According to the law in New Hampshire a man convicted of murder has one year to live between his conviction and time of execution. DECORATIONS.

The City Puts on Gala Attire to be Admired of Visitors. The city began to assume the bright and holiday appearance of Welcome Week Saturday, and many of the storekeepers made incipient efforts at decoration. The rain Sunday morning, however, played some havoc with bunting that wasn't warranted to wash. Yesterday morning renewed and greater efforts were put forth, and by nightfall the gaily colored streamers and flags floated on the breeze, and Front street and portions of Market and Princess had on beautiful attire that voiced a welcome to the expected multitudes. Some of these decorations make pretty and picturesque displays.

The Executive Committee for the Week of Joy Meet and Smooth the Tangled Threads into a Perfect Wreath of Pleas-The Executive Committee met last night, with Major T. D. Love in the chair and Mr. G. G. Lewis Secretary. Mr. Post, for the Parade Committee, announced that sixty-one floats would be in the trades parade; that it would be led by the Commercial Travellers' Association, followed by the float with thirteen ladies representing the thirteen original States, in behalf of Wilmington, each wearing suitable drapery and holding a flag bearing the coat of arms of one of the States. Forty carpenters of the A. C. L. company shops and seventy machinists would march with their own banners. The parade will be a mile long. The military and firemen's parade to-night will be led by Capt. Kenan of the W. L. I., who is also chief marshal. He stated that the torches had arrived, but some of the goods had not, but he was tracing them by wire. Messrs. Taylor and Gleaves made some enquiries about the height of floats and the various wires crossing the streets on the line of parade.

Mr. Post stated that the companies owning the wires would be requested to raise them at least thirty-five feet above the pavement, and owners of floats would be notified not to have them over twenty-five feet high.

On motion of Mr. Ricaud it was ordered that the arch at Front and Princess streets be removed early Thursday evening for the floats to pass, as it is only 21 feet above the street.

Mr. Fishblate requested the representatives of the press to ask householders along the line of march to decorate and illuminate for the parade

The parade, it was stated, would move at 8 p. m. Thursday. Mr. Fishblate announced that Mr.

Montague had kindly tendered the reading room on first floor, on north side of The Orton for the use of the Executive Committee during the week, and it was accepted with thanks.

Mr. Taylor said the Standard Oil Works had made a handsome contribution, and would display two floats.

Mr. Clawson, for the Music Committee, said his department was all right. On motion Mr. Ricaud was beartily thanked for the use of his office and the hospitable entertainment wherewith he had cheered the committee. On motion of Mr. Gleaves the Executive Committee would be in session every day during the week. Adjourned.

Pick-Pocket Caught.

Police officer Kunold has the honor of capturing the first of the light-fingered gentry who have put in an appearance here for "Welcome Week." About 4 o'clock in the afternoon the police officer saw two men standing closely together on Fourth street, near Castle, and soon after his attention was attracted towards them, saw one of the men sever the the watch chain of the other man and abstract his watch. The police officer promptly arrested the pickpocket, and after a struggle carried him to the guard house in the City Hall. When searched the watch was found in his pocket. The man admitted the theft and gave his name as Ed Shepherd, a former resident of this city. The man whose watch was stolen gave his name as G. E.

The Suspended Bank. Everything is moving on so regularly and smoothly since the failure of the First National Bank last Tuesday, that the perturbing event now seems like ancient history. Men have taken counsel with themselves on the wisdom of the STAR's advice and ugly rumors are no more heard in the town, and the old stock subject of bad crops has come to the top, and is doing business at the same old stand. It is even "lacking in bulk" to give the bank failure as an excuse for not paying debts.

It is a fact, however, that the county funds were withdrawn from the First National Bank before its suspension, that they are now held by responsible persons, and that the whole business will be adjusted in a few days. It is also true that the cash account and books of the Cashier and other officers are all straight.

Two Small Houses Burned.

An alarm of fire was sent in from box No. 16 at 3 p. m. and, when the Fire Department got its engines on the spot the fire was discovered in two one-story wooden dwellings on Cowan, between Second and Third streets. The flames had made such headway on the combustible material that the Department was of little service and the houses were destroyed. They were owned by Mr. James Chadbourn, Jr., and were insured in the North American Co., Messrs. Hodges & Taylor, agents.

They were occupied by Mary E. Williams and Mary Larkins, respectively. Another building caught but was very slightly damaged. The destroyed houses were valued at about $150 each.

the contractors of the omission. There was a discussion regarding the construction of bonds for the new Court House, and it was resolved to issue them in the following dimensions: $10,000 in $100, and 80 bonds of $500

The Board will meet to-day at 5.30 p. m. to hear report of County Treasurer, who, with other county officers will have to renew his bonds next Monday in the regular order.

It was stated that Trustees of Public Schools would receive their salaries when due. The meeting then adjourned.
