The roof was destroyed and the upper part of the house considerably damaged. The flames spread to a house adjoining on the east, occupied by Mr. W. J. Both houses are the property of Mr. George Kidder and are insured. The damage is estimated at about two hundred dollars. The furniture in both houses was removed, but some of it was damaged by water and removal.

night fire broke out in the naval store yard of Mr. W. A. Martin, on the west side of the river, nearly opposite in from box No. 24, corner of Market and Water streets, and all the engines, reels and trucks and many of the firemen were soon assembled the foot of hooks, and in the meantime some of the firemen found a flat boat at the Princess street dock upon which the steam fire engine Atlantic was ferried across the river and went to work to suppress the conflagration. The steam tug Marie, Capt. Edgar Williams, made her appearance in the stream shortly after the alarm was sounded, and ranging alongside the wharves on the west side of the river, threw a stream of water on the roofs of war ehouses that were in danger of takng fire fro m talling sparks.

The fire wa sconfined ot the yard. It made a big blaze and a great smoke, and gave the firemen lots of trouble, but when they got fairly to work they soonf had it under control. A warehouse on the yard filled with turpentine was in great danger but the prompt action o Chief Newman in securing a lighter and sending the "Atlantic" engine across the river, saved it and prevented the further progress of the flames. The "Atlantic" boys had two streams playing on the flames through twelve hundred feet of hose The members of the Hook and Ladder Company assisted them and did good
