ELECTRIC RAILWAYS.

There is great activity now in some of the Northern States in projecting city and suburban electric railways. In the State of Ohio it has almost reached the proportions of a craze, and there is more talk of electric railways than there is of all other kinds of enterprises combined. While some of these are projected in good faith as business enterprises, some of them are doubtless started for speculation, the object of the promoters being to boom them and when the opportune time comes unload on the confiding and step out with a pocket tull of money. The opportunities for this are very good, for with the craze for these roads the projectors find no difficulty in securing the most liberal concessions as inducements to build, such as rights of way through streets of towns and cities, permission to run at rapid speed through towns, free rights of way through the country between towns, and in , some instances the use of the country roads for laying their tracks, for all of which privileges steam railways would have to pay if conceded at all.

It is suspected that there is a purpose in view, at present concealed, ultimately and in the near future to be carried out, that is to construct these roads to run in opposition to the steam roads as carriers of passengers and freight. It has been noticed that lines apparently gotten up independently, and as mere local lines, will connect, and that all that is necessary to do when the time comes to make them trunk lines, will be to build a few short connecting links, for which provision has been made by securing charters and rights of way. This opinion has been further strengthened by the passage of a bill through the Pennsylvania Legislature authorizing electric railways to carry not only passengers, but freight, and to pass over the streets of cities, a privilege which would be fought very hard if asked for by a steam railway, if it was granted at all. In point of concessions, franchises, rights of way, use of road-beds, &c., these new roads, now so popular and so warmly welcomed, get about all they ask, and they ask for about everything they can think ot.

As there is doubtless to be much activity in the building of these roads within the next few years they become a subject of more than ordinary interest and are destined to exert great influence in the development of towns and the country which they penetrate. The cheapness with which they can be constructed, and their ability to move speedily over much steeper grades than steam railways can, makes it practicable to build and operate them at a profit where the steam railway could not be built, or could not be made to pay expenses if built. The result of this will be that every town large enough to support a street carrying service of any kind will be supplied with electric cars, and small cities not far distant from larger ones will be connected with them by these lines and along these lines will be residences than any other one cause. The rapid compelled the utilizing of space to enable business and laboring men to be within reasonable distance of their place of business or work, but the street car, which enabled people to ride at small expense instead of walking and consuming much time, changed all this and our cities began at once to expand.

As this "rapid transit," which was nothing compared to the "rapid transit" of the electric car spinning along smoothly at the rate of twenty or more miles an hour, revolutionized the building of our cities, so will he electric cars create another revolution, and we will have instead of expanded towns, what might be called continuous towns, reaching from the smaller to the larger towns or commercial centers.

Take two cities, for instance, forty or fifty miles apart. Companies will be organized with ample capital to buy large bodies of land between them, lay out fine highways, with inviting walks and drives, lighted by electricity, and with double track electric roads, giving the people who live along the line quick transit throughout the day and part of the night, in and out, to and from, either of the connected points. The lots along these lines for some distance, on either side, provided with broad. paved avenues, supplied with water and lighted by electricity, would find ready purchasers who would erect handsome homes, which they could do at much less cost more comfortably than they could in the cities, and on less money. Within the near future the long city, so to speak, that is, the extension of cities for miles out into the country, in parallel lines similar to the blocks of cities but only a few blocks deep, because plenty of house room will be one of the features, will be no rarity in this country, and that will be a desirable consummation because it will check the overcrowding of cities, and thus contribute both to the comfort and health of the people. There are great possibilities in the future of the electric railway, the beginning of which we have not yet seen.

MINOR MENTION.

Mr. Max Judd, of Missouri, finds himself suddenly attracting a good deal of attention on both sides of the ocean, and all because Mr. Cleveland appointed him Consul General of the United States to Austria. The situation of Mr. Judd is a unique one, for he finds himself between two fires. As soon as the appointment was announced the anti-Semetic press in Vienna savagely attacked him because he is a Jew, and they construe the appointment of a Jew to anything in that part of the mundane vineyard as highly improper, if nor grossly outrageous. That's fanatical prejudice, of course, which respect, which is the course the Austrian Government, also, should pursue, if it shows as much sense as it ought to show in matters of that kind, especially after having acted so foolishly in the case of Mr. Keiley, who was appointed Minister to Austria under Mr. Cleveland's first administration. But the peculiarity of Mr. Judd's case is that while the Vienna papers oppose him on the ground that he is a Jew, Jewish papers in Missouri oppose him on the ground that he is not a Jew. They do not assert that a Jew ought to be appointed but simply that Max Judd is not a Jew and should not be so considered, and they therefore object to his being classed as a Jew and his appointment being regarded as a recognition of the Jewish element. They say he is a Jew only in so far as he held a pew in one of the Jewish Temples, and that he affiliated with hem that far to advance his material and political fortunes. Atter reading all that has been printed Mr. Judd may be in doubt whether he is a Tew or not. But he is a capital chess player and concerning that there seems to be no dispute. He will go to Vienna as Consul General, or there will be no Consul General of

When the New York Advertiser asserts that a reduction of our pension expenditures to $66,000,000 a year "would leave too many widows and crippled veterans to the cold charity of the world" it talks either nonsensically or dishonestly. This is the same old stereotyped fraud which the pension agents and their tools in Congress have been using for years to boost pension bills and pile up the expenditures to their present enormous proportions. If pensions were paid only to those who were dependent upon them and had an honest claim to them, there would be no complaint from any quarter, but the Advertiser is too well informed not to know that the larger part of the pensions now paid goes to men who are in no danger of being left to the "cold charity of the world," and to "coffee coolers" and "dead beats," as the Grand Army Gazette calls them. If only the needy or deserving received pensions the total expenditures instead of being and where they could live $166,000,0000, or even $66,000.000 of Raleigh, and that both papers would not be more than $25,000,000 a year. It is too late in the day, with the lights before us, to be detending or apologizing for this monstrous plunder with the "cold charity"

BOOK NOTICES

The North Carolina Teacher for March presents a valuable list of articles from pens of practical teachers and others interested in educational matters.

The reader will find in the Eclectic Magazine for April a splenidd selection of articles from the leading foreign publications. Published by E. R. Pelton. 144 Eighth street, New York.

The children for whom it is published will find Our Little Ones for April a delightful number, filled with interesting stories and pretty pictures. Published by the Russell publishing Company, 196 Summer street, Boston.

The Baltimore Manufacturers' Monthly has changed its name to the Southern States, which, in our opinion, is more appropriate and expressive. The March number is devoted mainly to an exposition of the resources of Georgia, and furnishes much compact and valuable information. Published by The Manufacturers' Record Publishing Company, Baltimore, Md.

The April number of The North American Review contains some interesting articles on current topics which are engaging the attention of the Amerithis country will neither notice nor can people, in addition to a miscellaneous list of productions by eminent writers. The two articles, one on "Pension Revision," the other on "The Financial Situation," are of special interest at this time. Address, North American Review, No. 3, East Fourteenth street,

The Review of Reviews, for April, 18 a capital number. It contains illustrated sketches of President Cleveland and his Cabinet, of many other noted individuals, and numerous sketches, with portraits of the prominent ministers and religious workers of the world who are to take part in the World's First Parliament of Religion, which is to meet in Chicago next September. There are also other articles in which the reader will be interested. Address, Review of Reviews, No. 13, Astor Place, New York.

CURRENT COMMENT.

- The success of retaliatory reciprocity may be seen from the fact that during the twenty-three months in which the reciprocity treaty with Brazil has been in existence the exports of the United States to that country have increased to the amount of $1,148,769. In the same period the imports of the United States from Brazil have increased to the amount of $121,247,627! It is rather a lopsided, fraudulent species of reciprocity which produces such results .-Phil. Record, Dem.

- During the cruise northward from Hampton Roads of the international squadron, a series of experiments with carrier pigeons will be made by officers on the American ships. If the results are satisfactory, a number of carrier pigeons may be manly spoils system, the latter is to | included in each vessel's outfit hereafter. At any rate the new cruiser New York is to have a cote and a number of pigeons for messenger service. Mr. George W. Childs, of Philadelphia, has just made such a gift to the vessel .- Savannah News,

- An injunction has been issued against Chief Arthur, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, on account of his boycotting order, but it is difficult to see how, as an injunction, it can prove effective. Judge Rick's decision that the Brotherhood is a conspiracy against the laws of the country may have some moral effect upon the engineers, who are, as a rule, patriotic citizens, with no disposition to array themselves against the Government or the laws. The boycott, however, is a most mischievous agent for interfering with the work of innocent people in order to. coerce employers into submission to the demands of their workmen. Discredited and condemned by the Courts, it may well be abandoned by the engineers and all other workmen as a dishonorable weapon of warfare. -Phil. Dedger, Ind.

NOVELTY IN JOURNALISM

Greensboro Record.

We see it announced by the Raleigh News and Observer that that paper has leased the Daily Chronicle, will hereafter be published by the News and Observer. This is, we suppose, a preliminary step to consolidation of the two papers. In the mean time both will be published by the News and Observer. This is somewhat of a novelty in iournalism, as we do not recall an instance in the past, where two morning dailles were run in the same town under the same management. Capt. S. A. Ashe, the veteran and scholarly editor of the News and Observer, we suppose will now wield the editorial pen for both papers, and our talented and successful young townsman, Mr. Greek O. Andrews, who has for five or six years past held the responsible position of city editor of the News and Observer, will now doubtless have double responsibility and prominence in holding such an important position on the two leading morning dailies of the State. This places him higher in the ranks of the journalistic profession than any other editor of his tender years in the State, and his success will be gratifying to his family and many friends here at his old home in Greensboro.

Formed in character and policy and of mature judg ment, as becomes a newspaper forty years old, The Times has by no means got its growth, or abated its eagerness for continuous improvement. Its ieaders are aware that it is an excellent newspaper every day in the year, and that year by year it becomes a better one. It is a clean newspaper, for it respects itself and its readers: it is a trustworthy one, for after collecting the genuine news it has no time or space for the spurious; and it is as nearly complete as skill, experience and generous expenditure can make it.

The news reports and editorial discussions of The Times will have an unusual interest during the Presidential canvass of the coming year. Men of all parties testify to the unequaled work of The Times in the cause of Tariff Reform, the issue upon which the fight for the Presidency is to be made. No newspaper in the country presents to the minds of the voter or the campaign speaker such an abundance of arguments and telling facts against the theory and the practice of the McKiniey tariff-makers. But to intelligent men of either party The Times will be a well-nigh indispensable expositor of the principles and the progress of the electoral contest.
