If Fonseca were to write to ex-Czar Reed he might get some valuable hints from him.

No wonder the People's party has played out in Kansas, Jerry Simpson has got to wearing tailor-made clothes and fashionable head tiles.

Ex-Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, missed voting at the last election for the first time since 1873. He failed to get home, and probably wasn't very anxious to get there.

Baron Hirsch is said to be worth $100,000,000. No one would envy him $200,000,000, for he is one of the millionaires whose money does his fellow men some good. Hundred million men are scarce and so are the Hirsches.

A German in California split the heads of his wife and son with an axe and then climbed a tree and hanged himself. He was sick, too. If he had been in robust health he might have gone out and split up all the heads in the neighborhood.

John McManus, of New York, wanted to visit his mother in heaven, and took a big dose of laudanum. The doctors succeeded in pumping it out of him, and now, under the New York law, they will probably send him to jail because he didn't succeed.

Judge Duboise, of Memphis, has the lawyers all up, in arms against him because he confined one of them half an hour in the "sweat box" in the court room, because he wouldn't quit talking when commanded. They talk of impeachment and making the Judge sweat.

Albert Klein, socialist candidate for the Assembly in one of the New York districts, swears that his expenses during the campaign amounted to fifty-five cents. This was doubtless invested in a socialistic way, eleven beers. It is not stated how many votes he got.

European chemists have invented a "sugar honey" which they say is such a perfect imitation of the sureenough honey that it would fool the queen bee herself. It is said that when the manufacture of this honey is entered upon the only use there will be for the bee will be to pursue the wax industry.

The standing army of Brazil numbers only 12,000, out of a population of 14,000,000. If matters are in the topsy-turvy condition they are reported to be down there and Mr. Fonseca undertakes to make good his dictatorship with this standing army the probabilities are that it will be converted into a running army.

In Iowa at the last election, a candidate for a county clerkship was particularly anxious to be elected because he wanted to get married, and asked for support that he might be able to support a wife. And then all the fellows who had a spite against him voted for him, because they thought that was their best chance to get even.

Baptist State Convention.

The Baptist State Convention, in session at Goldsboro, selected Raleigh as the place of next meeting, and the time the first Thursday after the first Sunday in December, 1892. The Western Convention was invited to meet with this convention next year.

A note to the STAR from Rev. R. E. Peele says there is a good delegation present and a lively session. Good reports are received from all sections of the State, and the outlook is bright for the future.

Rev. Dr. Pritchard, Chairman of the Obituary Committee, said that owing to the inability of the committee to obtain the necessary data, he asked that the committee be allowed to withhold their report until they returned home, and he would forward it to the secretary before the minutes were published. The request was granted.

shal would be announced Tuesday, and also suggested that the following would be the best route for the grand parade: Start at Tenth and Market streets, down Market to Third, down Third to Castle, down Castle to Front, up Front to Red Cross, up Red Cross to Seventh, down Seventh to Chestnut, along Chesnut to Third and down Third to City Hall and then disband. This of course must meet with the approval of the Parade Committee.

It was again announced the Parade Committee would meet Monday night at the City Hall at 8 o'clock.

The Excutive Committee then adjourned to meet at the same place next Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. COMMITTEE ON AMUSEMENTS.

The Committee on Amusements for the joyful week, Dec. 1st to 5th, met last night in Mr. H. P. West's store. Present, Jas. E. Willson, chairman, and Messrs. C. H. Robinson, J. H. Rehder, Simon Sanders, T. W. Clawson, W. W. Hodges and W. A. Martin.

The chairman stated that the Second Regiment, Miller's and the Germania Cornet Bands had been approached to ascertain what terms could be obtained from them for furnishing music. This was followed by a full discussion of the subject matter in all its connections, including when, and the number of times the music would have to be rendered, and was participated in by Messrs. Clawson, Robinson, Rehder, Willson and others.

Mr. Clawson moved that a committee ing. This was carried and the chairman and Mr. Rehder were constituted Mr. Robinson thought the bands be at the expense of furnishing substitutes, while they were playing.

Mr. Clawson thought several bands, at proper intervals in the procession, should play during the trades parade. The committee then adjourned to meet next Monday night at same time and place.

COMMITTEE ON FIRE DEPARTMENT. The Committee on Fire Department for the Welcome Week festivities met last night, but adjourned, without coming to a conclusion, until next Tuesday night. In the meantime an effort will be made to ascertain if enough members can turn out on the night of the proposed parade. Some of them belong to the bands, some to the W. L. I., and many, no doubt, will have to turn out with the trades parade.

The Bear Hunter Again on Deck.

R. J. Armstrong, the mighty bearkiller of Holly Shelter, Pender county, has added another chaplet to his culminating crown of glories.

He has slaughtered with his old and never-failing gun, "Elizabeth Ann," called for short and endearment "Betsy," the biggest bear whereof the memory of man conceiveth, weighing exactly 4021/6 pounds by his "buying steelyards."

Mr. Armstrong has a fertile farm, lying on the edge of a ten-mile pocosin, and his hogs will range down in the edge of this swampy place of bear lairs, and bruin delighteth in the succulent juices of pork. This state of affairs keeps hunter Armstrong mad all the time-mad with bears.

This particular bear had devoured twenty-one porkers, and the end was not yet. If he couldn't capture a shoat, bruin would fell and drag off the maternal ancestor of the brood. Swearing a mighty oath of vengeance, the bear slayer said he would bury a bullet in the heart of his porcine purloiner.

So a mighty hunt was set afoot, and about all the dogs in the township and many hunters collected. Just before day Tuesday the dogs were turned loose in the edge of the swamp, and sure enough the big rogue had been looking for fresh meat, but the hogs had been driven up and he was disappointed. His trail was struck, and having long fasted they knew the beast would make a long chase. The dogs trailed him nearly all day and ran him to cover in a thick place late in the afternoon. Twentyseven big buck loads were poured into the brute seemingly without effect other than to make him snort, shake his head and growl. In the meantime the air was full of dog hair and howls, as the bear would knock the reckless ones into eternal silence. Finally Mr. Armstrong got a fair shot with "Old Betsy" and drove his load into the heart of the big fellow. And the rejoicing in that township is yet in its youth.

River and Harbor Improvements.

The annual estimate of Gen. Casey, chief engineer U.S.A., for river and harbor improvements embraces the following: Ocracoke inlet, N. C., $150,000 of which $100,000 for expendeture in 1892; Pamlico and Tar rivers, N. C., $59,000; Neuse river. N. C. $106,500; inland waters between Newbern and Beaufort, N. C., $57,000; Beaufort harbor, $23,000; water way between New river and Swansboro. N. C., $88,000; Northeast Cape Fear river, $25,000; Black river, N. C., $30,500; Cape Fear river above Wilmington, N. C., $173,000; same river below Wilmington, $1,655-000, of which $300,000 is to be expended in 1892; Yadkin river, N. C., $5,000.

Mayor Ricaud administered justice yesterday in the Lity Court.

Joseph West, colored, who resisted officer C. W. Kunold and B. F. Turlington Thursday night, while attempting to drive the crowd from the Opera House portico, was arrested by them, and the Mayor required him to pay $10 and costs, $2.75.
