WILMINGTON, N. C.

THURSDAY MORNING, FEB. 13, 1890.

A MISSISSIPPI SOLUTION.

A member of the Mississippi legislature proposes a heroic way of settling the race problem, and a very effective one, too, if it could be carried out. It is the repeal of the fifteenth amendment which confers the right of suffrage upon the negro. He argues that negro suffrage is the cause of trouble and when that is wiped out there will be no more trouble and that everything will move on harmoniously. If this gentleman undertook to lift himself into the Presidency of the United States by the seat of his trousers he would accomplishment as the repeal of this amendment. Negro suffrage may not be one of the most desirable things in the world for the South. She didn't want it when it was forced upon her, and she has certainly had no reason to grow enthusiastically fond of it since she has had it, in view of her experience; but she has it, it is here to stay, and with her

The Republican party which gave the negro the right of suffrage, not by gerrymandering the State shamebecause it would benefit the negro, but benefit itself, could not consistently give its consent to an act disfranchising him. In addition to this, no authority could be found anywhere for the disfranchisement of any one except as a punishment for crime, real or alleged. It may be argued that there was no law for their enfranchisement, which is true, and that they are therefore in a strictly legal sense not citizens at all although they have been exercising the rights of citizenship for twenty-three years, but the Southern people have accepted this as one of the results of the restored Union, have of the line, where they don't think acquiesced in it, and both parties have appealed to and utilized the negro vote as far as they could, which practically settles the question of suffrage and places it beyond the pale of successful dispute. This being so, being recognized by the North and South there is no probability of its ever being touched.

If they were not so absolutely committed to it, and it could be abolished, there is not the slightest doubt that the leaders of the Republican party would not only consent to it, but urge and encourage it to secure the reduction of representation there are no good reasons to fear in the House of Representatives and in the electoral college which would result. That would make the Republican party supreme for many years to come. In the present Congress the Democrats have 160 members, or had before the Republicans raped the contested seat from West Virginia. The reduced representative would take 32 out of this for Governor, being a farmer, alnumber leaving the Democratic though a very poor one, was a mem-

they could always count for a quorum without resorting to the trickery

just where they want to have her and where they have been trying to put her and where they hoped and tried their level best to put her when they enfranchised the negro, that is hopelessly in their power, politically a mere dependent province, powerless to establish any public policy, powerless to resist any which the Republicans might see fit to establish. She would still have the poor privilege of electing Senators and Representatives, who would go to Washington, take their seats, draw their pay and be of no more practical account, however able or brilliant they might be, than so many Egyptian mummies. This and the privilege of paying taxes is about all that would be left. Then would come the reign of ring rule, higher tariff than ever, subsidies by the million, treasury looting and schemes to plunder without limit, which have been held in check by the presence of Democrats numerous enough not only to protest but to prevent the big steals when proposed. Legislation would then be shaped so as to strike at the South in every possible way and cripple her in every possible manner with the hope of checking her progress, of which some of the good patriotic people on the other side of the line have become so jealous and so much afraid, and which they have been trying to check and cripple by the system of wholesale abuse and slander, and the stirring up of sectional and race animosities, which they have been indulging in for years and are still indulging in. The Mississippi statesman's proposition would suit them splendidly if they saw a way to carry it out.

MINOR MENTION

The desperate straits to which the

Republican party is reduced as illustrated by the arbitrary conduct of the majority in the House, are still further shown by the bill introduced by Senator Hoar in the Senate, Tuesday, to prevent the redistricting of any State for Congresslonal purposes before the apportionment made by Congress in accordance with the census to be taken this year. The purpose of this is patent to every one. It is intended to strike at Ohio, the only State where there has been any talk of redistricting, or any probability of its being done, and he took mighty good care not to introduce it until the special elections had been held in undertake something about as easy of | Ohio to fill the two vacant seats in the State Senate and had been decided in favor of the Democrats, giving them an undisputed majority of eight on joint ballot. The State law makes it imperative on the legislature to redistrict the State this year. If the Legislature was Republican not a chirp to the contrary would be heard from the hoary-headed old plotter, Hoar. Ohio has twenty-one wise, level head, she is going to make | Representatives, sixteen of whom are Republicans, five Democrats. The Republicans got sixteen to five fully, and the fear that the Democrats will so redistrict as to reverse these figures and make the delegation in the next Congress stand sixteen Democrats to five Republicans, which would be nearer the fair thing, is what so much frightens the dear brethren on the other side. and what spurred the Massachusetts Ajax of the God-and-mortality party to hatch up this bill at this time. This is simply a bold attempt by Congressional action to throttle Ohio, and shows that when throttling may be necessary they do it with quite as much rush on the other side Democrats have any rights either. This bill is purely revolutionary, in the nature of an expost facto law, to which, if passed, Ohio will pay no attention. Submitted to the test of the courts it wouldn't hold water any more than a fish net.

Fear having been expressed by some that the Farmers' Alliance of Alabama would jeopardize Democratic supremacy in that State, Col. H. C. Tompkins, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, says it is a groundless apprehension, that dissensions in the party which would produce serious results. "The party is united," he says, "and will remain so in self-defence." Before the last election similar fears were entertained by some in this State as to the possible influence of the Farmers' Alliance in our election, as Oliver Dockery, the Republican candidate strength 128 to 169 Republicans, a | ber of the Alliance. But as the cam-

counted out at the close it was demonstrated that the members of the that the majority in this Congress | Alliance were not influenced by that fact, that they were as true as steel Then they would have the South to North Carolina, that they let Oliver Dockery severely alone, and left him to pursue his monotonous career on the banks of the raging

The ship subsidy boomers who deplore the decay of the American merchant marine, which now has a carrying trade of 61,000 tons less than it had in 1810 and 1,500,000 less than it had in 1861, as shown by official reports, tell us that the only hope of ever bringing it to life again is by Government bounties. If they went honestly about this business and were as anxious to find the cause of this decay of our merchant marine as they are to make a grab at the treasury, they would find it not in the alleged subsidies to ships by other nations, but in the miserable, destructive Republican tariff policy which began in 1861, when the decline in the carrying trade began, and taxed ship building materials so heavily that it practically killed the ship building industry in this country, and thus wiped our merchant marine practically from the seas. When the English ship builder can build a ship for thirty per cent. less than the American can under the present tariff, it is not difficult to understand why English ships have got control of the carrying trade and driven American ships from the ocean highways. Subsidies cannot revive what the tariff system has destroyed, while this tariff system remains.

A stock company with a capital of $250,000, all of which has been subscribed, has been organized to establish a big steel furnace at Pensacola, Florida. The ores to be used are Cuban ores which will be brought in by sea barges, and Alabama ores brought by rail. In order to work these Cuban ores the company will have to pay the tariff duty on iron ore, which, of course, will materially increase the cost of running their plant. With free iron ore there is no reason why the iron manufacturing industry might not become an established one in any of our South Atlantic cities that saw fit to invest capital in it. Thus the high tariff strangles our industries.

ISTATE TOPICS.

The Nashville Argonaut, commenting upon the completion of the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley railroad to Wilmington, remarks that it is the "most important event that has ever occurred in the history of Wilmington," but reminds our business men that to reap the full benefit of it they must show enterprise and push to develop trade, and hopes that they will avail themselves of all the splendid advantages this road gives them, and make the most of them. The kindly interest our esteemed contemporary takes in the prosperiis appreciated, and we assure it that the business men of Wilmington fully realize the importance of this great work as well as the opportunities it quorum, and nobody ever did it unterritory, that they are standing square up on their feet, with both eyes wide open and propose to get

The Mount Airy News mentions the sale in that section of country of the timber on 30,000 acres of land, not the land but the timber, to agents of an English company who propose to erect saw mills, cut and ship this timber. It says that, as is usually the case, this timber was sold for "a mere song." We regret to see the willingness with which so many of our people sell for a trifling consideration what if properly husbanded would in coming years be a source of handsome income to them and their children, for there is not a day that a lumber-producing tree stands that does not add something to its value. As rich as the South may be in other resources her forests are among her most valuable

- Mr. Wanamaker is quoted as saying that if a Republican like himself should go to Georgia he would be killed. Mr. Wanamaker is only flattering himself; he would only be laughed at as a very amusing old humbug,—Nashville American, Dem.

- To the lasting honor of the Democrats in Congress they rejected the unconstitutional idea of a quorum when the plea of party necessity was presented to them in 1880. The Democratic minority in the House stands now where the Democratic majority stood then in defense of the Constitution and the parliamentary precedents of a hundred years. The position of the Republican leaders has shifted with the change of circumstances. Phil. Record, Dem.

PARLIAMENTARY QUORUM.

How They Count In in the House of Com-

London Cor. N. Y. Times.

Much interest, and still more curiosity, has been aroused among politicians here by the cabled reports of Speaker Reed's summary attempts to create a quorum outside of the roll-call test. The thing is not understood here very clearly because no such a test as a roll-call exists. Parliamentary usage here is a quorum of forty members who are within view of the Speaker; if a member desires to count out the House he rises and says to the Speaker: "I call your attention to the fact that there are not forty members present.' Thereupon a two-minute bell rings throughout the whole building. Those who wish to leave do so sion hurry in. Then the Speaker, taking his cocked hat in his hand, which he never wears and never uses for any other purpose, points with it to each man as he counts them. If there are forty the Speaker calls on the man having the floor to resume; if not, he simply leaves the chair and the House is adjourned. There is a good deal of latitude taken by the Speaker in thus making the House, for the doors opening into the lobby are flung wide open and he counts as far out in the lobby as his eye can reach, so that memly of Wilmington does it credit and bers desiring to count out are careful to step aside, out of his visual range. I ought to add that formerly it was considered utterly bad form to call attention to the absence of a affords them to reach out into new [til Mr. Biggar entered the House and invented this system of obstruction. The Irish then adopted it and it is now a familiar weapon.

SAMUEL J. RANDALL

He Declined to Become the Beneficiary of a Rich Man.

Philadelphia Inquirer.

A few years ago a very warm friend and admirer of the ex-Speaker called on Mrs. Randall and informed a provision for Mr. Randall for the benefit of his family to the extent of $75,000. He did this, he said, after having learned that he was a comparatively poor man. He had been in public life for nearly thirty years, and was then as poor as when he began. He, therefore, had made up his mind to set aside the above sum as indicated. He requested Mrs. Randall to broach the subject to her husband in her own way, and hoped that he would get a favorable reply.

Some days after he saw Mrs. Randall. She informed him that Mr. Randall would not listen to any such proposition at all and requested her to say that under no circumstances would he accede. This has been Mr. Randall's invariable attitude, concerning-all benefactions for his benefit. The gentleman was very much thought and applied ethics, which will surprised at the reply, as he hoped be found entertaining not only for the that he might be permitted to do this deserved kindness. The gentleman has since died and left an estate worth several millions. He remained up to the time of his death a devoted friend of the distinguished Pennsylvanian.

POLITICAL POINTS.

- Is Mr. Harrison appointing any negroes to office at the North, where they are beloved? No; he is appointing them to office at the South, where he hopes to stir up race prejudice. Mr Harrison thinks he is having a good deal of fun .- Atlanta Constitution, Dem.

- The Republicans need not worry about unseating Democrats and seating Republicans in their stead in order to secure a working majority. They and the country are beginning to become of the opinion that in Speaker Reed alone, the Republicans have an overwhelming majority.—Nashville

American, Dem. - Matters in Congress have reached an interesting stage. Manufacturers are there demanding such changes in the tariff as will enable them to recover all they expended to elect Mr. Harrison, while Mr. Reed is evidently a fit instrument of a revolutionary junta. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

REV. SYFVANUS COBB thus writes in the Boston Christian Freeman:-We would by no means recommend any kind of medicine which we did not know to be good-particularly for infants. But of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup we can speak from knowledge; in our own family it has proved a blessing indeed by giving an infant troubled with colic pains, quiet sleep, and the parents unbroken rest at night. Most parents can appreciate these blessings. Here is an article which works to perfection, and which is harmless; for the sleep which it affords the infant is perfectly natural and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." We have frequently heard mothers say that they would not be without it from the birth of the child till it had finished with the teething siege, on any consideration whatever.
