OUTLINES.

C. M. Busbee, Raleigh, N. C., Grand Sire of Odd Fellows, is better. Minister Douglass is satisfied with his experience in Haiti and is anxious to resign. President Harrison took his first bath this summer in the surf yesterday. Three men were killed at Bruceville, Ind., yesterday by the explosion of a threshing engine. Galveston claims to be the third cotton port in the U. S.; her year's receipts exceed one million bales. Three hours' rain Friday at Sioux City, Ia., caused damage estimated at $100,000. Forest fires in Michigan are creating great alarm; many towns are in danger; there has been no rain for over three months. The Society of Christian Endeavor will meet in New York next year; resolutions that the World's Fair be closed on Sunday were adopted. New York markets: Money easy at 1 1/2 per cent; cotton easy; middling uplands 8 1/2 cents; middling Orleans 8 13-16 cents; Southern flour quiet; wheat firmer and dull; No. 2 red $1.02 1/2 @ 1.03 in store and at elevator; corn dull and lower; No. 2, 69 @ 70 cents at elevator; spirits turpentine dull but steady; rosin quiet and weak; strained, common to good $1.37 1/2 @ 1.42 1/2.

When we read the stupid dispatches that are sent out from Cape May about the daily doings of the President we exclaim, oh, why're such things wired. We are delighted to learn that "our Mary," now Mrs. Navarro, is in the full enjoyment of conjugal bliss and "is happy as a queen" over there in England.

That Chicago crowd played a cool thing on the English syndicate when they enticed them into planting $4,500,000 in the Chicago Cold Storage Company's plant.

There is a preacher in Connecticut who has hope for the future of this country, and does not believe it is as wicked as it might be. He predicts that the next President will be a Democrat.

The President was the guest of Collector Cooper, on his fishing frolic, Friday. And Collector Cooper used the people's revenue cutter Hamilton and made the people foot the bill for that little piscatorial pastime.

A foreign correspondent of a New York paper describes Mrs. Parnell as is, Mrs. O'Shea that was, as a woman of "high literary tastes, strong-minded, original, brilliant, and possessing a winning personality". She also possessed a fire escape.

The Knights of Labor and Secretary Foster are in a tangle about the discharge of some plate printers in Washington. Foster and his party are also confronted with a tin-plate trouble that causes them to indulge in much prevarication.

Mrs. Mary Lease, the crinolined Alliance orator of Kansas, says the enemies of the Alliance have tried to poison her with painted lemonade. She now eschews lemonade determined to retain her lease on life and also on the most expansive mouth in Kansas.

President Harrison, remarks an exchange, has the credit of being the greatest walker the White House has contained for many a year. His greatest walking feat, however, will take place about the 4th of March, 1893, when he will walk out of the White House for good.

The two New Orleans editors who fought a duel with swords went back on their profession and practically owned up that they didn't believe the "pen is mightier than the sword." If they didn't want to fight with pens they might have compromised and jabbed each other with Fabers, as so many of the brethren do.

A contemporary speaking of execution by electric shock as both swift and sure, asks: "But is it desirable?" Answering for himself, we say no. Death by old age is swift and sure enough for us. Besides, this new fangled way is a shocking sort of a death to make the best of it. And when after turning on a couple thousand volts into a fellow they send in a second charge to make a dead sure thing of it it becomes somewhat revolting.

Another important piece of news is wired from Cape May. The President went fishing, and he was "attired in a flannel shirt, dark frock coat, and trousers and blue felt hat. And here again this bungling dispatch builder fails to inform the eager multitudes whether the President in this rig and a blue felt hat felt good or whether he got a bite. This is provoking for if after attiring himself thus elaborately to interview the finny denizens of the deep he didn't get a bite it would be rough on him.

The mayor of Chicago threatens to strip the buttons from the policemen who fail to bust up the gambling houses in their beats. This beats the record. Other mayors have sometimes deprived policemen of their batons but when Mr. Washburne hit the button idea he struck the Chicago policemen in a tender spot, for what would a Chicago policeman be without buttons!

"God help the surplus" has come true, remarks the New York World. But where is the surplus to help? It's "swunk" away, vanished, non est. An honest Secretary would own up when he looks into the gaping void where it once was, instead of doing as Secretary Foster does, when he changes the form of monthly statement to make it appear that there is some of it still left.

Russell Harrison says: "It looks Clevelandish to me now." It will look decidedly more so, dear Russell, in the early November days of next year.

Bryan, Jr., of Scott's Hill, who was in town yesterday, considers the prospect for corn, peanuts and potatoes fairly good. Very little cotton is planted in his neighborhood. Rev. The passenger list of the Passport, yesterday afternoon, was one of the largest of the season. She had a large crowd for Carolina Beach and Southport. The Argus trots out a rooster to crow over Goldsboro's successful competition for the Odd Fellow's Orphan Asylum. What's the matter with the goat? DEATH OF MR. L. J. POISSON.

A Prominent Real Estate Agent of This City. Mr. Louis J. Poisson, real estate agent of this city, died yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, of bilious fever, at Hendersonville, N. C., whither he had gone with his family for the summer. He had been in bad health for some time past. Mr. Poisson was the eldest son of the late Maj. F. D. Poisson and wife, Lucy Anne Cutlar, and was a capable and active business man. He leaves a wife and three small children, to whom the sympathies of many in the community will go out in their sad bereavement. The remains of deceased will be brought to Wilmington for interment, and the funeral is announced to take place this afternoon at 5 o'clock from St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

THE BIG BLACK BEARS.

Br'er Woody Studies Their Habits and Gets Them Down Fine. Br'er Woody, who is a close student of natural history in a natural way, is giving much time and attention to an investigation of the habits of Br'er Bear. He has seen several bears within a few weeks near his summer retreat on Hewlett's creek, and a cub was killed on the Masonboro side of that stream recently. After a careful study of their migratory habits, Br'er Woody says he's "got 'em down fine." In the Spring of the year they leave the swamps of Onslow, and, keeping near the Sounds, cross the country to Brunswick county, making frequent stops, and sometimes ranging a week or two near Carolina Beach. In the summer and Fall they return by the same route to their old haunts in Onslow; and it was during this return trip recently that Br'er Woody made his observations. Recently he has seen two bears in Hewlett's creek and one on the shore opposite his home. Br'er Woody was not prepared for battle on these occasions, but he will be ready for action next season, and the field editor of the STAR is anticipating some fine sport with dog and gun when the next migratory movement of Br'er Bear begins.

KING COTTON.

The Future of the Staple—Bureau Report—A North Carolinian in Texas—His First Cotton Ginned on the Glorious Fourth. It is difficult to find any decided expression of opinion among cotton men about the future of the staple, though the preponderating sentiment seems to be bullish in tone. The cotton report of the Agricultural Bureau, issued on the 10th, appears to have produced no effect whatever on the market. Its estimates had been already discounted and did not vary from private advices previously received. Mr. C. C. Lewis, of Realets, Duval county, Texas, writes to his brother, Mr. Adolphus Lewis, in this city, that he ginned his first cotton on the 4th of July—the first ginned in Texas this year; and that last year's first cotton was ginned on the 5th of July. Mr. Lewis went to Texas from New Hanover county about thirty years ago, and has found farming profitable in the Lone Star State. Galveston sent out telegrams yesterday inviting congratulations on its having received one million bales this season and being the third in importance of the cotton ports of the United States.

The Hatteras Caision.

The Norfolk Ledger says: A dispatch Friday afternoon from the telegraph operator Hatteras was to the effect that the exact nature of the accident was not known to him, the site of the lighthouse being fifteen miles off, but from what he had learned of the matter he was of the opinion that the heavy wash of the sea had caused the caision, which is filled with concrete, to settle in the sand and that it could still be utilized by building on it at low water. The sea is still very high.

Inland Water Route.

Col. B. R. Moore, who is interested in the promotion of a scheme for an inland water way along the coast of North Carolina, told a reporter of the STAR yesterday that Captains Tomlinson and Robeson, of the Cape Fear river steamers, had accompanied him in a trip on the route recently opened from Wrightsville to Sloop Point, a distance of twenty-five miles, and had expressed the opinion that the route was navigable the whole distance for the steamer Hart.

Theatre Hammocks.

"Pygmalion and Galatea" was presented to a small audience at the Hammocks Theatre last night. Considering the circumstances the play was very good, and deserved a much larger attendance. Mr. Irvin Walker took the part of Pygmalion and Mlle Arne, Galatea. Both showed that they are "stars" in the profession. The support was good.

Rev. Father Francis, of Raleigh, Rev. Father Denning, of Lumberton, in company with Mr. Robbins, Mr. Gallagher, Mr. Edwards, Mr. Lewis and their families have been spending a week at Mrs. S. H. Owen's, at Ocean View. Father Francis was heard to remark that he had not eaten such a supper as Mrs. Owen prepared for him in five years.
