Prof. Miller and his certainly excellent band, had very kindly and very generously consented to furnish music free, thus encouraging Capt. Bixby in his noble efforts, and giving our citizens some unusually fine orchestral music. The selections were varied, and all parts of the overtures, of solo-playing, and full orchestra were rendered in a style that was simply superb. There was the finest shading and the fullest instrumentation, and the clarionet, cornet and xylophone solos showed master-like skill. Prof. Miller also plays that king of instruments, the violin, with a masterhand and guides and controls the music of his orchestra in a highly pleasing manner. They clearly demonstrate the fact that they have undergone much fine drill and practice, and that their absorbing idea seems to be to render the best music in the best possible style.

The programme printed in full in our members. last Sunday's issue, was carried out, and in addition to the pieces therein named. a xylophone solo with orchestral accompaniment was grandly rendered by special request, and in response to a rousing encore, that familiar, ever charming and ever welcome solo, "Way down upon the Suwance river," was finely played on the same instrument.

One of the most wonderful things of its kind was a piece entitled "Ten Minutes with Minstrels." This medley of grave and gay songs melodies, jigs, etc.. and banjo solos, was charming in the ex-

His Lecture in Raleigh Tuesday Night The Raleigh (hronicle says of this distinguished speaker (who will lecture on "Backbone" at the Opera House in Wilmington, Friday night)-

A large audience greeted Rev. Thos. Jr., at Metropolitan Hall last Dixon, night. He was introduced by Governor Fowle, who spoke words of deserved praise of this distinguished North Caroinian. Mr. Dixon spoke over an hour, his subject being "Playing the Fool." It was a bright, witty, entertaining lecture, and was truly sui generis. The last forty minutes was truly excellentof a high order of humor and pathos. He is a good story-teller, and illustrated his points with laugh-provoking jokes.
