POOR GENERALSHIP.

The men who are leading in the Third Party movement may be honest in it or they may not be. It may be their purpose to benefit the people whom they profess to represent or to benefit themselves. Mr. Pfeffer, for instance, who stands out as its most conspicuous exponent and champion, may be a patriot or a demagogue and a fraud. But if the leaders in this movement be honest, as counsellors they show poor judgmant and, as leaders, the worst kind of generalship.

As a factor in politics the Alliance men, united, were a mighty power, a power recognized by both of the great political parties. This demonstrated in the last political campaign which began a single Alliance man, as such, in Congress and ended with sixty elected to Congress, enough if it were not for the unprecedented revolution in the membership of the House to give the Alliance representatives the balance of power and enable them to practically control if they could not dictate legislation.

When to accomplish anything substantial it was necessary for the Alliance men to stand together and present a solid front, these short-sighted leaders flew off on a tangent, and called the new party into existence, with its many-sided platform to distract and divide the Alliance, for divide it will on that question.

If their purpose was to benefit the farmers, whom they profess to represent, they resorted to the very worst method in the world to do it when they resolved to enter the field against both of the old parties. There was neither good sense nor political strategy in this. Good sense and political gumption would have suggested a combination with that party which came nearest to representing the opinions of the farmers of the country, and co-operating with it actively to accomplish not only the defeat, but the total overthrow of the opposing party. They should have made common cause with the Democratic party which did and does sympathize with them in some of their demands against the Republican party which sympathizes with them in nothing. Having defeated the Republican party they could then have presented their demands to the Democratic party and if it failed to respond in an acceptable way they would then have some excuse for a separate organization to promote the objects they had in view.

That would have been politics with some lead mule sense in it, which might amount to something in the near future if not just now.

wait, to destroy the Republican party. and give battle, if necessary, to the victor. That's true. It would, in the event it came to that, but in all probability there would be no occasion for any uprising against the Democratic party, which would, if in full control of the Government effect such reforms and present such measures of relief that there would be no more thought of a Third

If they look for practical results from independent and separate action now how long will it be before they can control the legislation Congress and carry out their ideas? How long will it take them to get possession of the Presidency, the House of Representatives and the Senate? They can do nothing in the way of materially accomplishing their purposes until they get possession of the Presidency and control a majority in both branches of Congress. They start without one member out of the 356 in the lower House of Congress, for even Jerry Simpson, of Kansas, did not favor the Cincinnati movement, and with but one member in the Senate-Mr. Pfeffer. How long would it take a party which does not command more than 3,000,000 votes out of 12,000,000, even if the Alliance endorsed which it does not, to elect a President, a majority of the 356 members of the lower House of Congress, and a majority of the 88 Senators? And this is just what Mr. Pfeffer's party will have to do before it can turn a wheel or accomplish anything of importance. As the idea on which the Third Party is based is to secure prompt relief to the farmers through sub-treasury bills and other schemes, the farmers who need relief will be all dead before the Third Party will be in a position to give it to them.

MINOR MENTION.

denies the alleged interview with him in which he was quoted as saying that the Democratic Party must fight the Farmers' Alliance. We didn't believe it when we read it, for although we know that Mr. Oats is a bold and aggressive man, we also know that he is a man of sense and didn't believe that he would part with his head long enough to give utterance to such a rash declaration. Opposing those demands of the Alliance which are deemed wrong and indefensible is one thing, and making war an the Alliance is another. To advise fighting the Alliance, because it makes certain demands, upon which even Alliance men differ, would be the extreme of folly, that no man of ordinary sense would be guilty of, especially when, in the South at least, on all leading issues between the Democratic and Republican parties, eight out of ten of the Alliance men are with the Democratic party. They may go to extremes in some things, and be in error, but the way to meet the error is by reason and argument not by driving them beyond the reach of reason and argument.

The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette congratulates the farmers of the United States on the encouraging outlook, in consequence of the favorable crop reports and the prospects of a good market at fair prices. The reported short crop of wheat in Russia will probably open a market for American wheat and insure good prices, especially as there is not a a large surplus in this country left over from last year's crop. But when the esteemed Commercial Gazette was congratulating "the farmers of the United States," it does not seem to have included the cotton growers of the South, who have now a million bales on hand, for which there is little or no demand, with prices pointing to seven cents--less than they have been in half a century-and another crop coming along to supplement these surplus million bales, and possibly run the price still lower. The C. G. should be more concise in its phraseology when it "congratulates" the "farmers of the United States," for evidently the cotton planters of the South do not come in for the congratulations at this writing.

In the next Electoral College there will be 444 electors, 159 of whom will be from the South. It will require 223 votes to elect President and Vice President. On the presumption that the South will be solid for the Democratic candidates, as usual, they must get 64 votes from other States to be elected. New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Indiana would give 67, four more than necessary. But in addition to these the Democrats have It may be answered that this fair prospects in Illinois, Wisconsin, would take too long, if they had to Iowa and Michigan, while possibly Nevada, Colorado and Montana may break way from their Republican moorings on the silver coinage question. In Michigan, by a law passed by the last Legislature, the electors will be chosen by districts, which will give the Democrats a majority of them if not all. If the Third Party should continue in the field and nominate a Presidential ticket, it would also put the result in Ohio, Kansas, Minnesota and against the Republicans. The Columbia State, of the 9th inst., reports that a Boston syndicate is negotiating for the purchase of a 3,000 acre tract of land about eleven miles from Columbia, known as the Lexington kaolin beds, on the Congaree creek, with a view to establishing a $90,000 or $100,000 plant for the manufacture of kaolin and turpentine products. The turpentine will be extracted by a new process which is thus described:

Nebraska in doubt, with the chances

"The tree is cut down, sawed into blocks eighteen inches long and then split up. Then it is placed in a retort, and every ingredient of the wood is extracted by the process, in the shape of marketable value. The plant will cost something over $30,000, and will turn out turpentine, alcohol, tar, wood vinegar, acetic acid and charcoal, all ready for market, thus using every portion of the tree. He exhibited estimates showng the relative amounts of the above substances that could be extracted from one-half a cord of wood, showing twenty gallons of turpentine, one and eighttenth gallons of alcohol, etc. One-half of the charcoal is sold, and the other is used for fuel. The profits for a year on such a plant are very handsome.

STATE TOPICS.

Col. F. H. Fries, President of the Roanoke and Southern Railroad, reports that the road, which is now completed from Winston, N. C., to Martinsvilie, Va., will be completed through to Roanoke by some time in the fall. If this be so it is sooner than expected some time ago, and speaks well for the push and vim of the men who have that work in Hon. Wm. C. Oates, of Alabama, charge. The road will be extended southward making its southern connections either at Charlotte or Monroe. This is a road in which Wilmington's business men are somewhat interested as it opens up the way to them into border counties of Virginia, still further than the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley road extends, and there is no reason why they may not find it an inviting field

> WHEN ARE YOU GOING TO BUILD YOUR NEW CHURCH?

> > COMMUNICATED.

This question has often been asked me by several of the citizens of Wil mington, and I desire to give some expression concerning this matter for public benefit.

On assuming the pastorate of the First (colored) Baptist Church in April, 1890, I found the members greatly scattered, there being about 18 regular attendants, and considerable talk of building, and no money. A great many thought that all I had to do was to lead on the building, securing workmen, etc. I found that the church was in no condition to build at the time, so the first object to be reached was a union of the members, and from the 18 or 20 possibly at the beginning the number has increased to about 115, with an occasional return of a wan-

This increase in membership being encouraging, we have decided to call together the entire membership and have from them an expression of their interest in this matter of building, and on the 3d Sunday afternoon in this month at 3 o'clock there will be a meeting for this pur-

Knowing the public to be much nterested in this matter, we cordialnvite them to be present.

If the church desires a new building they will show it by pledging and doing all in their power to secure it. God helps those who help Respectfully, themselves.

F. H. HILL, Pastor First Colored Baptist Church, Wilmington, N. C.

CURRENT COMMENT.

- If President Harrison would say right out that he intends to appoint a colored Circuit Judge, it would greatly encourage the 30,000 colored voters of Ohio, without whom the dauntless McKinley will be nowhere .- Louisville Courier-Journal, Dem.

-- The McKinley bill is certainly getting things down to bed rock when it taxes church altars, but that I is what this administration is doing. The Republican party is determined that the people of this country shall not worship God at a foreign-made altar unless they pay for the privilege .- New Orleans States, Dem.

- The total subscriptions to the Panama Canal scheme aggregate $260,000,000 and all France is enraged at so much money having been spent in the last ten years with nothing to show for it, whereas it should thank Heaven it didn't have a Republican Congress to spend four times that amount for it in two years .- N. Y. World, Dem.

proposes to abolish trial by jury, and and children.

to substitute a staff of Judges appointed by the judicial administration. As there has never been a case reported of the acquittal of any person on trial in Russia the new system is not likely to make things much worse in that despotic country .- Phil. Record, Dem.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

- Raleigh Visitor: Applications for direct taxes are pouring into the Executive office by the hundred. The Private Secretary and Executive Clerk are having a rough time of it.

- Oxford Day: The city commissioners reduced the special tax on the Southern Express Co. to $5 because from the information they obtained, that sum was all the business of the company here would justify.

- Charlotte News: Mr. P. Cline, merchant of China Grove, made an assignment a day or two ago. Rev. Paul Barringer was appointed assignee. Dull times and inability to collect claims are the causes of Mr. Cline's as-

- Winston Sentinel: Mr. George Hege, the oldest citizen of Salem, passed away late yesterday afternoon at the ripe old age of 91 years. The deceased had been in feeble health for several years. His wife, who survives him, is 81 years old, and still very active.

- Carthage Blade: Mr. J. Lawhon told us that he killed a watermoccasin a few days ago, which measured about 5 feet in length, and 3 or 4 inches in diameter, that had a horn on its back about 8 inches below the head, measuring 3 inches in length.

Warrenton Gazette: From what we hear and see the tobacco is not near so good as it was at this date last year. There was too much rain for the early planted and a great deal of it is buttoning or blooming at twelve and fourteen leaves, and the leaves are narrow and

-Durham Sun: Mrs. Emma Scott wife of Sidney Scott, of Holloway street, died this morning at 8 o'clock. The Durham Light Infantry is now making arragements to attend the State Encampment at Wrightsville. They will leave for that place to-morrow week. They hope to go with about forty strong.

- Concord Standard: A son of Mr. Robert Gourley, of No. 10, came very near being seriously crippled for life. In handing a switch to his brother while he was driving a mower, the knives struck one leg and cut it half off. Had not the machine been stopped at the time both legs would have been

- Raleigh News and Observer: negotiating with some of our most prominent capitalists for an arrangement leading to the establishment here of a mammoth steel car plant which will employ 2,300 hands. The negotiations are on and reliable men are interesting themselves in its consummation.

- Red Springs Farmer and Scottish Chief: During the prevalence of a thunder storm last Friday, lightning struck the wife of A. D. McLaurin, colored, while plowing in the cotton field stunning her and instantly killing the horse which she was driving. McLaurin says it was an hour before his wife recovered from the shock, that the storm was passing a mile distant and the sun was shining when the bolt came, his wife saw no flash of lightning and knew nothing of what had happened until consciousness was restored and she was told of it.

- Charlotte Chronicle: Tom Johnson, the negro who shot A. R. Williams on board Capt. Clarkson's train on the 4th of July, was arrested yesterday by constable J. L. Smith, near Davidson College. While at the depot, waiting to take the train for Charlotte, Mr. Smith had occasion to step round the other side of the depot to get a package, and he left his prisoner in charge of a halfgrown boy. He gave the boy his pistol and told him to keep guard on Johnson 'til he came back. As soon as he was out of sight Johnson slapped the boy over, took the pistol and made his escape into the woods.

- Weldon News: The peach crop will be enormous. - The tobacco crop is very fine in this section. - We learn that efforts are being made to establish an Episcopal school at Littleton. as the most desirable place for it in Eastern Carolina. The good people of that progressive town have donated ten acres of land for the school and the project will be pushed to early success. -For the first time, under its new charter, the town of Weldon will levy a tax on personal property. The value of person-I property in the town liable to taxation according to the returns of the list taken is $94,735. The value of real estate under the new asssessment is $280,863. Four years ago its value was $147,000, an increase of $135,768, or nearly fifty per cent. A part of this increase is owing to the extension of the corporate limits of

- New Berne Journal: Mr. C. C. Bordeaux is in the city after a large force of hands to work on the Onslow railroad. There are now at work about eighty hands clearing the right-of-way and grading seven miles this side of Jacksonville. A thousand more workmen are wanted to push this road on as fast as possible in this direction. -How much snuff do you suppose is sold in New Berne? We think any one without information on the matter would suppose the amount to be greatly less than it is. One merchant alone, Mr. E. B. Hackburn, ordered 11,500 pounds of one kind yesterday. It takes about $4,000 cash to pay for that much snuff. This is not, as some might suppose, an order of several firms clubbed together, but is Mr. Hackburn's own individual order. He has before this bought as high as 10,000 pounds at a

- Statesville Landmark: Mr. E. B. Webster has raised this year the big gest onion the Landmark ever saw. It was one of these low, heavy-set onions, in shape like a squash, and was about as around as the bottom of water bucket. It measured 181/2 inches around and weighed 1% pounds. — A correspondent writes the Landmark that Nathaniel Wagoner and others were riding in a boat on the Yadkin river near Boonville, Yadkin county, last Sunday week, June 28th, when the boat sank. In his struggle to save two little boys Wagoner was drowned and his body was not found until Friday last, July 8d, when the circling of buzzards over a point about three miles below where the boat sank attracted the searchers to that spot, and there the body was found, --- The Russian Government now water.
