When the hungry Europeans have been duly initiated into the mysteries of American corn bread, they will conclude that this is really a great country.

The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette says "it costs only $100 to hang a man according to the Ohio plan of penitentiary executions." Well, if that is so, why in thunder ain't there more Ohio men hanged ?

The bank of England holds in its vaults $125,000,000, and the bank of Germany $200,000,000. If they will enter into correspondence with T. Reed, ex-Czar of the 51st Congress, he can tell them how to expeditiously get rid of that surplus.

The home market is all right as far as it goes, but if it hadn't been for the foreign market, which the high tariffites have been doing so much to destroy, what would the Western wheat growers do with their rattling big surplus this year?

Mexico must be an inviting field for the tooth artist, when he gets $10 for pulling a molar, $100 to $150 for a set of teeth on rubber, and $1,000 for plugging, with gold, a mouthful of grinders. At these prices the dentist seems to also plug the wearer of the teeth.

There are portions of Southwest Mexico which have been so little explored that very little is known about them. The latest discovery reported is an Aztec city with stone buildings, and a population of 4,000 or 5,000 in the mountains of an almost impenetrable section.

Rev. J. A. B. Scherer a Son of North Carolina-Scherers in the Ministry-Farewell Services, etc.

Rev. J. A. B. Scherer, who preaches to-day in the Lutheran church, is a native of North Carolina, and was born in Salisbury. He belongs to a family of preachers. In the last fifty years there have been twelve representatives of this branch of the family alone in the Lutheran ministry of America.

Rev. Mr. Scherer has three brothers in the Lutheran ministry to-day. They are located as follows: Rev. M. G. G. Scherer, Mt. Holly, Pa.; Rev. W. J. D. Scherer, Fairfield, Pa.; Rev. L. P. Scherer, Salem, Va. His father and also his grandfather were Lutheran pastors, and so were all his uncles but one. The most of them have preached in the Old North State.

The Scherer is both an unusual and also remarkable family of ministers. This will be the last Sunday Missionary Scherer will spend in North Carolina. His venerable mother accompanied him to our city and with him is a guest of Rev. Dr. Peschau's family.

Farewell services will be held in the Lutheran Church on Monday night. In these impressive services Miss Schwarz will sing a solo, the Misses Stolter will sing a duet, and others will assist in the church music. All are welcome.

The Dog Market.

There is an evident weakness in the dog market. A colored citizen from the Black river section has been here two days trying to sell a canine of the feminine gender. She is a nice little compound of terrier and hound. Of course, the owner came to this office. No fel low ever has a sick dog or offers one for sale in Wilmington that he is not sent post haste to the field editor of the STAR. It does not seem to be known that he buys only about four dogs every year; and, more remarkable still, these curious cultivators of canine cusses are utterly oblivious of the fact that our D. D.'s prescriptions are warranted to kill without having to use the second barrel.

brother in black from Black river, with the black-and-tan dog assured us she was "bully" on rabbits and mighty "peart" on 'possums. He said Mr. Burruss, of the Wilmington Fox Club, told him we wanted a deer dog, and while his dog was not "'sperienced arter deers he knowed she would dearly love to run 'em if she had a fair show." Black River wanted to sell his dog for $5.00, but the best offer he could get from our field editor was fifty old newspapers and the original copy of a piece of "declined"

The Finest and Largest

Two children of the family-Chauncey, aged six, and Ida, aged two years-were together in a room, standing near the But, to "return to our mutton," the fireplace, when the little girl's dress caught fire from the open grate and she was soon in a blaze. Both children screamed and the mother and several other persons rushed into the room and tore the burning clothing from the child. The only person reported as having sustained any injury was the little boy, whose right hand was slightly burned in trying to save his sister.
