The Philadelphia Record one of the very best newspapers and straightest Democratic journals in this country a few days ago celebrated its fourteenth anniversary as a penny paper. One of the incidents of the celebration was the publication of the issue of that day from paper made out of poplar wood which twenty-two hours before that was felled in the forest. When a tree can be cut, converted into paper, printed and sent to the four corners of the world in twentytwo hours it is pretty quick work.

CHINA AND THE CHINESE.

Synopsis of Dr. DuBose's Lecture Delivered in St. Andrews' Church.

Those who heard the delightful lecture delivered by Dr. DuBose in our city a few weeks ago were anxious to hear this earnest and graphic speaker again. The address at St. Andrews Church on Wednesday evening last was remarkably well condensed, the subject of missions was scientifically handled and the position which China is to occupy in the world's history was with keen foresight foretold. Our boys and girls had an interesting geography lesson most pleasingly told.

The address was introduced with a few thoughts on missionary literature now current throughout our country. But few of us, comparatively, can go as missionaries, but we can all help those who do go, and the help would in almost all cases double itself if we would trouble ourselves to become acquainted with the needs of the heathen world, The missionary can seldom present these needs personally, but reliable missionary literature can always be obtained for much less than we often spend for many periodicals which only fill the mind with trash: One minister said that he knew of no journal equal to the one published by the Southern Presbyterian Church, and that minister was Rev. Mr. McClure, pastor-elect of St. Andrew's Church. Here the speaker commented on the fournal and advised every family of the congregation to subscribe for it at once, and devise means for its immediate distribution, Nothing would be more gratifying to the coming pastor than to know that his flock was imbued with the missionary spirit. Our personal responsibility in sending the gospel was appealing-the grave duty of sending some portion of our income to enlighten those sitting in darkness sunk deep into every heart. Recently in Atlanta a family bereft of a little child, asked, how can we now best show our love to Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me"? By sending the light of that Saviour to the little ones now in darkness, came the missionary in China. The wonderful work now being done by the Woman's Auxiliaries was dwelt upon. It is to be noticed that the work in this line is usually set in motion and continues through the entire efforts of two or three fully consecrated women At Alexandria the Women's Society raised last year $650-mainly through the indefatigable labor of one woman. Now the church seems enthusiastic and the missionary spirit kindled is something remarkable. Many churches are now supporting a missionary's family. One church he cited supported three missionaries. In Asheville a prominent member offered the support of Mr. Lapsley. Since then the church has contributed $2,200 to foreign missions. If God raises up missionaries see to it that the church, which daily prays, "Thy Kingdom come," sends those missionaries. Christ, who burst the bands of the grave, will now, by missionaries filled with the Holy Ghost, burst the response. That family now supports a bands of heathenism. A review of the territory occupied by the Presbyterian Church was given. Though the outlook is encouragingfrom Kiangsu as a centre in the provinces of Suchow, Kiangsue, and Chichiang, surrounding these are many cities with over 150,000 inhabitants, and not a single missionary among them. One province containing over 15,000,000 inhabitants has never heard the name of Jesus. The numbers seem appalling, yet the Holy Spirit is promised to remove mountains.

The educational system was presented. Marvellous in many respects, yet very weak in others. Natives noted for their ingenuity and remarkable memories. As our boys repeat the names of successive Presidents, the Chinese youths name in order the long line of Emperors which would seem months of study. In China, God has shown his providence. The people teach us patience. The walls of Suchow, traced 2,400 years ago, and the streets of the city laid out for ten and one half millenniums past, show too plainly their proverbial patience. Shall we not be patient in teaching them the truths of the gospel and if light dawns slowly shall we get discouraged? In the western provinces a father, beginning a salt well, patiently plods at his task with a bar of iron fifteen feet long tapped with steel, for thirty years -his son takes up the work, boring through the solid rock, and perhaps not until the third generation is the briny fluid obtained. Hard by another man is boring an oil well, and thus in close conjunction the needed material to prepare the salt for use is found. The Chinese teach us how peaceful a nation can be-no bars or locks-and if a murder occurs the Governor is held responsible until the murderer is found. It is a beautiful sight to behold how the commandment of promise is inherent. When the father of a household enters the boys arise to pay him honor as their lord and superior. The family relation is preserved and the census is taken by families.

Honesty prevails. The whole tronts of the stores are taken out; and as the passer-by beholds the wonderful dis-play of satin and silks he is lost, in every Savannah. color of the rainbow. Money is transmitted with perfect safely, on account of the enviable bank system. No horses or mules are ever seen on the streetsmen are the beasts of burden; the coolies with their sedans are seen on every

China has eighteen provinces, and the missionary has access to every one of them. Anywhere he can carry the message of salvation. Often the most potent sermons are preached in the open street-way, at the tea inn, or sailing along the canal. The merchants who live on the eastern border are not allowed to sell goods in the interior or western provinces. If one attempts it he is immediately arrested and sent to the Governor. The man with the Bible is never molested. People in America, especially those living in small towns, cannot comprethe vast masses of people that swarm the land of China. The land is filled to overflowing, and contains a population of 500,000,000, exceeding that of all the nations of Europe combined. A congregation can be gathered at any time the doors of the chapel are thrown open; people come and go restlessly, but sometimes they will sit as if riveted to their seats, drinking in the news of salvation.

The mineral wealth is marvellous. The coal beds are twenty times as large as those of Europe; iron is found in large blocks on the mountain sides, and gold, silver, lead, etc., equal to the deposits of the Rockies, Appalachians and all European systems, are being constantly unearthed. The sun of this mighty nation is just rising; unknown wealth is being discovered. Conservative forms are slowly giving away and signs of aggressive movements are advancing. Western civilization is going to be adopted. Buddhism will be overthrown, and the Emperor, now known as the Brother of the Sun, will be supplanted by the Sun of Righteousness. During the first part of the present century there were only twenty missionaries in China; forty years ago there were 60 missionaries; fourteen years ago there were 400, and now there are 1,400. In two years there will be no doubt 2,000 missionaries on that field, and as we hear of the colleges and schools preparing now the force, surely Zion should arise and put on her beautiful garments and come up with the Lord against the mighty. One million souls every day go down in China never having heard of Christ or His Bible. The debt system so disastrous to American growth is unknown in China. At the end of every year debts are promptly paid and at mid-night often on this yearly judgment day men can be seen going along collecting and paying debts before the new year arise upon them. All account books can be burnt and business go on uninterrupted.

Agriculture is honored; every acre of land is cultivated. The rice is sown on a small plot and the tender plants transplanted on larger fields, which are as productive now as they were two thousand years ago. The value of the soil is inexhaustible. The mulberry trees produce two crops yearly. Tea requires more labor than we estimate. The leaves are not only gathered separately, but one by one they are rolled by hand and then packed. The Chinese make great use of bamboo. Their houses and bridges are constructed of it; they eat the tender shoots and make buckets, mats, ropes and various househeld articles of it. The wax tree exudes a juicy substance which is used extensively and often whole groves of trees look like glistening columns. The varieties of climate correspond to the United States. The Yangtse river bears the same relation to that country as the Mississippi does to this. Our five great lakes are offset by the mighty western lakes of China. Plains larger than our own plains and rolling prairies stretch before the eye in wonderful beauty, and our railroads serve the same purpose as their intricate system of canals. Their mountain scenery is grand. In wonderful beauty line after line of mountain peaks roll away in the distance toward the western provinces. Eleven thousand worshippers at cock-crowing ascend some of these peaks, and just as the first rays of the sun gleam in the dawn eleven thousand voices shout Buddha's glory! Buddha's glory! until every mountain peak and vale resounds with the praise. We go to tell them of the Sun of Righteousness, and may the day be not far distant when these same hills and valleys will re-echo with praises to Him who lived and died and maketh intercession for us.

SEVERE STORM.

A Big Blow-Reports of Damage by Wind and Hail.

The fag end of a big storm struck Wilmington about five o'clock yesterday afternoon. It came hurriedly from the north after a bright clear day and caught many people on the streets. The wind seemed to come from all directions, and raised blinding clouds of dust that filled the air and made it a matter of impossibility for one to see objects across the street. The wind was followed by rain that soon laid the dust and cooled the atmosphere.

The storm did no damage around town beyond blowing down a few trees, one of which levelled the telephone wires near Parsley's mill. There was a heavy wind storm along the line of the W. & W. Railroad, this side of Goldsboro, but no reports of damage.

The storm extended along the line of the Carolina Central Railroad, and the C. F. & Y. V. At Fayetteville, wind and hail broke many window glass, tore down awnings and levelled trees and telegraph poles. The Postal Company's wires went down during the afternoon.
