nection with the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley gives her another and a competing highway for travel and her freights, which are immense. The extension of the North Western road which by June will reach Wilkesboro, sixty miles westward, will eventually in all likelihood go to Jonesboro, Tennesse, or some other point, to connect with the Western system of roads, for it is not going to run into the ground at Wilkesboro. This will put her on a trunk line to the great west connecting with Cincinnati and other Western cities.

The Richmond and Danville Company which controls the North Western running on to Wilkesboro is also pushing another road through Davie county southward to connect at Salisbury with the Western road, or at Gastonia with the Atlanta Air Line, which will give her another outlet South.

The same company is surveying a line from Danville, Va., to Winston, which if constructed will connect with its line now being extended southward through Davie, giving her another trunk line, to become a great highway of travel north and south. The Roanoke & Southern completed to Walnut Cove, in Stokes county, and being rapidly pushed to Roanoke, Va., will give her another line north, and when this line is extended southward, which it will be, it will give another trunk line high way north and south. This means that she is to become in the near future a great railroad centre, and with such a people to be a railroad centre means to be a great industrial centre, also.

That they have confidence in her future is evidenced by the progressive movements in past years, when a fine school system, water works and electric light plant were established, and especially within the past few months, in the erection of fine buildings, increased banking facilities, establishing an electric street railway system, the organizatana, had no more influence in changing the pre-determined result than a spring breeze would in turning the course of a cyclone. They haven't got any more States in sight now, as Arizona and New Mexico are Democratic territories, but they might be persuaded to take in later Oklahoma, No Man's Land, Alaska, of some other chunks of territory that might be found lying around loose somewhere.

The report of the Democratic minority of the Committee on Ways and Means (published in the STAR yesterday) in opposition to the new tariff bill offered by the majority is a solid, able and comprehensive document, which clearly shows the position of the Democratic party on this question and the ground of opposition to this new bill, which they plainly show is not a reform measure, nor even an attempt at reform, but a grotesque conglomeration of conflicting clauses, suggested by party necessities or at the dictation of importunate protected industries which demanded more protection as a condition of party fealty. The new bill is not a measure in the interest of the people, who demanded lower tariff taxes, but in the interest of protected favorites who have demanded higher tariff taxes, which the bill proposes to give them. The fight is now between the people and the monopolists, and it will be waged until the people triumph, whatever the result at this time may be.

That the high protective tariff is a grand grab, and that many of the representatives of special industries which plead for or demand special protection are not honest in their representations is forcibly illustrated by the Barlow, Fla., Courier-Informant, published in the orange growing section of that State, which exposes and pokes fun at the orange growers who have been pleading for a tax of a dollar a box on foreign fruit to "save them from ruin." It quotes

IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION.

A Non Political View of the Tariff Ques-

The Engineering and Mining Jourual, which of course takes a nonpolitical view of tariff affairs, says: 'Many of our manufacturing industries have arrived at that stage of development where their capacity to produce exceeds our home consumption, and foreign markets can only be opened by enabling us to produce cheaper by reducing these taxes, and with them the cost of raw materials entering into manufacture.

In the interest of the development of American industries and of the prosperity of our people the Engineering and Mining Journal advocates enconomy in the administration of our Government, a reduction of taxation, the free entry of raw materials for manufacturing here, and a gradual reduction in the protective tariff on the products of old and well-established industries. It is certainly supreme folly to close our eyes to the storm that is brewing and that already shows clearly above the horizon, and that, unless greater moderation in the demands for protection be very promptly shown, will gather such force that it will sweep away suddenly even the moderate protection which is absolutely necessary to the very existence of some young industries and to the growth of others, and will, by suddenly precipitating new conditions upon the whole industry of the country, cause irreparable injury. It is quite time our war taxes should go and that the good of the country rather than the enrichment of the few favored ones should be the object of our national legislation."

No Objection as He Was Not Violating the Code.

A tramp who was making his way around to the back door of a house on Third avenue, says the Detroit Free Press, found a man sawing wood in the rear yard, and after gazing at him for a moment called out: "Are you working for old clothes?" "No, sir," was the reply.

"Hain't sawing wood for your dinner?"

"No, sir." "Haven't quit the purfesh ?" "No, sir ?" "Say, what are you doing at that

Why They Went Out.

She was younger and more innocent than she probably would be after a few years, says the Philadelphia Times:

"Why are all those men going out?" she remarked as the curtain fell on the first act.

His heart rose and fell with violent emotion as he answered: "Suppose I follow them and see?"

"Yes, do," and her natural woman's curiosity became his salvation.

"It wasn't much," he remarked on his entrance; "only a man next door giving out paper collars for hot throats.'

And by averting his face the breath of suspicion never reached her.

PERSONAL.

- Mrs. U. S. Grant is writing a volume of memoirs of her husband.

- Lawrence Barrett is in the south of France rapidly regaining his health

- Mr. Stanley has taken a house at Hampstead, near London, where he will live for some months of his stay in England.

- The German Emperor and Empress are to visit Norway in the imperial yacht Hohenzollern during the last twelve days of June.

- Archbishop Corrigan has arrived in Rome and will soon have an audience with the Pope. The strictest secrecy is maintained with regard to the object of his mission.

- Miss Elaine Goodale, the poet. who is superintendent of public schools in Dakota, will live principally in a wagon next summer. She has been supplied by Gen. Morgan commissioner of Indian affairs, with a covered wagon and a pair of horses to travel from school to school through Dakota. She will be attended on her travels by two Indians, a man and his wife.

- Lieut. Seaton Schroeder, who will command the Vesuvius if she is accepted by the government, is prominent among the younger officers of the navy because of his scientific knowledge. He has great faith in the value of the dynamite cruiser. Lieut. Schroeder has made a close study of the newest weapons of naval warfare and is an expert in explosives.

PROGRESSIVE CITIES.

There is no city in North Carolina which has sprung into life and magnitude like Birmingham and Anniston, and some other young cities in the iron and coal belt of Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee, which the iron furnaces have called into existence as if by magic, but, while this is so there are in North Carolina several cities which show marvelous growth and give promise of becoming great industrial centres in the near future. Asheville's growth within the past ten years has been remarkable, so has Charlotte's, Raleigh's, Durham's, Reidsville's, and other places which we could mention, while Fayetteville and Greensboro have taken on new life and are looking to an industrial future which even the most sanguine would not have dared to hope for a few years ago.

But perhaps the most remarkable instance of the rapid growth of an unpretending county seat with a few houses, into a prosperous and progressive city within a decade and a half, without any boom, but simply by thrift and business enterprise is shown by Winston, or Winston Salem, for the two cities are now practically one, which is rapidly coming to the front as one of the leading cities of the State, with a future as bright and full of promise lift the vessel at which they before her as her most hopeful citizen are directed up into the sky could ask for. She is to-day one of the largest tobacco manufacturing centres in the United States, and has more tobacco factories in operation perhaps than any other one place in the United States, every year adding to the number. She manufactures now from ten to twelve millions pounds of leaf, nine-tenths of which is sold on her own warehouse floors and raised in the country tributary to her. She don't make a pound that she doesn't sell, and which is not the equivalent of so much cash the hour it is boxed. Her markets reach from Maine to Texas, and westward to Utah. This industry represents millions of dollars. Her people are workers, however large their incomes may be, and herein, with their progressiveness, lies their success and the secret of the city's steady and rapid growth. We don't tion of a company to build a magnificent hotel, extending the streets and opening up what was, a short while ago, suburban woods into city lots, which are being rapidly bought and built up, an increase of industries, with a population numbering now, it is thought, about fifteen thousand.

This is one of the live, solid, progressive cities which the iron rail now connects with Wilmington, whose people and her people are drawn nearer together, whose business intercourse will grow with each year, and we trust prove mutually pleasant and profitable. Her business men showed the interest they take in Wilmington by the large number of representative citizens who came to participate in the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley celebration.

Part of the programme of the Republican treasury raiders is to spend about $300,000,000 on building seacoast fortifications, when the long range guns which the naval powers of the world are bringing into service these days make seacoast fortifications almost useless. The best seacoast fortifications that can be constructed are the floating fortifications, armed with dynamite guns which will throw bombs a distance of two miles or more, and send her back to the bottom of the sea. The improvements being constantly made in submarine torpedo-boats, too, are such that they will prove a mighty defender, against which a hostile fleet would be powerless. The French have recently been making satisfactory experiments with one which can, it is said, stay under water for twenty-four hours, and is under perfect control. With dynamite guns and such submarine torpedo-boats, there will be really in the future no more need for this grand system of fortifications proposed than there would be for a wire the cases of two of these growers who were most importunate for this protection to "save them from ruin," one of whom refused an offer of $25,000 for his twenty-acre orange grove and the other $40,000 for his grove also of twenty acres, the offers in both cases being declined because the groves were paying too well. And yet they go with their hats in their hands, pleading like mendicants for protection from the "pauper labor" of some other country. What a hypocritical farce. But this is not peculiar to the Florida orange growers; it is true of many of the other industries which demand protection, and in a measure of all.
