When confronted with this now, they say the collapse didn't come then, for there was a Republican Senate between the tariff destroyers and the people, even when the Democrats had the President and the House of Representatives, but they forget that when they take refuge behind a plea of this kind, that they convict themselves of wilful and knowing deception when they raised such a howl to scare the workmen when there was no occasion for their being scared and not the remotest possibility of the tariff being interfered with while the bulwark of a Republican protective Senate was there to prevent it. They confess the hypocrisy of their pleading and the fraud they were playing on the people.

But if all they now say be true, if this great industrial paralysis be the result of fear: that the protection which manufacturers have had will be reduced, it is one of the best arguments that could be advanced for a reduction and one of the best of reasons why the protective policy should be abandoned altogether. There can be no permanent stability in any industrial system which may be thrown into confusion at every election, and be prostrated on the advent of a new party to power as they say our industrial system has been by the accession to power of the Democratic party. If the thousands of workmen who are employed in the protected industries and the many millions of dollars invested in them are to be dependent upon the perpetuation of a policy advocated by one political party and opposed by another, they are both in a pitiable condition and it would be better for both that such a policy had never been thought of and that it be wiped out of existence at the earliest possible day. If that is the price the employer who puts his money in manufacturing industries, and the workman whose brains and muscle are employed to operate them pay for this so-called protection it is very dearly purchased. They would do infinitely better to go back to the so-called free trade tariff of 1846 when every industry hoed its own row, took care of itself, stood on its own merits, looked to no Government coddling, and instead of asking for it went along, attended to its own business without any Government paternalism or interference, and prospered as they never prospered before or since. When the Republican politicians of to-day attribute the business derangement and industrial depression to tariff reform agitation they prove too much and are making out a very strong case against the system they essay to champion and defend.

Senator Quay is reported as saying, when asked about the probabilities of the passage of the Wilson bill, "I know if we had the majority in Congress that the Democrats have we would pass any measure that was endorsed by our party." The difference between the Democrats and Republicans in power is that the Republicans stick together and the Democrats don't.

laboring to destroy. This is the same old stereotype line of "argument" that has been resorted to in every tariff discussion that has taken place in Congress in the past twenty-five years, and it shows that the advocates of protection dare not discuss the question on its merits. It may be noted that among the Democrats who have spoken upon the subject up to the present the most radical reformers are from the North, and the most conservative from the South, which gives the lie to the intimation that it is a tariff gotten up in the interest of the South, even if we had not the further evidence that some of the most outspoken opposition to the bill comes from some of the Southern Democratic Representatives who object to it on account of its free raw material provisions.

With the refusal of the Provisional Government of Hawaii to comply with the polite hint of Minister Willis to step down and out of the interest of this Administration in Hawaiian affairs has definitely come to an end. Ex. Queen Liliuokalani and President Dole will have to fight it out without any further interference on the part of this Government. A policy of non-interference, which should have been adopted in the beginning, must now be adopted out of necessity.—Phil Record, Dem.

A London natterf says his observations establish the fact that men's heads continue to grow until they reach the age of sixty years. They may do so in this country but some of them never grow big enough to fill their grandfathers' hats. Whether the heads grow larger or not there is no doubting the fact that the skulls of a good many grow thicker. There are lots of men in this country who still adhere to the protective tariff delusion.
