By WILLIAM H. BERNARD.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEB. 10, 1892.

THE SENATE.

The proposition to amend the Constitution so that United States Senators shall be elected by the direct vote of the people, instead of by the legislatures, has given rise to various suggestions as improvements on the Senate as it is now constituted.

There are several objections urged in favor of a change, one of which is that while each State has two Senators, and none more than two, the smallest State is as mighty, as far as power in the Senate goes, as the most populous; Nevada, with her 45,000, offsetting New York, with her 5,000,000 of people. Two plans have been suggested to remedy this—one by Congressman Miller, of Wisconsin, who proposes to divide the States into two classes, based on population, give the larger States two Senators, and the smaller one. What the distinguishing number is to be we do not know, but it would embrace a dozen or more of our forty-four States and would take in all the pocket boroughs that have been made to order since the war.

As the only States that would be affected by this would be the smaller number as well as the smaller States who are favorably struck with this plan think it would pass Congress with little opposition, if any proposition bearing on that subject would, and would encounter no trouble in being ratified by the necessary two-thirds of the States.

The other plan, based upon the same idea, the difference being that it does not contemplate a reduction, but an increase of Senators, is suggested by the Chicago Tribune. This plan gives each State two Senators as new, and in addition to these one for every million, or moiety of a million, of population which would make the Senate stand about as follows:

Table with 2 columns: State and Number of Senators. Includes Alabama, Nebraska, Nevada, Arkansas, N. Hampshire, Colorado, New Jersey, Connecticut, New York, Delaware, North Carolina, Florida, Texas, Georgia, Ohio, Idaho, Oregon, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Rhode Island, Iowa, South Carolina, Kansas, South Dakota, Kentucky, Tennessee, Louisiana, Vermont, Maine, Maryland, Virginia, Massachusetts, Washington, Michigan, West Virginia, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Mississippi, Wyoming, Missouri, Montana, Total.

The Senate for the last thirty years has come about as near representing China as it has the principle of State sovereignty. Within that time the most ready, zealous, persistent and unscrupulous ignorers of State lines and assailants of State sovereignty were found right in the Senate and are found there to-day.

We do not mean to assert that there are no defenders of the State rights in the Senate, for there are, and some very able and uncompromising ones, as there are also in the House, which is a body representative not of the States as such, as the Senate is supposed by some to be, but of the people.

But the popular dissatisfaction with the Senate as now composed does not arise so much from the fact that the smaller States have too much power in proportion to population and the larger too little, as to the fact that the Senate has ceased to be a representative body either of the States or of the people, but has become a mere resort, so to speak, of men whose bank accounts have put them where their brains never could. It is the man of dollars who now goes to the Senate from those States where men have large fortunes and where money is more potent than intellect or solid worth.

It is a notable fact that as extravagant as the House of Representatives has been of late years with the people's money the Senate has been still more so. Few appropriation bills go from the House to the Senate that are not increased by the Senate, and conference committees have become so common, when the House has refused to accept the amounts added by the Senate, as to have ceased to attract attention. Economy cannot be expected in a body which counts as many millionaires as the Senate and where these millionaires control the majority party. This might not be altogether overcome if the Senators were elected by the people, but it would be in a great measure.

MINOR MENTION.

Senator George, of Mississippi, has introduced a bill in the Senate to make railroad companies responsible for injuries to employes, even when the injuries are caused by the carelessness of other employes. It also provides that the cars shall be equipped with automatic couplers, and in case of suits for damages for injuries, the absence of these shall be prima facie evidence against the companies.

It might be questioned by some whether it is quite fair to hold companies responsible in these cases for the carelessness of their employes, but companies are held responsible for injuries to passengers, resulting from the carelessness of their employes, and if this be right, in what essential feature does the other proposition differ from it? If freight cars were provided with automatic couplers, as many passenger cars are, there would be but little injury to employes, and little loss of life, or, until the coupler that meets the requirements be found, if freight cars were provided with bumpers a few inches longer, and the roofs of the cars projected sufficiently at both ends to nearly cover the space between the cars when linked together, there would be a continuous walkway for the brakeman from one end of the train to the other, and no danger of tumbling between the cars when hastening to answer the blow of the whistle.

When so little effort would result in preventing much loss of life and injury to body, it is remarkable that so little is done.

There is a scarcity of money in the South and the West. There is not only an abundance, but a superabundance of money in the Central and the Eastern States. The South and the West are agricultural sections; the Centre and the East are manufacturing sections. They have the benefit of the protective tariff, and the South and West pay tribute to them accordingly. The demand for an increase of circulating medium comes from the South and West. One of the principal reasons why these sections suffer from the need of money as they do is because heavy tribute is levied upon every tariff-taxed article they buy and the money goes to the manufacturing States to pay for them, and the result is that the money of the country is drawn to the manufacturing centres, creating a surplus there and a deficiency elsewhere. A proper adjustment of the tariff would remedy this, and leave the circulating medium of the country more evenly distributed, and would thus prevent in a great measure the stringency from which the agricultural sections suffer.

The oft-predicted Blaine letter has appeared at last, "in due season," in which he announces that he is not a candidate for the Presidency and that his name will not go before the Republican National Convention. He couldn't very well postpone saying something on this subject any longer, for the conventions are beginning to be held to choose delegates to the National Convention, so that Mr. Blaine could not remain silent without doing injustice to his friends, if he had resolved not to be a candidate, nor remain in the Cabinet, if he intended to be a candidate, without playing the part of duplicity with the President. He has said all under the circumstances that it is necessary to say, but yet in the face of this letter Mr. Blaine's name may go before the convention, although he says it will not.

There is nothing in it to prevent him from accepting a nomination if it be tendered to him by the apparently, unsolicited action of the convention. In that case he could not be charged with inconsistency for he has not yet said that he would not accept a nomination if it were tendered—and if he thought he could be elected. But he may have some serious doubts about that.

THE SENATE OF VIRGINIA is against our women who are ambitious to serve in the professional walks of life. We fear there is something wrong about the Senate. The ladies are all right and their time is to come. There will be another Legislature in two years from now.—Norfolk Landmark, Dem.

THE PROPOSAL OF CONGRESS to exclude from circulation in the District of Columbia and other places under the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States, Puck, Judge and other publications that ridicule the statesmen of the land is one that will produce a great deal more of ridicule than it will prevent.—Indianapolis Sentinel, Dem.

Time was when if any man in the United States dared attempt to capture by political machinations the exalted office of President he would have excited such a storm of indignation against him as would have caused him to hide his diminished head forever from the public sight. So far was the feeling carried that in 1860, when Stephen A. Douglas, for the first time in the history of the country, began making stump speeches in his own behalf as a Presidential candidate, he excited the disgust even of many of his own following. Yet nowadays, so degraded has public sentiment become, that it is no uncommon thing for a man to electioneer for the Presidency.—Richmond Times, Dem.

It means much for the "Springer plan" that it has the sanction of so eminent a tariff reformer as David A. Wells. His forthcoming letter on the subject to be read at the next conference of the Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee, will be a valuable addition to the literature of the campaign, and its publication is awaited with interest.—Savannah News, Dem.

THE PROPOSITION TO SIMPLY REPEAL the McKinley Tariff acts and go to the country on that issue meets with small favor among the Democrats in Congress. It is asserted that the repeal of the new law would restore the old law. The better opinion, however, is that the old law is as dead as if it had never existed, and that to give it life it would be necessary to re-enact its provisions in express terms. What friend of Tariff Reform in Congress could vote for such a measure, even for the sake of repealing the McKinley act?—Phil. Record, Dem.

Kind words for Mr. Hill are not necessarily unkind words for Mr. Cleveland any more than kind words for Cleveland are unkind for Hill. The rivalry of the friends of these two distinguished New Yorkers will defeat them both, if anything does. In that case what is the matter with Palmer or Springer or Vilas? It is a physical impossibility for both Hill and Cleveland to be elected, and it all of New York, Democrats, Mugwumps and Republicans are to be consulted nothing else appears to be satisfactory except to elect both.—Norfolk Landmark, Dem.

Young ladies, on the eve of marriage, now give "supper dinners," at which female friends only are entertained. They are allowed to talk of everything, and never fail to mention the numerous curative benefits of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup that cures all cough, cold, bronchitis, croup, and sore throat.

DISGUSTED WITH NOBILITY.

Why a Young American Traveller Departed Suddenly for Home. Philadelphia Times.

It is told of a young American traveller that during his stay in Naples he was introduced to two noble gentlemen of alleged ancient lineage, but poor worldly fortune in other respects. Having abundance of cash himself he made use of their social advantages on an indirect cash basis, the tacit arrangement apparently being satisfactory all round.

While at a fashionable reception the following day, imagine his surprise to see the younger of his two mentors, who was not aware of his presence, pull out the lost watch with a considerable flourish. Dragging the other of the pair into an alcove, he told him what he had seen.

"I am going out to accuse him of it and expose him," he cried excitedly. "Do nothing of the kind," was his friend's advice; "you will only create a scene and effect little good. There is an easier way of managing it. Leave it to me; I'll see that it's returned to you."

THEY MET AT LAST. And He Approved of the Style in Which the Yankee Got Up. Chicago Herald.

He sat on the curbstone, the fractional part of a man. Both arms were absent, one leg was gone and a dark cicatrice over the left cheekbone indicated that he had met trouble face to face. A Grand Army suit and the bronze button of the order indicated sufficiently where the difficulty had been encountered.

PERSONAL. — W. H. Gibson, the artist in black and white, is a heavy-built man, with square-cut, jet-black beard, an impressive forehead, and eyes that twinkle merrily when he is in a jesting mood.

— The parents of ex-Senator Ingalls are still living at Haverhill, Mass. The father, now over 80 years of age, was the inventor of several useful machines employed in manufacturing shoes.

— Mrs. K. L. Minor, of Louisiana, one of the board of lady managers of the Columbian Exposition, is a successful sugar planter, and, with her brother, manages the affairs of a 5,000-acre plantation.

— Mrs. John A. Logan and Mrs. E. B. Day, of New Orleans, are planning to establish an industrial association for the purpose of training young colored girls for domestics and supplying help to housekeepers.

— Pundita Ramabai's home for high-caste Hindoo widows, at Poona, is now occupied by twenty-six widows, from nine to twenty-five years of age, of whom some lost their husbands before they were seven years of age.

— Edward Box says that there are only four authors who earn $80,000 a year with their pens, and these lucky ones are William Dean Howells, Robert Louis Stevenson, Mark Twain and Mrs. Burnett. Lew Wallace received $100,000 in eight years in royalties from "Ben Hur."

— John E. Borlas, who sought notoriety the other day by discharging pistol shots at the House of Commons, is 31 years of age, well connected, and took second-class classical honors at Oxford. He is an accomplished musician, an excellent pianist, an arctic critic of considerable knowledge and ability, and a poet.

— Prince Victor Emanuel, heir to the Italian crown, is one of the handsomest and most accomplished men of his station in life. Although nearly 30 years of age and widely travelled, he is yet unmarried. He is versed in several languages, amiable and intellectual, and generally and justly beloved.

WITH A BULLET IN HIS BRAIN.

A Man Shot in the Head Lives for One Week Without Suffering. San Jose Record.

"The experience of Jacob Heft, the suicide, who fired two bullets through his head several days ago, reminds me of the case of a young man who was shot through the head in this city several years ago," said a prominent physician this morning.

"The young man was a driver on the Santa Clara street cars," continued the physician, "and his room was in a house opposite the convent where the accident occurred that resulted in his death. 'The landlady's son was playing with a very small pistol, which discharged accidentally, and the bullet, not much larger than a duck shot, entered the centre of the young man's forehead, and as was afterwards learned, it passed almost entirely through his head. 'Without moving from where he stood the wounded man said: 'That was a centre shot, my boy; I don't think you could do that again,' and then he wiped a few drops of blood from his forehead and walked out to consult a physician.

"The young man continued to keep on his feet and did not suffer any inconvenience from the bullet in his brain for several days. Then he became crazy and had to be held on a bed until his death, which occurred more than a week after the shooting. 'How do you account for such a case, doctor? 'Easy enough," replied the physician. "The bullet had not come in contact with any vital portion of the brain, and the man lived until inflammation set in. The case of the young Dan Murphy is much more remarkable. As far as the world knows he is carrying a leaden bullet in his brain, and he is in good health and as bright as usual. Strange things are happening in these modern days, and nobody can tell what to expect or what surprises await us."

REST BRINGS BEAUTY. A Southern Woman's Advice to Her Sisters. New York Press.

"Rest a plenty, dear," is the Southern woman's advice in cases of trouble or illness, and there is more reason and sense in the prescription than in the united wisdom of all the doctors in America. Half the ills of feminine flesh and spirit may be laid at the door of strain and overfatigue, and an afternoon of perfect repose will often ward off a week's illness. By repose I don't mean sitting in an easy chair with a book or some work to be interrupted and made to jump up half a dozen times, with hands and brain just as active as if you were about your business.

No; lie prone on a comfortable sofa or bed, with corset and boots removed and a light wrap thrown over you; have the room a bit darkened, and think about the pleasant things you can conjure up. Follow the example of the lower animals. They realize that rest and warmth are the very best medicines. Rest every now and then, even if there is nothing absolutely wrong with you. It will make you lovely, and to a real womanly woman beauty, or at least attractiveness, is as well worth working for as anything on earth.
