partment will, for a second time, call amination by the Department. Some months ago the Department asked for designs, and about nine hundred were submitted, coming from all parts of the country. They were examined by a commission of postmasters, with Postand most of them were found to be were a few good boxes, but the commisstill better could be devised. It is the object of the Department to select one or two of the best designs and recommend them for general adoption in all towns where the free delivery system is in use. It is estimated in the Postoffice at least two hours a day in waiting for persons to answer their doorbells, and the aggregate of this lost time for the entire country is enormous. Most of this delay, it is believed, could be saved, and the service greatly cheapened and expedited if all houses were provided with letter-boxes and the carriers had only to slip the letters in, ring the bell and go on to the next house.

Further Particulars of the Shooting at Cartersville, Ga.

The Atlanta Constitution gives the following particulars of the fatal shooting of a negro at Cartersville, Ga., last Saturday, by Chas. Jones, a brother of Rev. Sam P. Jones, as mentioned in the STAR's dispatches last Sunday;

This afternoon at 4.40 o'clock, Mr.

Charlie Jones shot and fatally wounded Jim Young, a prominent negro. The shooting occurred on East Main street, near G. W. Satterfield & Son's store. Some time ago Young interfered in a matter between Mr. Jones and another man, and used some very impudent language. Since then, on different occasions, he has repeated his abusive talk. This afternoon Mr. Jones and Young came across each other, and the former drew his pistol and fired three shots, each taking effect in the center of Young's body. An immense crowd soon gathered, and after the deadly shots had been fired Jones turned to walk away.

the shoulder and said "Charlie, give me that pistol." Without a word the still smoking weapon was handed the officer. He was then taken to a cell in the jail, Intense excitement prevails. The negroes are much wrought up over the affair, and it was feared that an attempt of a violent nature might be made by them. At a late hour, however, everything is fairly quiet in town. Your correspondent has just come from the bedside of the wounded negro, and the doctors say that his death is only a question of a few hours. The principal figure in this terrible tragedy is a brother of the great evangelist, Rev. Sam P. Jones. The entire sympathy of the community goes out to Mr. Jones' wife and brother.

Evangelist Fife's Meeting.

The Charlotte News says that "Evangelist Fife's meetings at Mooresville closed Sunday night. The number of eonverts made and backsliders reclaimed foots up 600. Mr. Fife was presented with $750. The sum of $400 was raised to liquidate expenses, and over $2,000 was raised to build a Presbyterian parsonage. Mr. Fife will be at Louisburg next week, and at Henderson the week
