The Lecture Last Night. Those who attended the lecture at the Opera House last night were delighted at the fine views, vivid descriptions and vocal music which they saw and heard. Notre Dame, the Pantheon, the Invalides, the Eiffel tower, Versailles and St. Cloud, were all very interestingly presented to the audience, who showed their interest by their close attention and by several bursts of applause. The two songs of the evening, the songs of the revolution of the Empire, were received with universal pleasure. A "Trip Through Switzerland," with views finer than those of the Rhine, was announced for next week, Wednesday evening, when our friends from the western part of the State will be with us.
