OUTLINES. Yesterday was a red-letter day in the Senate, a vote being taken on the Blair Educational bill, which resulted in its defeat by yeas 31, nays 37; the bill was called up as "unfinished business" by Mr. Ingalls, which gave offence to Mr. Blair, and he indulged in some heated To him and the Mirror the STAR remarks relative to the Kansas Senator, wishes long life and prosperity. but he afterwards apologized, being assured that the motion was made from no unfriendly feeling to him; just before the vote was taken Mr. Blair read an essay on the general subject of the bill, but which was evidently a lecture to the colored audience; after the vote was should be severely punished. The New York Star thinks that when Blair's Educational bill is killed he will be without a mission. But he will still have his mouth and a mission is nothing to that.

There is talk of running in lots of ice from Canada next summer. The tariff tinkers should look after this matter and take steps to protect our infant ice industry. It will be a cold day for it when the Canadian brigade begins to raid its territory.

The New York Herald's exposures of the crooked methods in Ludlow street jail have resulted in the indictment of a lot of deputy sheriffs, who are now on the ragged edge and doubtless agree with Senator Blair in his denunciations of the newspa-

The Wilson Mirror closed its eighth volume this week. The brilliant and graceful pen of its editor, Henry Blount, has given it a reputation not confined to the borders of this State, and made it a welcome visitor wherever it goes. Blount not only has a luxuriant fancy, but a kind heart, both of which show in his writings.

A contemporary thinks that sandpagging a man and knocking him down "noiselessly" and rendering insensible is a crime that sandbagging fraternity should not do it noiselessly. They should raise a big racket and give the man due notice so that he might know that he was going to be sandbagged and not be taken by surprise.

Queen Victoria has, it is said, a passion for American apple pie. She has not yet probably struck the seductive delights of the American pumpkin pie. Russell Harrison also has a passion for pie, which is not confined to apple pie. There is a striking similarity of taste between the British Queen and our Russell.

The Chicago Herald says the man who drinks Chicago water without boiling it trifles with disease and death. This is the reason, perhaps why most Chicago people prefer to drink beer and other beverages. People visiting the World's Fair should make a note of this and take their

Purser-F. A. Lord. Measurer-D. MacRae, Jr.

Marshal-H. McL. Green. The Club is in a flourishing condition; many new members have been added and extensive preparations are being made for the regattas to be held this summer. The ladies' races, it is expreted, will be quite a feature.

Arrested Through Mistake. J. M. Wollard, the young man arrested last January as one of the parties concerned in the death of W. T. Brown, but who was released on a writ of habeas corpus, was again arrested on a bench warrant Wednesday night and placed underbond of $500 for his appearance yesterday morning at the Criminal Court. Wollard was present when the Court opened yesterday and was placed in the prisoner's box with Walter Yates. After the jury was empanelled, however, Judge Meares announced that a mistake had been made-that the grand jury had returned "not a true bill" as to Wo'lard, and ordered his discharge.

ON TRIAL FOR HIS LIFE. Walter Yates Arraigned for the Murder of

W. T. Brown-The Evidence in the Case

All In-Argument to begin To-day. The trial of Walter Yates, a young white man indicted for the murder of W. T. Brown in this city on the 10th of January last, began yesterday in the Criminal Court. Nearly all the forenoon was consumed in the selection of a jury from the venire of one hundred drawn and summoned. The jurors which were finally accepted are: S. H. Mintz, Amos Perry, G, T. Ray, C. E. Williams, Frank Myer, W. H. Bell, A. S. Heide, G. E. Quinn, Nelson Jenkins, David W. Matthews, W. H. Scarborough and W. F. Alexander.

The prisoner, Yates, was attended by his counsel, Messrs. Marsden Bellamy, Ino. D. Bellamy, Jr., and A. J. Marshall, and Solicitor B. R. Moore conducted the case for the State.

The testimony of the witnesses for the State was substantially the same as given at the preliminary investigation before Mayor Fowler, and published at the time in the STAR.

Walter Way, the chief witness for the for the prosecution, is a youth about nineteen years of age. He testified that he was born in Onslow county; had known Yates a few months and had a slight acquaintance with Brown, the man alleged to have been murdered. Was present at the ball given at the house of Emma Jackson, where the affray took place. Emma Jackson was engaged to dance with Yates and a man named J. J. Canaday She danced with Yates, and Canaday came in and commenced cursing and quarrelling with Yates. Brown came in the room, also, and cursed Yates, and the latter pulled off his coat, when Emma Jackson quieted Yates, got him to sit down in a chair and sat in his lap. Brown again entered the room and cursed Yates, when J. M. Wollard interfered and struck Brown in the face, The latter made a pass at Wollard, and at the same time Yates pushed the woman aside, jumped up and seized the chair and struck Brown with it on the head. As soon as Brown was struck witness left the room and did not see Brown any more that night. On cross-examination witness said policemen Moore him over a game of billiards. J. J. Canaday, the next witness, did not see anything of the fight between Brown and Yates. Went to the house with Brown, and had danced one set and went into the room to dance again and they kept putting him off. Finally he told them if he couldn't dance no one else should; the matter was compromised and he left the room; met Brown outside and told him of the way he had been treated, and Brown went into the room and began quarrelling with Yates; witness followed Brown and some one struck him on the nose and he left the room. Brown ran out soon afterwards and left the house; did not hear him say anything; he did not appear to be hurt.

and Howland came in the room after the fight and arrested the parties; denied having any ill-feeling towards the prisoner and that he had a quarrel with

Policeman R. H. Moore testified there was a scuffle in the room and he went in and saw Canaday's nose bleeding. Walter Yates called him and asked for protection. The policeman told him he would give him protection. Left the room and soon after heard scuffling again and going in saw Yates strike Brown with the chair. Took hold of Yates and called officer Howland to arrest Brown; but the latter got away before Howland could reach him. Started with 'Yates to the guard house, but on the way the prisoner ran and got away. Later in the night went to Yates' house, where he found him in bed, and took him into custody. The other witnesses for the State were officer Howland, who corroborated the testimony of officer Moore; Mr. E. L. Robinson, who testified to finding the body of Brown the following morning lying near the railroad track, with his head resting on the end of a crosstie; Dr. F. S. Burbank, who made an autopsy on the body of deceased and found wounds on the head that in his opinion caused the death of Brown, and

F. E. Brown, brother of the deceased. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon the State rested, and the prisoner's counsel called the following witnesses for the defence: Hattie Blizzard, D. B. Day. J. M. Wollard, Robert Strickland, Milly Fry Evander Hawes, Emma Jackson, W. H. Holloway, and several others.

Hattie Blizzard testified that Walter Yates was manager of the ball; Brown came in the room and asked Yates why he had reported him to the police. Yates denied having done so, and retired to the corner of the room and sat down. Witness then left the room and met Brown outside who said he was going to whip Yates. He went in the room with his sleeves rolled up and advanced on Yates and the blow was struck; some one behind Brown was urging him on, and said "I will see you out." After the blow with the chair, Brown ran past witness, out of the house and police officer Howland pursued him, but came back in about five minutes and enquired if Brown had returned,

J. A. Hankins testified that Yates was seated in a chair in the corner of the room; Brown came in the ryom and cursed Yates; the latter said, "I won't take it!" and threw off his coat and seized the chair and struck Brown; witness saw the chair raised, but did not see the blow struck.

J. M. Wollard testified that Γrown came into the room with his sleeves rolled up, inquiring for Yates, cursing him and saying he was going to whip him. Witness put his hand on Brown, and asked him to keep quiet, but Brown continued to advance on Yates in the corner, when the latter arose and struck Brown with the chair. The prisoner, Walter Yates, was then sworn and testified. He told the circumstances under which he happened to be present at the house where the dance was going on; that it was by mere accident that he was there. Soon after his arrival, he found there was trouble about dancing; J. J. Canaday was raising a fuss about not being allowed to dance; prisoner got a piece of paper and put down the names of the persons who wanted to dance, so that there should be no trouble; J. U, Canaday, nephew of J. J. Canaday, came in and caught prisoner by the collar; the elder Canaday also came up and prisoner struck him on the nose and Canaday went off; police officer Moore came in and prisoner appealed for protection. The officer told him to go and sit down and he did so. Soon after Brown came in and advanced on prisoner, saying he was going to whip him; Brown was followed by the two Canadays. Prisoner told Brown to stand back, but as he still advanced, prisoner got up and raised the chair, and struck Brown with it; could not draw the chair back to strike a heavy blow, as he was standing against the wall; didn't see how the blow he struck could inflict the wound on the back of the head that Dr. Burbank described. Prisoner then detailed his escape from the officers and going to his home, where he was taken into custody a few hours afterward. His only reason for running from the officer was that he did not want to stay all night in the guard house.

Other witness for the defence were examined, and about seven o'clock p. m. Court took a recess until 9 a. m. today, when arguments of counsel will be
