A telegram in the Savannah News of

of a sensational affair in Fernandina,

Florida. The lady mentioned-Mrs.

have many friends in Wilmington, but so far as could be learned yesterday none of them could give any further information in regard to the matter. A

Mrs. Thorpe says that during a ride yesterday morning with Mr. Hubby, he drew a pistol and threatened to shoot her if she did not at once consent to be married to him, and after obliging her to consent, he said he would shoot her at the altar if she made any resistance or refused to go on with the ceremony.

He then drove to his residence on placed on her finger, when she fainted.

Later in the day, while Mr. Hubby was away, Mrs. Thorpe succeeded in getting of the means taken to induce her to mar-necessitating medical attention to be given her. Last night an application was made to County Judge Schuyler for a peace warrant against Mr. Hubby, but nothing further has been done in the matter up to to-night. Mrs. Thorpe

The whole affair is very singular, in together and public opinion was that af-satisfactory manner. Mrs. Thorpe came

WILMINGTON LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

Those persons who have not lately visited the Library Association rooms in the Masonic Building on Market Street should do so to see the great progress that has been made during the past few months. The lilbrary room now much resembles the rooms of larger libraries of other large cities of the United States. Five new book cases divide up the outer portions of the rooms into alcoves, each of which is devoted to some particular class of literature. The older bookcases have had their shelving arranged and so spaced as to allow all books of the same author or topic to be placed together irrespective of the size or height of the book. All the books have been examined and classed, and arranged according to their author or subject. A card catalogue in process of construction; this form of catalogue being one in which each 'book is represented by one or more cards, the cards being arranged in alphabetical order and placed on edge in shallow drawers where they can be handled by the public. In one set of drawers the cards are arranged according to the authors of the books; in another according to the subject treated of in the book; in a third, according to the title of the book. This arrangement has been found the simplest and most useful to the public, and is moreover elastic enough to suit both small and large libraries as well as libraries that are rapidly growing. The drawers for these cards are arranged in a neat but handsome case which of itself is an ornament to the library. The magazine and other periodicals of the library form one of its most attractive features, and are so numerous that the last numbers cover ninety square feet of tables. Over twenty-five contain matter like puzzles, rebuses, charades, music, chess, checkers, &c., after the ceremony Mr. Hubby went over | connected with in-door amusements; over ten are full of cartoons and humorous articles or illustrations; over a dozen are full of fine artistic illustrations; anfrom the house and reaching the rooms of her parents, when she informed them decoration of homes; some fifteen show up the latest styles and fashions of ladies' dress; eight are especially suited to the young people; a dozen treat of science and mechanics; another dozen of politics and general progress; ten of military and naval matters; a dozen of general news, and over two dozen of general literature. Nothing has been left undone to make this library an honor to Wilmington and the equal in quality of any library in the United States. Advertisements, elsewhere in our columns, invite the public to visit the rooms and see what is being done. What the library needs most at present is more subscribers. The rates of subscription are so low as to be within the reach of everybody. A little help from everybody will make the present library a > permanent thing and something for Wilmington to be proud of.

REV. SAM JONES. A Wilmingtonian's Impressions of the Revivalist and his Work in Charlotte. Editor Star: As the public seem always interested in the noted Evangelist

Rev. S. P. Jones, familiarly known as

'Sam Jones," perhaps a few impressions made on a Wilmingtonian may interest your readers. First the Tabernacle. It is about 100 by 200 feet; will seat 5,000 and 6,000 can be accommodated. It is lighted by gas and electricity, and instead of a floor the ground is covered with cotton seed, making it noiseless. A raised platform is erected on the east side for the use of the choir, which numbers two hundred, and the speaker's hearing of each other and can visit at desk, which is immediately in front of the choir, The music is fine; one piano and two organs are used, and the sing-ing is led by Prof. E. O. Excell, who was manager of the State Sunday School work of Illinois, until engaged by Mr.

Iones. He is a good leader, and the book used is a collection compiled by him; many of the pieces being his own compositions. Mr. Jones has, in all the descriptions I have ever seen of him, been styled a tall, wiry man. To me he seems rather undersize, slight build, but not at all wiry. His hair and mustache are very black and his eyes very keen and piercing. His style of delivery is conversational and easy, and his peculiar manner of putting things has made his name famous. To quote his own words "his way of saying things is the only thing he has a patent right on. He is original, and the sermons play on a level with the crowd. I throw my fodder on the ground, and anything from a giraffe to a goat can reach it." I think many people who have never heard him, but who have read extracts from his sermons, are prejudiced against him because the points he wishes to illustrate are not given. I had thought of drawing a comparison between him and Mr. Pearson, but it is impossible; they are too different in every way. He has stirred up every farm, and from what we can learn it is the last place in Louisiana. And you tell the people not to listen to what that squash-headed Rideout says in respect to our people coming out here to farm on Mr. John P. Richardson's plantation. It is true in many places they pay more for labor on farms down here than the people in North Carolina, but they charge so much more for groceries and
