The Bessie Aground.

The steamer Bessie while on the way up from Southport yesterday morning in the dense fog, got aground about fiv miles below the city, and was detained until high tide, about half-past one o'clock in the afternoon. In the meantime, some of her passengers were taken off by the revenue cutter Colfax and brought up to the city, others came up in a row boat, and one was landed on the east bank of the river and walked to | lips of the pious Hebrew for twenty-four town.

- The Hettie Bernard Chase Company which were to appear at the Opera House here on the 29th and 30th inst. have cancelled their engagement.

- Electric lights are being put in the Tabernacle for the Rev. Sam Jones meetings. There will be three large arc lights-like the street lamps-and three sixty-five candle-power incandescent lamps will furnish light for the platform. - The Sam Jones Choir will prac-

Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement, begins at sunset to-day, and will be observed by Israelites wherever member of the "scattered nation" exists. This is the most holy of all days in the Jewish calendar and is religiously observed by all, even by those who regard none of the other festivals of their religion. The day of atonement is set apart as a day of fasting; neither food nor drink is permitted to pass the hours; from sunset this evening till sunthen sworn and Mr. M. Bellamy of it at good counsel for the prisoner, announced that the line of defence would be that the deceased did not come to his death by the blows received at the hands of Koch; that for four months deceased was constantly intoxicated; that at the military encampments held the past summer, at Wrightsville, deceased frequently engaged in altercations and received several severe and deadly blows-one at the hands of a soldier with a beer bottle on the head, that the deceased stated to parties that he was suffering from these blows; that in an altercation with another party he was struck on the head with a beer glass; that blows received from other parties caused the death of deceased, that intoxication for four months or more, when excitement ensued, was just as likely to cause an effusion of blood on the brain as a blow on the head; that whatever the habits of deceased were prior to 1890, from that time he was a desperate character, always drunk and always in altercations, and frequently threatening to kill persons with whom he quarrelled. Dr. F. W. Potter, the first witness for the defence, was called at half-past five p. m. In answer to questions he stated that he was a practicing physician and had experience where death resulted from injuries of the brain; was called to attend the deceased on one occasion when deceased had been on a spree; he recuperated rapidly; saw him again when he was drunk.

The Solicitor objected. Two doctors-Drs. Wood and Lanewho attended Ramsden and made the post mortem examination, testified that he died, unmistakably, from a blow on the head, and both of them said that it was impossible that death resulted from disease or drunkenness. Now comes ship of the Almighty God, another witness who did not examine deceased when struck or at the post mortem examination. The Court said that this was an effort on the part of the defence to contradict the testimony of other experts by another expert, and ruled that the evidence was competent. Dr. Potter continuing, said that it was over three months since he had treated deceased; had not attended him since; was present at the post mortem examination; saw the clot of blood caused by effusion. Asked how long effusion might go on before death resulted, said that effusion and absorption going on at the same time, it might continue a long time; effusion does take place sometimes without any injury whatever. After the conclusion of Dr. Potter's examination, which lasted some time, two other witnesses-both from the Sound-were examined, and the Court took a recess until this morning.
