to humbug the people by a pretence of reform while they will keep in good feather with the monopolists to whom they are under obligations, and to whom they look for "contributions" in the future by pursuing a course of "masterly inactivity."

Some time ago Mr. Blaine put in a broad claim for exclusive jurisdiction over Behring Sea, and his party organs, generally speaking, pronounced it a grand and a bold declaration. But it seems that Mr. Blaine has taken a second thought and has come to the conclusion that he was somewhat too rash, and wisely concludes that this question can be best and most satisfactorily settled by international agreement.

Mr. Blaine is not near so much of a "tail twister" as he was when performing on the stump.

A big mass meeting was held Tuesday night to take into consideration steps by which the former might be secured, which was addressed by President Crowell, of Trinity College, and others.

With such a water power as that Weldon should be a great manufacturing point, for which it has every advantage, with inexhaustible supplies all around it, fine transportation facilities, a good productive country, where people can live cheaply and well.

his aversion, and determined to give him a taste of his boot.

The dog leaped to his feet, took one dazed look at the awful boot, which was again ready, turned tail and disappeared in the house like a shot.

The dog did not stop to measure it, but it fitted around his neck with the precision of a dress collar, and the result was that he took the cloth with him, while all the dishes settled with a heart-rending crash upon the floor.

The old man had risen to his feet with electric suddenness when he saw the destruction, and turned to note the cause. He saw the fleeing lover, and reaching for his ready rifle sent a bullet whizzing after him without effect.

The young man rode to the house of a mutual friend, quite two miles away, before he drew rein, and there narrated the circumstance.

The listener laughed immoderately, despite the serious nature of the episode and its possible sequel, and then explained. Said he: "That dog beat you here about five minutes, and is now under the house out, either." Well, the upshot of it all was that the match was broken off.

Both people married eight or ten years later to other families. The difference was never reconciled, and it was only by the exercise of constant watchfulness on the part of mutual friends that bloodshed was prevented on numerous occasions.

Washington on Etiquette. The Quaint Book He Wrote When Only Thirteen Years Old.

Dr. Toner handed over to me a blue-covered pamphlet of thirty-four pages with his own notes. The title was "Washington's Rules of Civility and Decent Behavior in Company and Conversation."

Said I: "If Washington at the age of 13 was writing a book on etiquette he was surely preparing the way for his subsequent selection and elevation to dignities. Was he not rather precocious for this kind of work, precocious for Washington?"

"There will be persons," said Dr. Toner, "to argue that Washington never wrote this book, but I am ready to contend with any of them that he did write it."

"Possibly, doctor, Washington, only copied some book already extant upon that subject as a guide to his habits," I said.

"Nevertheless," said Dr. Toner, "I think he wrote it. The whole book is in his hand-writing, and the date is 1745, whereas he was born in 1732."

After leaving Dr. Toner I looked over Washington's rules, and some of them seemed to be funny, and so for example: "When in Company, put not your Hands to any Part of the Body not usually Discovered."

"In the Presence of Others sing not to yourself with a humming Noise, nor Drum with your Fingers or Feet."

"If You Cough, Sneeze, Sigh or Yawn, do it not Loud, but Privately. Go not out of your Chamber half Drest."

"At Play and at Fire it's Good manners to give Place to the last Comer."

"Spit not in the Fire, nor Stoop low before it; neither Put your Hands into the Flames to warm them, nor Set your Feet upon the Fire, especially if there be meat before it."

"Shift not yourself in the Sight of others, nor Gnaw your nails."

PERSONAL. — Charles Floquet, president of the French Chamber of Deputies, is 62 years of age, stout, short and well-sighted.

It is reported that Dom Pedro has accepted the offer of the Emperor Francis Joseph to spend the summer at the imperial castle of Hitzendorf.

—Benzon, the "Jubilee Plunger," who is now in prison for forgery, is not penniless. He receives the interest on $250,000, though he cannot touch the principal.

—Sir Spencer Ponsonby Fane is to become Black Rod to Queen Victoria, at a salary of $10,000 and a fine house. He will have nothing to do but draw his pay.

—Julia Marlowe, who has been playing "Rosalind" so acceptably this season, is only 22 years old. She possesses a sweet, girlish freshness, and a gentle, tender grace.

—Ralph Disraeli, a brother of Lord Beaconsfield, has retired, at the age of 30, after fifty years of public service, from the office of deputy clerk of the parliaments, to which he was appointed by Lord Beaconsfield.

—Prince Albert of Monaco is said to intend to devote the $150,000 per year that he gets from the gamblers to the completion of the cathedral and other public improvements. He is wealthy himself and has an enormous rich vein.

—Janaschek has grown visibly older within a few years. His hair is now white and his cheeks furrowed. Her acting has been compared to the scattered fragments of a broken arch that once rose majestically for the glorification of art.

—The Republicans in Congress may nullify the people's will by unseating Democrats who have been legally elected, but the people will have their innings in November, and then Autocrat Reed and his fellow conspirators will discover that there is a power before which they must bow.

—Harrison has a rocky road ahead of him. If he appoints white Republicans to Southern offices, the blacks threaten to cast their votes with the Democrats, and if he appoints blacks to office, the white Republicans turn and read him. He might try the expedient of restoring harmony by appointing a few Democrats.

—In thirty-nine rural counties of New York, from which the returns of the spring election are in, the Republicans had 523 and the Democrats 345 Supervisors in the same counties. These are straws showing which way the wind is blowing over the rural districts of the Empire State.

—The late Samuel J. Tilden used to take great interest in the spring elections and prognostics of the drift of political sentiment.
