WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 8, 1891

THE SOUTH'S SHIPPING PRO-GRESS.

In noting the progress of the South attention is chiefly centered on her iron and other manufacturing industries. But there is progress in supremacy on the seas from the another direction which speaks quite as much for the future as the marvellous progress made in the development of the South's material resources and in the establishing of manufacturing enterprises.

A glance at the record of our Southern ports, which shows the progress of our ocean trade, will prove a revelation to even the wellinformed reader whose thought has not been turned in that direction. This is the more encouraging and significant because in the calculations on the South's future progress on industrial lines this was rarely taken into account, the figuring generally stopping at the sea shore, and yet Southern enterprise is moving quite as rapidly and is making quite as much of a mark on sea as it is on land, which is saying a Record, which keeps an Argus eye on Southern development and progress on land and sea, we are indebted for some interesting facts and figures showing the increase in the foreign trade of our Southern ports. It sums up the value of the exports of twenty Southern ports in the past eleven months ending May 31, at $321,179,-905, as compared with $301,451,277 for the corresponding period of last year. The total exports of the whole country amounted to $826,-823,644 compared with $804,717,334 tor the corresponding eleven months of last year, a gain of $22,106,310, $19,728,625 of which was in the South, while the increase of all the other ports in the United States was only $2,377,685, the increase in the Southern ports being nearly ten times as much as in the others. This phenomenal increase is an index of future possibilities when a concerted effort is made in the direction of developing our marine business, which has until recently attracted compara-

The figures above quoted apply only to foreign shipments and not to the coastwise trade which is also assuming very large proportions.

The ports showing the largest gains were Galveston $9,300,000; Charleston $8,000,000, Newport News $3,800,000, Norfolk and Portsmouth $2,200,000, Savannah $2,200,-

000, Wilmington $2,100,000. This rapid increase in our shipping trade is to be attributed to two causes, one the improvement of our harbors, which is strikingly illustrated in the marvellous increase at Galveston; the other is the railroad combinations between Western, waste because they couldn't find pur-

Southwestern and Southern roads, making Southern ports their termini, which is strikingly shown in the increase at Norfolk and Portsmouth. Most of these combinations have been effected within the past year, and are but the beginning of a traffic system which is going to show astonishing results in the near future, when the grain, cattle, pork, &c., of the great West seek foreign markets through Southern ports instead of through Northern ports as they formerly did. What has been here said refers only to the export business no note being made of the imports which must also have made noteworthy increase. The imports are doubtless small in comparison with the exports but the time is not far distant when they will be a mighty factor, too. In these days of thrift, enterprise, business competition, and necessarily close calculation, commerce moves on the cheapest, speediest, and most practicable lines. Every dollar saved on the cost of carriage and handling of goods enables the competing shipper or merchant to put his goods upon the market that much less and gives him just that much vantage ground in the battle of trade. The sagacious trader will seek the shortest, quickest and cheapest route to export or import his goods. The ships which carry Southern and Western products to foreign countries are not coming back empty but will bring something back in exchange for what they took out, and thus the import trade will grow and keep proportionate pace with the export trade.

From Liverpool to Cincinnati, for instance, by way of Wilmington, is about four hundred miles shorter than by way of New York, and of course, shorter to other Western commercial centers. This means that when the systems of Western and Southern roads is perfected, as it will be in the near future, for railroad operators and capitalists are now, and have been some time, working on that line, and the South has a merchant marine of her own which will necessarily grow out of these combinations and her increasing commerce, she is not only going to become a great commercial political outlook should be such as Northern ports, which in the past have had almost an exclusive monopoly of ocean traffic, as far as the ships of this country figured. That is written among the things inevitable. The South is moving not only upon terra firma but on the watery plain, and she is going to get there

MINOR MENTION.

Hon. F. G. Neidringhaus, ex-Re publican Congressman from St Louis, is one of the gentlemen whose tin-plate factory goes the rounds of the telegraph wires semi-occasionally. Every week or two he comes to the front and has something to say about his tin-plate factory and what he is going to do, not what he is doing. His last report is that his big plant was about ready and that by the 1st of August it would be turn-To the Baltimore Manufacturer's | ing out tin-plates at the rate of 600 boxes a day. In this way Mr. Neidringhaus is getting a good deal of tip top free advertising not only for his tin-plate shop, if he is going to have one, but for the other manufacturing enterprises in which he is engaged. Neidringhaus is a hustler who has an eye to business, and makes no bones about it. He was in the last Congress, and when the tariff bill was under discussion he bluntly told its supporters that he would vote against it if they raised the tariff on certain articles which he used in his manufactories at St. Louis. He also voted for the increase of duty on tin-plate, and when he felt satisfied the bill was going through proceeded immediately to order 50,000 boxes of Welsh tin-plate in anticipation of the advance in price. What he has not used in his stamp works or sold he has now stored in a warehouse. His net profit by this transaction was $50,000. This Republican patriot and ex-statesman knew what he was doing when he voted for the increase of duty on tin-plate.

> The State Board of Agriculture of Massachusetts is endeavoring to get some of the abandoned farms of that State into the market. Abandoned farms in Massachusetts, abandoned farms in New Hampshire, abandoned farms in Vermont. Abandoned farms in a section where people can come as near making a living by farming out of a granite rock as they can any where in the world. It is the very last section on the earth where we would look for abandoned farms. Abandoned farms means farms that the owners left to run chasers for them, not farms that they left simply because they fancied some other occupation, or preferred city to country life, but because they couldn't make a living upon them. This, too, in States which for years were almost solid for a high protective tariff, which they believed would not only build up manufactories but would build up "home markets" that would make the farmers independent and rich. As an object lesson on the benefit to the farmer of the high protective tariff these abandoned farms are worth thinking about.

It is not a matter of much concern to the world at large whether Hippolyte is dead or not, but from the number of times it has been contradicted one would suppose it is. He is not of a sufficiently accommodating disposition to be assassinated or to die a natural death to gratify people. Between filling Haytians whom he suspects of not admiring him all full of bullet holes, and putting them in holes in the ground, and playing the flute he is having too much enjoyment to think of dying now. Some of the sable kickers may get on the blind side of him some time, and if they shouldn't unfortunately prove poor shootists then he may be dead. The latest advices from his bailiwick, which we' were assured some time ago was "tranquil," indicate another "rebellion," when if Mr. Maybrant don't meet with more success than the other rebs have met with Hipp will have a picnic filling the ground with three or four hundred more of them. That is a gay and festive black Republic, and Hipp is Rumors of Secretary Blaine's resignation have been put afloat, but the President emphatically denies that there is any truth in them. If Mr. Blaine had resigned Mr. Harrison would be likely to know something about it. It is rather early for Mr. Blaine to resign. This will de pend upon contingencies which will govern both the resignation and the time. If his health should so im prove as to warrant his entering the race for the Presidency, and the section, but that she will wrest the to give him a hope of winning, he will resign when the opportune time comes, which will hardly be before the Fall elections, on which he will keep a pretty sharp eye. If the result of these be satisfactory the Bar Harbor "reciprocity prophet" will be "in the hands of his friends" and his resignation will be in order.

STATE TOPICS.

The Scotland Neck Democrat speaks of the fine cabbages raised in that county this year, which reminds us of the fact that although fine cabbage may be grown in almost any part of North Carolina, our cities and towns are mainly supplied with this article in the winter from the North, as they are also with Irish potatoes, and some other vegetables. Although this is an apple growing State, by far the larger part of the apples used in all but the summer months are imported from the North, although they are no better, and many of them not as good as the home raised apples. If our farmers gave more attention to raising these and supplying the home markets, it would be money in their pockets and would keep thousands of dollars at home.

CURRENT COMMENT.

- It is announced from Washington that President Harrison has been his own Secretary of State since the illness of Mr. Blaine. The Bering Sea negotiations were brought to a close shows that the President has made no mistake thus far in his choice of a Secretary .- Philadelphia Record, Dem.

- From the horrified expressions of sundry administration papers at the tree pass revelations, we are forced to conclude that some people must have considered that Governor Tillman's campaign thunder was "the real article." Those of us who were behind the scenes when the candidate shook the sheet iron are more amused than shocked at this evidence of sweet faith turned sour. -Columbia State, Dem.

UP GO TIN-PLATE PRICES.

The Advance Was Discounted By Foreign Sellers.

Philadelphia Record. The expected advance in the price of tin-plate when the tin-plate schedule in the McKinley Tariff bill became operative has already become a reality, and prices of imported tin-plate have been advanced to a point about equaling the advance in duty. Whether this advance will be maintained is an open question, as in anticipation of the advance in duty on July 1st the dealings in tin-plate for the last several months have been entirely of a speculative character.

All the available tin-plate in foreign markets was bought up at prices considerably in excess of prices under normal conditions. The foreign seller of tin-plate, as wide awake as his American customer, at once put up his price, in answer to the excessive demand. Now that shipments to America are temporarily stopped no doubt the foreign prices will tall to the ordinary average. The opinion of well-known dealers and importers of tin-plate in this city is that owing to the immense quantities of tin-plate in this country, sufficient to supply the demand for several months, the foreign manufacturer will have to reduce his price to a point where, notwithstanding the increased duty, it can be sold at a price about equal, if not lower, than when the duty on tin-plate was but a cent a pound, instead of 2 1-5

Unless foreign-made tin-plate shall be put upon the market at prices 1 1-5 cents per pound lower than the average of late years manufacturers in this country will instantly reap the full advantage of the enormons duty without any apparent advance in present prices.

DIED A MISER'S DEATH.

Miserable End of Professor Hermann Kottinger's Life. N. Y. Herald.

SAN JOSE, CAL., July 5.—Professor Hermann Kottinger, at one time a famous violinist and an eruidite educator on the Pacific coast, died today in a mean little shanty at No. 44 Colfax street. Although worth hundreds of thousands of dollars and with $2,000 in gold coin hidden in the bed-clothes beneath him, he would not spend a cent for medicine, and for a week he had absolutely

When the news of the old man's death was made known two fierce bulldogs that he kept in his yard had to be killed before the Coroner could get in the house. The dead miser's relatives are now overrunning the place, despite the efforts of the police, and with hammer, axe and spade are ransacking the house high and low and also digging up the garden in search of buried treasure. Although the old miser possessed many houses and lots, thus far not a deed to one of them has been found, nor anything excepting his violin, books and the $2,000 in gold in his bed. Twelve years ago Kottinger drove his wife and children away because, he said, they were
