers dislocated; but no bones were broken, and the doctors thought he would be all right in a few days.

Shot Himself in the Hand. People in the vicinity of Front and Mulberry streets last evening about 7 o'clock were startled by a pistol shot followed by cries of "murder!" The cries came from a white boy named David DoZier, who it was ascertained had accidentally shot himself in the palm of the hand with a pistol. The boy was taken into Dr. Pigford's office, where the wound was dressed, and then the sufferer was sent home.

BUILDING ASSOCIATIONS.

THE POOR MAN'S FRIEND.

An Interesting Article on the Great Work Accomplished by Building Associations.

In a recent number of Lippincott is an article on Building Associations, by Thomas Gaffney. In these days, says the writer, when the old cry of the rich getting richer and the poor getting poorer is still being used for effect, it is refreshing to be able to point to the fact that there is no more potent agency for distributing or equalizing the wealth of the world than the principles embodied in building association management. It is the habits of the individual that form his character, and his savings that represent the wealth of the nation. The building association teaches habits of economy, industry and frugality, helps the individual to save, teaches him to save, and demonstrates the value of his teachings by placing him in possession of the results of his lessons. It teaches the value of self-control and self-dependence, and inspires a love for home and a respect for order. It creates a better class of citizens, men who have a real interest in the soil, peaceable, law-abiding, industrious citizens, who can be depended on to exercise the right of suffrage in an intelligent and discriminating manner, and who are now leaving their impress on the city, the State and nation.

Every man who becomes a member of these associations has an object in view, some (very many, indeed) one of the most laudable objects in life—that of securing a home; but, whatever the object, whether it is to acquire a home, to lay up something to sustain him in old age or times of adversity, or for anything else for which a fund is needed, the fact of having an object in view takes him at once out of the ranks of the thriftless, and to a certain extent relieves the community of any care on his account. Building associations by proving a safe and profitable place where he can deposit a small, or any portion of his earnings, where he can lay up something for a rainy day, and upon which he can draw at any time in case of necessity—enable a man to own the home he lives in and to pay for it in the small monthly instalments which are little, if any, above the actual amount of rent he would pay for such a home.

There is no better school than these associations for practically instructing their members in the methods of business and economy. The greatest benefit conferred by building associations, however, is the large number of separate and comfortable homes they have enabled their members to acquire.

Any system, society or organization that enables a man to save his money, to become a better and more useful citizen, that is fatal to communistic and socialistic doctrines, that is a standing menace to lawlessness of any kind, that dots the country over with thousands of comfortable and happy homes, that is by its influence teaching lessons that are sure to redound to the good of the individual and community in general, should certainly rank among the foremost benefactors of the age. All this, and much more, in a quiet and unostentatious way, the building association is doing.

The foundation of every good government is the family; and the nation that can count the greatest number of happy firesides is the best, most durable and most prosperous nation. Building associations have dotted the country over with hundreds of thousands of happy homes, and by their wholesome influence in other ways are worth to the State more than ten times the capital they represent.

The Town of Tomahawk. "Tomahawk" is the name of a station on the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railroad, between Wilmington and Fayetteville, which was accidentally overlooked when other stations were mentioned in the STAR a few days ago. It is in Sampson county, forty miles from this city and forty-two miles from Fayetteville. The place for the depot was selected a few days since, and town lots were laid off. A new store and a residence is being built at the place. Trains on the C. F. & Y. V. railroad pass Tomahawk at 3.05 p. m., going west, and at 1.15 p. m. going east.

WESTERN UNION'S COMPETITOR.

The Postal Telegraph Company Opens its Office—The First Message Over the New Line.

The Postal Telegraph Company opened its office for business last evening and the first message came over the wires from Fayetteville at 7.30 o'clock. It was taken by Mr. F. A. Andrews, the electrician sent out from New York to arrange and fit up the office. The message was as follows: FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., Jan. 25, 1890. To Col. F. W. Kerchner, Wilmington, N. C. Fayetteville extends the right hand of fellowship over the new wires, barring the grippe. Answer. The following reply was sent five minutes later: WILMINGTON, N. C., Jan. 25, 1890. To Hon. Wharton J. Green, Fayetteville, N. C. Wilmington welcomes the new enterprise, and congratulates Fayetteville on its close connection with the seaside city. Tell Fayetteville we give them the grip of good fellowship.

Connection with Richmond, Va., was obtained at 8.43, and with New York direct at 9 p. m., and business to that point was sent direct.

The new company's lines include a commercial submarine cable, known as the Mackay-Bennett cable, and its inland lines are being extended throughout the North, Northwest and South, following State roads, and not the railroads. Speaking of the new line as "the rival of the Western Union" in that city, the Savannah News says: "The opening of the new office, it is predicted, will result in a general reduction of rates both local and foreign." There must be a mistake about that. So far as can be ascertained here it does not appear that there will be any cutting of rates. On the contrary, shrewd guessers say that the Postal and the Western Union will charge identically the same rates, both on commercial business and newspaper specials. This seems to be the present outlook. What the future may bring forth is, of course, an unknown quantity.
