An Indiana farmer of wealth, named Goslin, is lamenting the loss of his daughter Nannie, a plumb nice girl, who eloped with a worthless, trifling hired man. If Nannie lives, she will probably discover that she is a big goose.

A delightful climate they have up in the Dakotas. Winter hustles in so lively on the heels of Summer that the farmers don't have time to thrash out all their wheat before the snow falls. Much of last Summer's harvest is still in the fields in shock covered with three inches of snow.

If, as some say, beer is taking the place of whiskey in this country as a beverage, what is to become of the 6,686,461 more gallons made this year than last? Will the Boston man, who takes so much interest in the benighted African substitute it for rum, with which he has heretofore cheered the poor heathen?

They are a progressive people down in Jefferson county, Alabama. They believe in good roads, anyway, and this is a pretty good sign of a progressive people. On Monday the Greensboro Record rounded up the first year of its existence, and has successfully passed through all the trials and tribulations of journalistic infancy. Mr. George Edward Curtis, of the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, who was present at Dyrenforth's rain-bringing experiments in Texas, is evidently of the opinion that the method of bringing down rain by bursting torpedoes is a big bust. He says that during the three weeks' experiment only two-hundredths of an inch of rain fell at the experiment station, and that showers fell at the same time all over the State.

Thos. Lovin, near Holbrook, Mass, was very much surprised the other day, when he was suddenly confronted by Wm. Clark, whom he had shot, knocked down, pummelled and left for dead some time before. It so happened that before proceeding in quest of Lovin, Clark provided himself with a double barrelled shot gun, and the result was that the coroner held an inquest over Lovin, and the conclusion he arrived at was that death was caused by too much bullet from the shot gun of the man who was supposed to be dead.

Attempted Assassination.

Report was brought to this city yesterday evening that Chas. Chauncey, a white man, living at Elkinsville, on the Carolina Central railroad, some thirtyfive miles from Wilmington, was called to the door of his house last Thursday night by some unknown person, who fired at Chauncey three times with a pistol-all the balls taking effect and causing wounds that it is feared will result fatally. The assassin escaped, and there is no clue that will lead to his identification.

John Wilkes examined: Live a quarter of a mile from Conoley's; on the night of the murder heard two pistol shots in the early part of the night; first knew of the murder at 9 o'clock next morning. (Witness testified to size and location of tracks.) Saw prisoner on Thursday, who remarked, on examining the tracks that they were somewhat like his-No. 8; defendant arrived at Conoley's at 11 or 12 o'clock on Wednesday night; spoke of a trip to Wilmington, and of being tired; witness compared the track with defendant's track, which measured about the same; his daughter told him about seeing a strange-looking man pass on Tuesday morning. His father advised him not to leave. Then he concluded to go to Rockingham, then on to Charlotte then concluded to leave the State; prisoner then described his trip out West to witness-remaining two weeks and working one week in Kansas City, then going on to Portland, Oregon, and finally to Albany. When arrested prisoner was going under name of D. H. McLaurin, [nothing of importance on cross-examination.]

Frederick Warde's Great Play, "The

Lion's Mouth,"

One of the most important dramatic ovelties of the season will be the appearance of the great actor, Mr. Frederick Warde and his magnificent supporting company which will occur next Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 24th and 25th. The theatrical public which are familiar with Mr. Warde's classical roles will be somewhat curious 'to see him in his new play, as he makes a radical departure from an acting standpoint, and as Paul de Navarro in "The Lion's Mouth," he appears as a young Venetian, handsome, soldierly and full of romantic passion. Judging from the picture of him he must look the character to the life. The action of the play takes place in Venice amid those stormy times in the days of the inquisition. Its title refers to the famous "Lion's Mouth," which was the receptacle of scrolls, denouncing persons in Venice, supposed to be inimical with the interests of the State, and which denunciation was acted upon by a council of three.

The plot tells a story of love and war, dealing with the strongest passions that animate men-love of country, love of women, and revenge. With it is told the story of the gentle maid whose heart is torn by the conflict of her love for a man and her sense of filial duty. The "Lion's Mouth" is superbly mounted, the locality of the scenes, which are laid in Venice, giving opportunity for some exquisite stage pictures.

On Wednesday night Mr. Warde will present his great success, "The Mountebank." The mere announcement of the presentation of this great play will be sufficient to pack the theatre. The sale of seats commences Monday morning.

THE WEATHER BUREAU.

Extends an Invitation to Citizens to Avail Themselves of the Information to be Obtained at the Office in Wilmington. Mr. T. P. Chaffee, observer in charge of the Weather Bureau here, has sent cut a circular letter to a large number of postmasters and other persons along the lines of railroad, in which he says:

The Weather Bureau, which is maintained for the benefit of commerce, general business interests and scienceand especially in the interest of agriculture wishes to bring itself into closer relations with the people of North Carolina. With this end in view, every one visiting this city during "Wilmington's Welcome Week," (Dec. 1st to 5th. 1891, inclusive) or at any other time, is cordially invited to visit this office, that they may become familiar with the work, and acquainted with those having it in charge. This office is on the third floor of the U.S. postoffice building. It receives twice each day, telegraphic reports of the weather conditions, from all parts of the country. This information is charted in detail and presented in such form as to be readily understood. These Charts or Weather Maps also show the position and movement of storms, cold waves, &c. Areas in which the temperature has decreased ten degrees or more in past 24 hours, are sketched in blue; where it has increased ten or morn degrees in the same period, is shown in red; while the rain-areas are in black.

A synopsis of the general weather conditions of the entire country is also published on this chart; it shows plainy all the important changes that have occurred in the previous twenty-four

Reports of temperature and rainfall are also received daily from a number of special stations throughout the cottonbelt; this feature is maintained especially for the benefit of those in any way interested in the cotton crop.

The Weather Bureau, through its regular stations in this State, and through the State Weather Service, telegraphs the daily forecasts and frost warnings to a large number of places in North Carolina. The working of these forecast and frost warning stations, and the manner of obtaining their establishment, will be explained upon applica-

To farmers and those to whom telegraphic information is not available, a fairly correct method of keeping themselves informed of the approach of frost, by the use of two ordinary thermometers and certain tables, will be ex-

Farmers can obtain information relative to the crop condition of the entire country, crops grown to the best advantage, dates of early and late frosts, that have occurred in the past and that are likely to occur in the future, and on any question pertinent to agriculture or weather, which, when this office has not the desired information, will be referred to the State Weather Service, or the Department of Agriculture,

For engineers and others interested in excessive rainfalls, tables have been prepared, showing the excessive hourly and daily rainfalls for the past twenty

For marine interests and those desiring to be informed as to wind velocities along the coast, this office is kept posted as to the movements of storms, &c., and such information will be cheerfully

Those desiring to know the weather conditions of any part of the country are invited to correspond with this

Continuous records of the temperature, pressure, wind velocity and direction, and rainfall are kept at this station by means of delicate self-registering instruments, which are very interesting and the working of which will be gladly explained to visitors.

Representatives of the press and any one seeking information for publication for instruction, or in fact for any pur pose, will receive every courtesy and every opportunity be given to enable them to obtain information, with a view to securing the widest dissemination of the weather reports.

F. P. CHAFFEE, Observer in charge.

Is He the Murderer?

Arthur Pertco, alias Sydney Bethea, who was adjudged guilty by the Mayor in the City Court yesterday morning for carrying concealed weapons, is now held for perjury. But it now appears the abundantly nomenclatured negro is wanted in Edgefield, S. C., for a higher, graver crime. Col. Hall, Chief of Police, has received a letter from J. H. Hardy, dated Johnston, S. C., stating that a colored man is wanted in Edgefield county, S. C., for the murder of J. M. Long in that county on the 10th October, 1889, and that the Governor of that State has offered a reward of $200 for his capture. Then follows an accurate, detailed description of the man, which fits very closely the man now held here. When the murderer left Edgefield county he said he intended to join the U.S. Army. Officers Kunold, Howell, Brinkly and Nixon, who effected the arrest, have lively hopes of obtaining the reward.
