FRIDAY MORNING, DEC. 4, 1891

DISCUSSING COTTON.

At the meeting of the Supreme Council of the Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union at Indianapolis a number of resolutions were offered and discussed bearing upon the depression in the cotton-growing industry and the remedies. In pursuance of a resolution offered by Mr. Marion Butler, President of the North Carolina Farmers' Alliance that a committee be appointed consisting of one delegate from each of the cotton-growing States to take into consideration and formulate some plan by which the "cotton growers may be able to some extent at least to regulate the quantity, consumption and marketing time of the cotton crop," the committee was appointed and made a standing one to make a final report at the next annual meeting.

Several resolutions were introduced relative to acreage, marketing &c., for which the committee offered the following, which contains the gist of the others, as a substitute :

"WHEREAS, The cotton growers of the South are greatly oppressed because of the depressed price of the raw material, caused, in a measure, from combines and speculations in futures, but mainly from an unjust. oppressive and discriminating financial system and a high protective tariff on manufactured cotton material; and

WHEREAS, It is now alleged by speculators and combines that over-productions is the prime cause of depression in prices, when, in fact, we have reason to know that the cause is not over-production, but under-consumption caused by inability to buy, resulting from advanced prices of manufactured articles of cotton and other causes as stated above; and

WHEREAS, It has been recommended by members of the Farmers' Alliance in several States in the cotton belt, that the acreage be decreased by the growers, and knowing, as we do, that the price of the raw material cannot be affected by the loyal Alliancemen alone of the many thousand growers decreasing their acreage, while, in fact, the effort to thus reduce the quantity would actuate thousands of growers to increase their acre-

Therefore, as one of the remedies to secure an advanced price in raw cotton material by cheapening the manufactured products, and thereby increase the ability of the masses to consume; be it Resolved, That the National Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union, representing the best interests of the producers and consumers of America alike, do respectfully ask that Congress entirely relieve manufactured articles of cotton from any tariff duty whatever, and place the same on the free list of American products. and is getting an insight into the ingoes, but it don't go far enough. While demanding that the tariff be removed from cotton goods it should which cotton goods are made, on country which had so ardently cherthe implements with which cotton is ished the hope of home rule which cultivated, the bagging with which it is covered and the ties with which it is bound in the bales, all of which reduce the earnings on the cotton

It is gratifying, however, to see that the Alliance is at last waking up to one feature of the enormity of the protective tariff, so-called. The framers of these resolutions are quite right when they' declare that the high tariff reduces the consumption of cotton goods by raising the price to a point at which the poor can't buy, which they cannot do at the prices based upon the McKinley tariff; but we think they are wrong when they declare that there is no over-production, when, as a matter of fact, the increase in the production is out of all proportion to the increase of population. It is overproduction all the same, when the producers raise more than they can sell, whatever the causes may be.

They don't seem to think, however, that a reduction of acreage would be practicable, for the reason that when one planter reduced his acreage, if this policy were decided upon, another would increase his, under the belief that the reduced crop would bring big prices and thus the acreage would be kept up despite the understanding and effort to reduce it. The most effective way, they think, to increase the price of cotton is to remove all tariff from cotton goods, thus enable people to buy more freely, and thus increase the consumption. Aside from the average question there is good, hard, common sense in this, for the fewer restrictions there are upon the traffic in cotton, the greater the traffic will be, and the greater the traffic the more money to the man who raises the cotton. This is not only good sense, but it is good, sound Democratic doctrine. Let the Alliance move on that line, and on the line where it refers to the "discriminating financial system," and move for the repeal of the ten per cent. tax on State banks of issue, thus remove the impediment to the establishment of State banks, and remedy, to some extent at least, "the discriminating financial system," which makes money scarce, dear and hard for the farmer to get.

MINOR MENTION.

The Treasurer of Allen county, Ohio, has filed suit against U.S. Senator Calvin S. Brice, for $17,850, delinquent taxes, which Mr. Brice, it is alleged, has for several years refused to pay on the ground-that he was not a resident of that county. It was stated after Mr. Brice's election to the Senate-that he had refused to pay taxes on personal property in Ohio on the ground that he was not a resident of Ohio but of New York. But this reported action of the Treasurer of Allen county is the first step taken to establish the question of residence in the courts. It is said, that now since the Republicans have regained possession of the Legislature they have resolved to try to oust Brice from the Senate and elect Foraker in his place, thus sending both Sherman and Foraker and closing up the breach between the respective adherents of these rival aspirants, and the suit for back taxes is probably a part of their programme. If the fact could be established in court that Mr. Brice refused to pay taxes in Ohio on the ground that he was not a citizen of Ohio, of course it would have great weight in establishing the claim made by those who contest his right to a seat in the Senate as a Senator

About the only news we get from Ireland these days, of a political character, is when some of the Parnellite and anti-Parnellite factions meet and exchange courtesies with blackthorns, paving stones, etc. which they invariably do every time they get a chance. Mr. Parnell alive was a pretty live issue, but his dying does not seem to have made him any the less a live issue. His followers, many of whom would have rendered their country valuable service by following him into the grave When the Alliance passes resolu- instead of to it, and the opposition, tions like those it gives evidence | many of whom might also be buried that it is getting down to business to the great relief of Ireland, pummel each other with as keen wardness of the cotton trouble. The | a gusto as they did when Parnell and resolutions attribute the depression his rivals faced each other in the and the low prices of to-day to a flesh. It is a revolting sight to see "discriminating financial system and | men who profess to be laboring for the high protective tariff on cotton | the redemption of their country from goods." This is true as far as it oppression degenerating into mere mobs, and in their rabid hatred of each other, undoing the good work that the real friends of Ireland had also have demanded that the tariff been doing, bringing disgrace to be reduced on the machinery with themselves and calamity to their seemed to be within reach, until these in ane factions destroyed it by their unhappy wrangles and ungoverned rage.

In discussing the protective tariff question, as it is shaped and administered these days we have contended that it discriminates against the poor man, which is one of its odious features. As a rule the rate of tariff taxation is light, comparative to the value, on the goods the rich buy, and heavy on the goods the poor buy, thus imposing the heaviest burden on the poor who are the least able to bear it. A Mr. Vanbergen, of Paris, a large exporter of textile goods, doing a business annually of 35,000,000 francs, when asked as to the effect of the McKinley tariff on his trade, replied: "The McKinley tariff has not materially injured our trade in high class goods, but our business in cheaper goods has diminished considerably." Rich people who want fine goods can afford to pay fine prices for them to gratify their tastes or contribute to their comfort, and they will pay the high prices rather than do without them, while the poor must be content with a poor quality of goods or do without them altogether. European manufacturers who have trade in this country adapt themselves to the situation and make a lower grade of goods to retain the trade and thus the American purchaser of common goods gets a counterfeit for which he pays as much as he had been paying for a better article before the Mc-Kinley tariff went into effect.

During the past twelve months pensions have been granted under the Disability Pension act at the rate of about 30,000 a month, and still the applications are rolling in by the thousand. Even Commissioner Raum has begun to get scared at the way the thing is growing and has issued an order requiring positive proof of permanent disability not the result of vicious habits, before a certificate is issued. This is coming in rather late, but better late than never.

According to the report of the Inter-State Commissioner there are in this country 163,597 miles of railway, valued at $9,894,483,400. We would like to see some of the advocates of the Government ownership of railroads figure up the ways and means for raising this little sum when the Government decided to go in and monopolize the railroad bus-

A SENSATION.

A Personal Encounter Between Two Clerical Gentlemen,

[Star Correspondence.] RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 2, 1891 .-Much excitement was caused here this morning about 9.30 o'clock, from a personal encounter between Rev. . Prestly Barrett, late editor of the Christian Sun, and Mr. J. T. Ball, who for some time past has been a member of the Christian denomination and sometimes acted as a travelling preacher. The parties met on Wilmington street, where, after some sharp words, Ball struck Barrett over the head with a heavy walking-stick, breaking the weapon. The blow was a severe one, but Mr. Barrett's hat prevented what might otherwise have proven a very serious matter. The parties were at once arrested and placed in the station house. It appears that Ball, for some reason, had been unfrocked from his ministerial calling, and urged Barrett to sign a petition for his restoration. This Barrett refused to do, in plain language, and turned to walk off, when Ball struck him from behind. The preliminary trial of the case was postponed until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

CURRENT COMMENT.

- Perhaps Mr. McKinley didn't want to open a foreign market to a barrel of American pork because he apprehended that a barrel of American whiskey might slip in somewhere. The foreigners are calling for the whiskey right now .- Loueville Courirr- Journal, Dem.

- Senator Sherman's embarrassment on the subject of Mr. Brice's senatorial status is graceful and dignified. Mr. Brice himself, however, shows small evidence of terpidation. He appears to have the comfortable faculty of letting other people do the worrying .- Wash, Sta

POLITICAL POINTS.

The real fight is for good politics for 1892, and when it comes to that the West is safe for the Speakership. Southern candidates will strengther their party by retiring in a modest and graceful way, that they may make the path of victory open and clear for the

- The visit of Mr. Mills to Brooklyn recently seems to have been in the nature of a shining success, Cha-pin, Coombs, Clancy and Magner, the four Democratic Congressmen of Kings, decided yesterday to vote for him for Speaker. It pays to be sociable and agreeable like.-New York Advertiser,

- All of the candidates for speaker are zealous tariff reformers. But the fact that all the protectionists have trained their batteries upon Mills makes him the leading exponent of the tariff reform idea in the contest. His election will be notice to the country that the democracy occupies the most advanced ground on this question .- Indianapolis Sentinel, Dem.
