There are seven ex-Speakers of the House of Representatives living, but only one ex-Czar.

There is no danger of Senator Petter, of Kansas, not attending to basiness. One of the first things he did after getting to Washington was to draw his first month's salary in advance.

Estee, C. P. Huntington's man, is ahead in the California Senatorial race. But he has only forty-five votes and must get thirteen more to wie. The way California legislatures are run in matters of this kind it will take some cash to capture

Out of the 2,849 Presidential post offices in existence March 1st Mr. Harrison has got away with the incumbents in all but 290 of them and these are probably hold over. Republicans. Can Mr. Harrison's devotion to the letter and spirit of civil service reform be questioned?

The Pennsylvania Legislature is investigating the English sparrow. Uncle Jerry Rusk, of the great American garden seed distributing department, devoted much of his valuable time and great talents to investigating the aforesaid sparrow, but still it sparroweth and seems to be nimble, cheery and prolific as ever.

Hon. Jerry Simpson, of Kansas, struck the marrow of the tariff question recently when he said: | "When I raise corn (which he did before he turned his attention to raising Republican scalps), I want to exchange it where I can get the most coats, over coats, underclothes, dress goods and socks." This shows he is levelheaded, and disposes of the slander that he has no use for socks,

When it comes to talking on the tariff, Ben Butterworth, Republican, of Cincinnati, is quite level-headed. In a conversation recently, he said, "the clatter about those opposing a prohibitory tariff being free traders, is asinine. No Republican ever heard of such extreme tariff rates as those imposed by the McKinley bill as essential to our industries until within a few years."

Prince Jerome Napoleon, who died in Rome Monday, was the son of Jerome Bonaparte who married Miss Patterson, of Baltimore. After the marriage was dissolved by order of the Emperor Napoleon, Jerome married Princess Catharine of Wurtemburg. Prince Napoleon was their son. He was 68 years old, a man of hne abilities, but lacked stability of character. His vacillation gave him the nickname of Plon Plon, by which he was known in Paris. In 1886 he was expelled from France with other princes, since when he has lived a retired life, making his home principally in Rome.

RALEIGH, March 18. The Supreme Court have rendered fifty-five opinions at the present term up to date, and have about kept up with the docket so far as arguments are concerned. In glancing at the docket to-day I see that there have been argued from the Sixth district twelve cases, and opinions rendered in three. From New Hanover, the cases of Tucker vs. Tucker, Bagg vs. W., C. & R. R. Co., Van Amringe'vs. Taylor, King vs. Rheer, and McIlhenny vs. Wilmington Savings & Trust Co., have been argued, and the latter case disposed of, the Court holding there was no error. The other cases from the district argued, are Brown vs. Raynor, town of Richlands vs. Koonce, Onslow, reversed; Bishop vs. Ludberry, Onslow, no error; Hudson vs. Jordan; Perry vs. Scott; Whitman vs. Shingleton; Blount vs. Washington. The Court is now engaged in hearing appeals from the Seventh district.

There was a fatal tragedy in the city Mr. Nat. J. Cheek, a carpenter by trade, was up-town at a late hour and not returning home, his friends became alarmed at his absence. In the meantime a grand-child-infant of Mr. Skidmore ing that the child was about to die, they sent an older boy after the old man. He found him, and telling him of the trouto the railroad track between the two depots, instead of following been run over by a night freight train. In the meantime the child died also. Whether Mr. Cheek went to sleep on the track has not yet been determined, and this is supposed to have been at the nottom of the sad affair.

Judge Winston will hold a term of the Superior Court for the trial of crimnal cases here next week. Clerk Thompson informs your correspondent that the docket is a light one and that there are very few jail cases. The papers have been inclined to poke a little good humored fun at the Railroad Commissioners , because of their first meeting having been an-nounced for April 1st-All Fool's dayso they reconsidered the matter and have had an informal meeting; but one of them-Mr. Beddingfield, of Wakehaving been taken with the measles, the Raleigh has no street cars now, and there seems little probability of there being any for some time, as the several companies are entangled in a maze of misunderstandings and all efforts at compromising have hitherto failed.

Evan Stanovich, the man with the performing bear and a miscellaneous assortment of small children, who spent two or three days in Wilmington a few weeks ago and who was with difficulty run out of town, has turned up at Newbern. The Journal says "as he was starting out of that city in the atternoon with his family, his bear, two dogs, a pony and cart, he was followed by a jeering crowd making sport of them, throwing missiles and giving annoyance in other ways. Stanovich submitted until near the limits of the city, then drawing a line on the ground he informed his tormentors in his broken English, "Cross dat line me shootee you." They not heeding his warning he kept his word. Taking his gun, which looked like a fowling piece of most ancient invention, and which, we are told, was loaded only with bits of glass, he stooped and fired near the ground, peppering the legs of several colored children. He was soon after arrested sessions all taken to the police station.'

CRIMINAL COURT.

In the Criminal Court yesterday, W. H. Colburn and Beckie Evans were convicted of unlawful cohabitation. Mr. Marsden Bellamy, counsel for defendants, made a motion in arrest of judgment, the bill of indictment under offence with which are charged, was committed "on or nounced, but it is probable that a new bill of indictment will have to be drawn and sent to the grand jury to-day. Both defendants are in jail.
