THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.

Southern Troops Wore Blue Uniforms at the Beginning of the War.

Two gentlemen, conversing yesterday about the State Guard's adoption of the regulation blue uniform and the feeling evoked thereat in some quarters, one of them remarked: "It's a fact, nevertheless, that when the war began most of the Southern troops wore the blue and the Yankees wore the gray. At the first fight in Virginia—the battle of Bethel, on the 10th day of June, 1861 when the [Federal General Butler with about 5,000 troops attacked and was signally defeated by the First North Carolina infantry, the Richmond Howitzers and one or two local militia companies, numbering altogether about 1,500 men under command of Gen. Magruder-very near distinguish them from the soldiers of the enemy. When the affair was over and Butler was in rapid retreat toward all of the ten companies of the North Carolina regiment were uniformed in blue; the two Fayetteville companies were, certainly. And Col. D. H. Hill, commanding the regiment, acting under the impression that the Federal troops were also dressed in blue, caused strips of white cloth to be issued to the men of his command with instructions that they were to be tied on the left arms of the men as a mark to Hampton, Va., the North Carolina boys found much to their astonishment that all the dead of the enemy in their front wore light gray uniforms, with the exception of a red-legged zouave and an officer, Maj. Winthrop, whose body was dressed in blue."

WEATHER FORECAST Along the Atlantic Coast for the Month of

The weather forecast for May, as made by the Weather Bureau, is:

Fair weather will prevail generally over the North Atlantic, with occasional northerly gales along the American coast, and moderate northwesterly gales along the trans-Atlantic steamship routes, north of the 40th parallel. Northers in the Gulf of Mexico will occur less frequently, and will not last long, but are liable to be of great violence. There will be a notable increase of fog off the Grand Banks, due to the northward movement of the Gulf Stream and the southward extension of ice brought down by the Labrador current, fog being occasioned whenever moist southerly winds are chilled by contact with the ice and cold water to the northward. Icebergs may be encountered almost as far south as the 40th parallel, between the 46th and 52d meridians, and may be more numerous than usual east of the 40th meridian.

THE RICE CROP.

Planters Say Eveything is in Good Shape Rice planters along the Cape Fear speak encouragingly of the outlook for the coming season, and if they are as fortunate as they were last year will be very well satisfied.

Reports from South Carolina are that the recent cool spell has somewhat retarded the growth of the rice crop. The crops are looking very well, yet they are a little late. The farmers along the Combahee did not plant their rice until about the 25th. It takes from a week to twelve days for the rice to come up.

The Colored Orator on Temperance,

The Greenville, S. C. News says: The Rev. J. C. Price lectured at Ferguson's hall last Thursday night on "Temperance." The reputation of the orator and his lecture Tuesday night sufficed to draw a large audience, which tollowed the speaker's every word with interest. In his two lectures the speaker has given his race some wholesome advtce. He has told them not to be ashamed that they are negroes and the more "kinky" their hair the prouder they should be. A number of the most intelligent white people. They listened to him with wrapt attention.

The Pension Board.

Under an amendment to the Pension law made by the recent Legislature. an advisory board was created in each county, to consist of five ex-Confederates who served in the war between the States, to act in connection with the county board-which consists of the commissioners and the clerk of the Superior Court-in determining the merits of applicants for pensions. The follow ing are the advisory board as appointed for this county: Col. E. D. Hall, chairman, Col. W. L. DeRosset, Capt. T. C. Lewis, Capt. Chas. L. Cowles and Lieut. T. A. Shepard.

DEEP SEA FISHING.

Pointers for Our Local Fishermen That. May Bring Wealth to Their Coffers The Fish Commission avers that the great shelf of the Atlantic from the northern limits of the banks southward to and beyond the capes of Virginia are aswarm with fishes, excellent for food, that are unknown to our domestic markets, simply for the reason that no practicable method has hitherto been applied for their capture. sea fishing have for some time been shape of a pocket, seventy-five feet long, spread under by a stick of wood, which goes on runners like a sled in order that the net can be hauled over the bottom easily. It is weighted with lead, and being dragged close to or on the bottom of the sea, fish like soles and flounders, that hug the bottom. The schooner Mary F. Chisholm, 76 tons, of Gloucester, Capt. Beadford, made the first experiment with a beam trawl imported from England. She returned to Gloucester on March 30 with an immense catch of cod, haddock and hallibut captured in the trawl, besides 5,000 lemon soles, which sold for four cents apiece wholesale. The captain threw overboard an immense quantities of soles because he did not know that they were salable. His trawl net came up time after time so overloaded with fish that the greatest difficulty was experienced in getting them to the surface. So great were the catches that it took as much as nine hours to fetch the trawl on board, so that most of the fish were too badly injured to be saved.

For To-day. An area of low pressure was developed vesteday in the Southwest and apparently moving Eastward. There was also a slight barometric depression off the coast of North Carolina. Heavy rain occurred in South Dakota and the Western portion of Nebraska. Light rains in Tennessee, the lower Mississippi Valley, in North Carolina and Virginia. It has become ten degrees colder in Minnesota and the Dakotas; warm weather continues over the cotton, belt. At 8 a. m. light to fresh Southwest winds prevailed along the South Atlantic coast (except 26 N. E. at Kitty Hawk, N. C.,) and light to fresh Northwest winds along the Middle Atlantic and New England coasts.

The following are the weather forecasts for to-day:

Sunday night, south winds.

For North Carolina and South Caroina, generally fair, slightly warmer Sunday night, south winds.
