In a quarrel over five cents Joe Hardin killed his nephew, J. L. Edwards, near Jackson, Miss. A freight train was wrecked near Vicksburg, Miss., by running over a bull; fifteen cars were derailed and three white men were killed. A Union Pacific Railroad agent at Carbon, Wyoming, set the depot on fire and killed himself; the company's loss is very heavy. The Southern Lumber Co., of Atlanta, Ga., has failed; liabilities $125,000. New York markets: Money easy at 2 3/4 per cent, closing offered at 2 1/2 per cent; cotton quiet and firm; middling uplands 7 15-16 cents; middling Orleans 8 3/4 cents; southern flour strong and quiet; wheat higher, unsettled and dull. No. 2 red $1.19 1/2 at elevator; corn—spot firm and moderately active for home use; No. 2, 72 3/4 cents at elevator; rosin quiet and steady; spirits turpentine quiet and steady at 36 3/8 cents.

With the $1,000,000,000 or so that the grain growers of this country will get for their truck this year they may be able to worry through with the McKinley tariff.

On a straw vote the Legislature of Pennsylvania stood 116 for Blaine, 10 for Harrison, with a dozen or so scattering. Quay and Cameron seem to be getting in their work.

The Prince of Wales' hair is thicker than it was. Since the Prince has equipped himself with a kit and gone into the baccarat business he don't stay at home as much as he used to.

That seems to be a quite proper decision by U. S. District Judge Hanford at Seattle, that taboed Chinamen slipping into this country shall, when caught, be sent back to the country whence they came.

While England and this country have agreed to hold up in the seal catching business for a while in Behring sea, Russia is doing a little business on her own account in her own waters, claiming that the American company in Alaskan waters are catching more than the proviso allows.

The new Fourth Assistant Postmaster General is not yet a confirmed salary drawer. The presumption is, however, that he possesses the other usual Republican attributes. The reason why he is not a regulation salary drawer is because the Treasury, discouraged by the opinion of Comptroller Matthews, declines to cash up until he is confirmed.

Mrs. Wadsworth, the preacher who got so many of the scared denizens of San Francisco to flee, some time ago, to the woods and the hills to escape the destruction which she predicted for that wicked town, is now raising a racket in Topeka, Kansas, where she is throwing people by scores into trances. The police want her squelched, but she won't squelch.

Porter's census was a success in one particular, at least. Out of the appropriation of $7,487,500 made for it he has got away with all but $13,500. When he asks for the $2,000,000 more from the next Congress which it is said he will ask for, it may be in order for some inquisitive Congressman to rise and inquire what he has done with the $7,487,500.

Southern California is preparing to go extensively into the truck business, to ship vegetables in winter to New York and other Eastern cities. It is said that with the low rates the railroads give them, three cents a pound, there will be more money in the vegetables shipped between the first of December and the first of March than there is in fruit raising.

A bill has been introduced in the Georgia Legislature making an appointment to office of trust or employment by any public officer of any one nearer than a forty-second cousin a misdemeanor, and punishable as such. Nepotism is one of the Republican institutions that the promoters of that bill do not think should be encouraged in Georgia.

Mr. Harrison told the monument celebrators at Bennington, Vermont, that he was glad to be there. He was glad to be one of the celebrators, who were enjoying the occasion more than the celebrated. He would rather be a celebrator than a celebrated. With $50,000 a year payable in monthly instalments, a $6,000 set of cut glass for his table, and an accomplished whistler for a private Secretary no one should censure him.

VISITING MILITARY.

ARRIVAL AND RECEPTION OF THE FAYETTEVILLE INDEPENDENT LIGHT INFANTRY.

A Gala Occasion—The Streets Thronged with Spectators—Parade—Supper at The Orton—Open-Air Concerts.

The arrival of the Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry yesterday afternoon on their way to Carolina Beach, was a gala occasion for Wilmington. The whole town turned out to greet them, and their reception was something of an ovation.

The Wilmington Light Infantry, the Second Regiment Band, the veteran members of the F. I. L. I. resident in Wilmington, and a large number of citizens were at the depot of the C. F. & Y. V. R. R., to meet the visiting military, and the streets along the line of march thence to The Orton were lined with ladies and others who waited expectantly and patiently to see the parade.

The citizens' reception committee was also on hand, and at their invitation the companies stacked arms on Water street after moving out of the depot, and assembled in a building in the neighborhood, where refreshments were served and an informal reunion and hand-shaking took place, lasting about half an hour.

The companies then formed in line and marched up Mulberry street to Third, from Third to Market, down Market to Front and up Front to The Orton, the bands playing and crowds cheering.

BAND CONCERT.

The Fayetteville band, in their handsome uniform, made a magnificent display, and shortly after the arrival of the military at The Orton gave a concert from the plaza in front of the postoffice opposite The Orton, rendering the following selections:

- 1. "Gladator," march. 2. Serenade. 3. Schottische, "Dream of Beauty." 4. Phantasia on "Auld Lang Syne." 5. "The National Fencibles." 6. "Dixie."

THE BANQUET.

At 9.15 the doors of the spacious dining-room of "The Orton" were thrown open. Three tables extending the entire length of the room were soon filled by the citizens and the members of the two military organizations and the Fayetteville and Second Regiment bands. The banquet was served in the style that has made The Orton famous; the tables literally groaning under their weight of delicacies, that pleased the eye by their artistic arrangement and tickled the palate by the delicious manner in which they were prepared. That capable and pleasing Master of Ceremonies, Col. F. W. Kerchner, presided. Blessing was asked by the Rev. Robert Strange; after which the guests attacked the viands after the manner of travellers at a railroad restaurant, where the rule is "20 minutes for supper." Col. Kerchner, anxious that none should have dyspepsia or a nightmare, reminded the guests that they had two hours in which to refresh the inner man; a sally appreciated with laughter. At the conclusion of the supper, Col. Kerchner in his usual terse and happy way, introduced Maj. T. D. Love, who had been selected to deliver the address of welcome. Maj. Love said, in substance: It is with no ordinary emotions of pleasure and pride that we welcome you in our midst. Once more you have marched to the same drum beat with your old friend and ally the Wilmington Light Infantry, cementing still more closely the ties which have so long bound you together. Your hearts and your drums still beat in unison, and we hail with delight your visit to our city. Approaching your centennial anniversary, your career of glory is still upward and onward. There is no stain on your escutcheon. Your hospitable city—grand old Fayetteville—from an interior town has become our commercial rival, and our affection is not lessened but augmented thereby. In the happy long ago, when your fathers lived, the old time pole-bolt propelled by muscular power transported the commodities of the season. Then you adopted horse-power, rigged on the bow of a lighter, and then you applied steam to stir the waters of the historic Cape Fear. Now the steel rail and the electric wire unite us.

With us, you are in the house of your friends. We want you to feel as did Rob Roy, when accosted as Mr. Campbell, and said, "Call me Mister nor Campbell, my foot is on my native heath and my name is McGregor." Passing our portals you will soon enjoy your sea breeze at the Beach. It will cool your heated brow and refresh your languid frame. Take kindly to the salt water and the festive crab. They will do you good, so that when you return it will be with renewed vigor, and more elastic step.

Mr. J. H. Myover, whose reputation as an orator is well established in this section as well as elsewhere, replied to Maj. Love's address of welcome. In his peculiarly happy style he delivered an address that was a gem in every respect.

The many flashes of wit were heartily laughed at; the sentiment applauded; and when the distinguished gentleman took his seat there were calls for more.

In response to calls Capt. Kenan, Maj. Broadfoot and Maj. W. F. Campbell addressed the guests. Maj. Campbell's remarks were heartily applauded in their reference to the ties between the two sections of the Cape Fear Company and his compliments to Wilmington and its citizens' hospitality.

After the banquet the Second Regiment Band played a number of their choicest selections in front of The Orton, and soon after the Companies were called to attention and marched to the foot of Market street where the visitors embarked on the steamer Wilmington for Carolina Beach, followed by the cheers of their escort and the crowd that accompanied them to the river front.

BALLOON ASCENSION.

A Big Sensation at Carolina Beach—A Daring's Involuntary Flight Heavenward.

The crowd of people that assembled at Carolina Beach yesterday to witness the balloon ascension and parachute drop by Prof. Jewell were treated to a surprise—a sensation that was startling in the extreme.

Cass Hill and Charley Williams—the former black and the latter brown—were employed by Prof. Jewell, the aeronaut, to stand inside the balloon during the process of inflation and throw water on the stray sparks that might lodge against the walls of the balloon. Cass was cautious, and warned Williams to keep his weather-eye open while the balloon was filling. The process consumed about twelve minutes, and at last Professor Jewell cast off the stay-rope, and called to Cass to cover the furnace, and then started the audience with the accustomed formula, "Well, good bye, ladies and gentlemen. Let go all!" Everybody looked to see the Professor jerked into the air in his parachute, but instead, saw the parachute tear loose from the balloon and a helpless tender-foot tangled in the ropes leading from the balloon to the parachute. Before a man could count ten the wretched man was swinging in the upper deep. Professor Jewell called out, "Hold on fast and be of good cheer and you will come down all right." "I'll do it," came back in faint tones, and away went the victim. Ladies screamed and some prayed for his safety. Everybody expected that he would faint and fall headlong, and all hoped that the balloon would soon descend. But higher and higher it sped, until Charley Williams—dangling in the rope—looked like a knot in a shoestring. From where he was he might see Fort Fisher and Camp Wyatt, and Lugar Loaf.

At last, when hope had almost died away, the balloon was seen to turn downward, and now a new danger threatened the man who had clung so desperately to the ropes, for the balloon came very near upsetting and enveloping him; but it righted and continued to descend with ever increasing speed. Surely, thought the people, even if he holds on he will be dashed to death by the rapid descent, and a great crowd ran westwardly to witness the final catastrophe. Williams, however disengaged himself from the ropes when the balloon was a short distance from the ground and escaped unhurt. He was in a profuse perspiration, though the day was cool, and did not know whether he was a Blaine Republican or a Tammany heeler. The first words he uttered when assured of his safety were: "I ought to have the money, 'case I'm the one that went up." Scores of hands were stretched out to him and a moderate shower of nickels, dimes, quarters and halves made him glad.

Every day brings some new development in the balloon ascension business. First, the balloon went up alone; next, Prof. Jewell was cast into the sea; and now, colored citizen Williams makes an involuntary ascension. What will this afternoon bring forth?

Death of Capt. Chinnis. Died, yesterday, at his home near Phenix, Capt. Samuel R. Chinnis, aged 62 years. He had been sick for several weeks, and his death was the result of an attack of malarial fever.

Capt. Chinnis was a man of excellent character, and was for many years one of the most prominent and influential citizens of Brunswick county. He was a captain in the 81st N. C. Regiment, and ranked with the bravest and best, being held in high esteem both by his superior officers and the men under his command. For several years preceding his death he was superintendent of the Orton plantation, owned by Col. K. M. Murchison, who placed a high estimate on his service.

Faithful to every trust in peace and war; kindhearted and generous to a fault; devoted and affectionate as husband and father; he passes away universally lamented by those who knew him. May he rest in peace.

Storm Warning. The yellow pennant—information signal—was displayed at the Weather Bureau Station yesterday morning. A cyclone was reported southeast of Hayti, moving westward. The observer here was directed to watch closely and report promptly any indications of the approach of the cyclone at this station. Up to 10 o'clock last night there was no indication of its appearance here.

At Southport yesterday the weather was cloudless, the wind 10 miles an hour, from the east, and the seawall light.
