Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, thinks the Republican statesmen and protected manufacturers ought to be satisfied with the tariff of 1864, when the national debt was more than twice as large as now, and the "infant" industries were considerably more infantile than they are now, when they ought to be pretty full grown.

An imaginative contemporary says perhaps the reason why Tom Reed wears a sash is because his front elevation resembles a bay window. This is not the reason. It is because the sash keeps him together and makes him bold and brave.

THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE GUARD.

A Cloudy Day with Slight Showers---Artillery Drill---Visit from the Wilmington Light Infantry-Review of the Troops by Gov. Fowle--- Musical Entertainment---Programme for To-

The weather was cool and the heavens cloudy vesterday in camp, with occasional slight showers, but the rainfall was not of such volume as to materially interfere with the duties of the day.

At about 10 o'clock in the forenoon a great many of the military left camp and proceeded to the battery to witness the artillery practice, but were considerably disappointed to find that no ammunition had arrived with which to load the guns and mortars. The sergeant in charge of the artillery squad, however, gave a very interesting exhibition of the drill used in heavy artillery practice, such as the movements of the battery, trailing, firing, &c., by which the interested soldier could learn much of the business. Sergeant Hatcher, who has charge of the squad, explained each movement in the plain and simple language of a soldier who fully understood all the details of movements, and then gave the necessary orders to the men, and they were promptly executed. The exhibition embraced the manual for a seige gun carrying 128 pounds, and a seacoast mortar carrying a 102 pound shell.

The exhibition being concluded, the soldiers left, many of them to stop at Wrightsville and some of them to return to camp. The latter number was so small however, that the company streets had an almost deserted appearance until the afternoon, when attracted by the number of young ladies arriving on the early afternoon trains to visit the military, and, partly on account of duties required to be performed, they returned to their quarters, and the camp soon presented a livlier scene

Right here it is proper to state what should have been stated yesterday, that the Governor's escort to camp last Friday morning, consisted of the Warren Guards, Capt. Macon, of Warrenton, (Co. F) of the First Regiment; the Hornet's Nest Riflemen, Capt. Robertson, of Charlotte, (Co. E) of the Fourth Regiment, temporarily attached to the First Regiment, and the Vance Guards Capt. Perry, of Henderson. (Co. C) of the Third Regiment; the battalion being under the command of Maj. E. G. Harrell, of the First Regiment, and, as previously stated, preceded by the Third Regiment Band. The officers and men in camp make much complaint of the mail service, saying that letters are a needlessly long time in reaching them. This should not be, for the soldiers are anxious to hear from their home folks, and when expected letters reach them two or three days behind time they have good reason to be angry. Efforts will be made to have the trouble remedied, but with what effect remains to be seen.

The Wilmington Light Infantry, under the command of Capt. W. R. Kenan, with thirty-three men, rank and file, marched into camp in the afternoon, and presented a fine appearance. They first halted in front of Adjutant General Glenn's headquarters, and having ordered arms and come to parade rest, the Adjutant General greeted the visitors in a few appropriate remarks, after which the company marched to Col. Olds' headquarters and stacked arms, and then paid their respects to the Governor. The men then looked about the camp and renewed their acquaintance with the military present, and passed a short time quite agreeably.

At 6 o'clock the regiments passed before the Governor in grand review, at the close of which there was the regular dress parade, and the soldiers were dismissed for the day. Soon after supper the men assembled in the neighborhood of the pavilion to have the benefit of the entertainment prepared for them under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The programme, as published in yesterday's issue of the STAR was carried out, almost to the letter, and the fine instrumental and vocal were interesting, well delivered, and most heartily applauded.

To-day the regular exercises will be dispensed with, save the necessary ceremony of guard mounting in the morning. The Governor will remain in camp all day, and it was expected that there would be divine service in the morning, but as both chaplains were absent last night, with no certainty of returning in season, it is doubtful if services will be held until night, at which time there will be religious services under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Prominent officers and men of the military are expected to take a prominent part in these services.

There was a large attendance from the city at the review and parade; many remained over until the last train before return, while those in charge of children or those duties compelling them to return, took the 5 o'clock train.

There were slight occasional showers throughout the day, but they were not of enough importance to materially mar the pleasures and interest of the occa-

A New Enterprise. The manufacturing establishment recently erected on Smith's Creek, near the city, and about which there was so much mystery-no one outside of the proprietors knowing for what purpose it was intended-it is learned on good authority is for the manufacture of oil and other products from pine wood by destructive distillation-the same as manufactured at the Carolina Oil and Creosote Works, but with different apparatus. The plant, it is said, will cost from twenty-five to thirty thousand dollars. All the proprietors are Northern men.

Last Fall Mayor Fowler issued a warrant for the arrest of Bryan Gaston, a colored man charged with larceny in Brunswick county and burglary in Onslow. Gaston was arrested and sent to Onslow, where he was tried and convicted, but subsequently made his escape. Information was furnished Mayor Fowler some time ago that Gaston, after his escape, had committed another burglary, and was on his way to Wilmington. He was seen several times in the country outside of the city, and a few days ago information was given at the City Hall that he had broken into a house in Brunswick and stolen a gun and other articles. Police officers were sent to arrest him at the ferry, but he avoided the officers and crossed the river to the city on a lighter, with a gun and bundle in his possession.
