On motion of Alderman Fowler the petition was referred to the Mayor with power to act. Alderman Fishblate asked if drays had been numbered in compliance with the city ordinance and special instructions. The Chief of Police said that so far 287 drays had been numbered and he did not think that there were three hundred drays in the city. It was suggested that the numbers should be placed on both sides of a dray, as the ordinance requires. Alderman Fowler, from the Market Committee, called attention to the necessity of repairs to Front street market house. The brick pavement, he said, was undermined by rats. He suggested that a concrete pavement should be laid, and moved for an appropriation of $1,750 for this purpose. The Mayor and Alderman Post approved the recommendation, and the motion of Alderman Fowler was adopted. The Mayor called attention to the necessity of electing a Mayor pro tem., as Alderman Adrian's term therefor had nearly expired. On Alderman Fowler's motion, Alderman Post was elected Mayor pro tem. for six months from the termination of Alderman Adrian's term. Alderman Post spoke in regard to the docks that were filling up with sand and foul matter from drains and sewers. He had made an estimate and found that it would cost $500 to repair the public sewers and drains emptying into the docks and extending their outlet to tidelevel. To dredge the docks would cost $2,000 more, but the committee did not propose to go into this now. Alderman Post's motion to appropriate $500 for the purpose mentioned was adopted. Alderman Bell called attention to the ordinance prohibiting horses being driven at a trot around street corners, and suggested that it be reconsidered or modified. After discussion of the matter, Alderman Nixon moved that the ordinance be repealed, and the motion prevailedthe vote standing 4 to 4 and the Mayor voting ave. Aldermen Nixon offered a resolution reciting that members of the Board should receive compensation for their services, and asked its reference to the Finance Committee. Alderman Fishblate objected. He said that the present members of the Board had been elected and accepted office without any idea of pay; and it was not proper that such resolution should be entertained. After further discussion, the Mayor ruled that the resolution was not properly before the Board, and it was pass-

The Board of Assessors made the following report, viz: .

We have completed the valuation of real estate in Wilmington township and have to report as per list in the hands of Col. Jas. G. Burr, tax lister, aggregate value of taxable property, $5,184,770. In view of the very marked difference in values since 1887, (or perhaps it may be more proper to say since 1879, when there was a general reduction in valuation of 25 per cent., and there has been no material change since,) as evidenced by sales of property in all portions of the city, it has not been an easy matter to arrive at the "true market value," as required under the law; but we have carefully examined each lot, or parcel of property, and by all other means within our reach, fixed a value thereon, according to our best judgment. A partial revision of the whole has been made, section by section, and we have done our utmost to equalize values as nearly as possible. We beg to call your attention to the very large amount of property claimed to be exempt from taxation, aggregating $1.071.920, of which there is considerable rented and producing income, and which according to our construction of the tax law is liable to pay tax.

See section six, page 11, (which reads): 'That property held for investment, speculation or for rent, shall not be exempt." Also, section 21, which states precisely what shall be exempt. As an item of interest we have taken account of the number of new houses built during the past twelve months, and find south of Market street, 200

FUN AT KURE'S.

Fun was going on all day at Kure's bowling alley, and kept up long after the last train had left. Dressed in flags and banners his place was bright and inviting and the boys soon found him out. With dancing, bathing, fishing and eating, the morning ran swiftly on to afternoon when the crowd was swelled by the arrival of the afternoon train with about five hundred visitors.

This was the time, when the largest number was present, and looking along the beach for about one mile it seemed alive with people and the surf seemed speckled with bathers.

At 5.80 the first train home was packed, yet when it had left it seemed to make no difference in the number of people that remained over for the fireworks. These, under skillful management, towards nightfall lent a new beauty to the place, and closed in phosphorescent brightness a day that had had a busy day. At 9 a. m. she carried down a large number of people for Carolina Beach, The Rocks and Southport; and on her last trip up, after taking on a part of the Carolina Beach crowd, she had about all she wanted. Capt. Sellers seemed delighted, and was unremitting in his attentions to the passengers. She reached Wilmington at 9.15 p.m. THE FISHERMEN.

The STAR could not secure a list of the casualties among the finny tribes at other points; but the anglers at Carolina Beach and the Rocks who used 'rod and line did not have their usual good luck. About two miles off the Beach, however. the hand-liners bagged 1,500 pig fish, besides many other varieties. Coming back on the Passport, John Sellers gravely asserted that Jim Taylor caught a trout that was four feet long. Some of his auditors hesitated to accept this anecdote; but John was quick to announce that he had often seen trout five feet long. John took the prize tor the finest fish fabrication of the day.

Daniel liked more than one girl it was two." The second class prize was (as expressed by Mr. Kidder) a "silver pot for long sweetness," to Capt. H. M. Bowden. The third class prize-a silver waiter to Capt, Fennell. Both Capt. Bowden and Capt. Fennell responded in short speeches.

Just as the "Vixen" landed the gangway, which was crowded with ladies began to give way, but through the efforts of the gentlemen present the crowd was quietly moved off and no damage was done.

The judges were Messrs. W. C. Jones, J. K. Williams and Geo. Rountree, who gave perfect satisfaction in all their decisions.
