A Kentucky judge who fined a woman $10 for making another woman stand up in church, didn't object so much to the standing up as to the force used and the method employed, which was a crooked pin surreptitiously placed on the seat. He didn't think there was anything straight about that.

Some leading Democratic politicians are predicting that the Democratic Presidential nomination will go West next time. Well, just for the sake of varying the monotony, if for nothing else, it might go that way just for once, and possibly after we had gotten out of the rut, it might after a while swing Southward.

The denizens of the Ashland, Ky., Congressional district are enjoying a free show these days, and if they are not having fun it isn't the fault of the three Congressional aspirants, who are furnishing the pyrotechnical oratorical performances. It is a triangular combination, in which each of the performers, Breckinridge, Owens and Settle, does his level best to make things lively.

John Wetsel, of Pittsburg, got a pull on John Sellers and pulled him out of a well into which he had fallen. He then tried to pull $50 out ot John for the job. But John held that this was a Providential rescue and as the other John was simply an agent of Providence he must look to his employer for pay. Wetsel has sued for the amount and thinks he has a well-founded case.

Col. Cockerill, of the New York Advertiser, rises to remark that, "Every Confederate monument reared in the South is a stumbling block in the way of the progress of that part of the country." Well, if this be so, the South isn't very anxious for the kind of people or the kind of "capital" that a Confederate monument would keep out, and will try to worry along without them.

Mrs. Quinly, a colored prophetess of Wichita, Kansas, stirred up that part of the vineyard by prophesying that on the 3rd of June every large city in the world would be blown up with dynamite, and that for the next three months there would be a war of extermination between Protestants and Catholics. But as she got her date wrong on the blow up part of the programme the people out there are recovering from their excitement.

One of the speakers at the recent anti-income tax meeting in New York said it was a mistaken idea to suppose that the rich property holders would pay the tax, for if a man with many houses to rent (like the Astors, for instance) had to pay an income tax they would simply tack it on to the rent and make the renter pay it. Well, why in the mischief are they kicking so hard against it, if they can make some one else pay it?

WITH THE CLAY PIGEONS. In answer to the proclamations sent out by the anti-gambling society of London against betting on horse races, Lord Rosebery declares that Were Heard at Burgaw. he "is not ashamed of being the owner of a horse that can win races." As a general thing it is the fellow who owns the other horse that feels worried over it. Secretary Smith took pretty good care of Georgia in the matter of apappointments in his Department. He made 106 Georgia patriots happy, just twice as many as he took in out of the wet from North Carolina and Virginia, which come next with 53 each.

The Republican Senators are very much distressed at the idea of saddling a sugar tax on the people. Why, we thought it was the foreigners and not the consumers in this country who pay the tariff tax.

Idaho is not suffering from floods at present but there are some pretty wet towns there. Wallace, for instance, with a population of 1,200 has 57 saloons.

With the late State election in Oregon that picturesque figure, Gov. Pennoyer, will retire, and Oregon will never look upon his like again.

A Pleasant Afternoon at the Club Grounds Yesterday-How the Boys Shot-Sanders and Bernard Fired Guns That

The boys of the E. D. and G. P. A. spent a pleasant alternoon at their grounds near Hilton Park yesterday. The weather was all that could be desired, the electric traps, with the exception of No. 4, worked well, the ride on the electric cars was "just splendid," the attendance of members and visitors was above the average, and everybody had a good time except the unforunate winner of the leather medal.

There were twenty-four entries for the shoot, and each contestant was allowed twenty shots. This is SCATTERING SHOT, Master R. G. Stokley, who stands so high in the above score, is a son of Mr. W. H. Stokley, of Wrightsville, and is only 14 years old. It will be seen that be is in no danger of being hit by the leather medal.

It was a surprise to all that Stuart Heinsberger should so easily win the leather medal. He is one of the best shots in the club, and it is safe to predict that he will not wear the medal longer than next Friday.

What was the matter with Ed. Polley vesterday? He is never expected to be lower than second in the score, and he is evidently "out of sorts" when he drops down to 7 out of a possible 20. Uncle Reub. Pickett distinguished himself yesterday. Having provided himself with a regulation rabbit foot, he has with one bound jumped from obscurity to lame; and now, instead of wearing the leather medal, annihilates fourteen out of twenty clay pigeons. It is a pity, for the sake of the eternal fitness of things, that Sanders and Bernard did not make a score of ten instead of nine each, as they both shot tengauge guns; and if ever you heard the welkin ring it was "then and there' when 5. and B. turned loose their artillery. It was reported by telegraph last night that these guns were heard at Burgaw, and that the people there thought the reports came from the immense guns on the Nantucket. But none of the members of the club "kicked" against the use of the ten-gauges. The guns did that.

The club managers are constantly making improvements, the latest being a large covered building for protection from sun and rain, with open sides, to welcome the refreshing breezes which "fan the fevered brow," or words to that

THE SITUATION IN COTTON.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Weekly Letter, FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 8, 1894. With intermediate fluctuations, the cotton market closed the week awaiting the issuance of the June report from the Agricultural Department at Washington at an improvement over the prices ruling at the close of May. And while there can be detected no great improvement in the speculative or mercantile world, there is undoubtedly a rather better feeling toward cotton than has existed for several months past This change in the temper is due to the recent unseasonably cold weather which has undoubtedly to some extent checked the growth of the cotton plant. According to the Financial Chronicle, the increase in the acreage devoted to cot ton this year is only slightly in excess of 2 per cent, throughout the entire cot-ton belt, and this estimate has been of a rather disappointing nature to the trade, who anticipated a greater increase in the acreage than these figures would indicate. In its review of the condition of the crop, the Chronicle makes a very favorable statement, emphasizing its views with the remark that the plant is in decidedly better condition to withstand the vicissitudes of the Summer than it

the middle of last month and which has was either last year or the year before, and were it not that the trade anticipated a very un-favorable report from Washington, on Saturday, the context of the Chron icle's report would doubtless have had more effect upon the market than had the disappointing increase in acreage. As a result of the recent advance from the lower point of the year, the short interest in the market has been reduced to comparatively small proportions, and surprise has been expressed that the continuance of the cold weather throughout the South has not brought buying orders from that section of the country, as the main support of the market has come from the local interests. The decrease in the visible supply of cotton promises to reduce the amount of cotton on hand on the first of September considerably below that of last year, and it is well known to those who come in contact with the American spinners that their supplies of raw material are at a minimum, though it must be candidly confessed that the prices they are receiving for their goods do not encourage them to secure a supply. In forecasting the future course of prices, it must not be forgotten that the reserve stock in the bands of American manufacturers is smaller than has been known for a series of years, and any im-provement in the trade conditions of this country would be accompanied by a time it must be stated that the prospects for improving weather are such as to justify the belief that the crop prospects will improve over those in existence on the first of June, as it is scarcely probable that the present cold waves will continue after this date. Therefore, in looking to the future we are confronted with prospect of improving accounts from the crops as opposed to a gradual reduction of the visible supply of cotton, and the course of prices will therefore depend largely upon the same two factors to which we have so often called attention; namely, crop accounts and trade

Crop accounts have caused the advance of the last fortnight, and should trade show any signs of improving through the settlement of the coa strikes and the passage of the Tariff bill, a further advance would be probable provided that crop accounts do not show great change for the better. It is evident that at present prices and with the present outlook for next year's crop, Europe will continue to absorb cotton and the market is therefore supported by this demand, as it can be stated that the element of speculation does not at the moment enter the calculations of the

The American Encyclopædic Dictionary I the Best of All.

Our spoken language has its faults; in chief, that we pronounce a great part of it according to various standards. Not all dictionaries discriminate or do more than give the pronunciations side by side.

The American Encyclopædic Dictionary is unique in this matter. The various changes in spelling through which a word may have passed from its debut to its dotage are every one given. The proper pronunciation is marked by a method that slights no syllable.

Weather in the Cotton Belt. The Bureau report yesterday morning said fair weather will probably continue the remainder of the week. The weather in the cotton belt had been slightly warmer with fair rains in some districts.

The cotton region bulletin-issued last evening reports light rain yesterday in the Savannah and Galveston districts. No rain elsewhere in the cotton belt. The temperature was about normal; the average maximum ranging from 82 to 92 degrees, and the average minimum from 52 to 62.

Quick Dispatch.

The schooner Helen Montague arrived here last Friday night, consigned to Messrs. Geo. Harriss, Son & Co. She discharged cargo, consisting of 500 tons coal, 100 barrels oil and 7,000 brick: loaded her outward cargo of 875,000 feet of cross-ties, and was ready to sail at noon yesterday-said to be the quickest dispatch on record at this port. She was loaded by Mr. Geo. W. Doyle, stevedore, in twenty-two hours; an average of about 175,000 feet per day.

Mr. Peter Smith, clerk of Fourth street market, yesterday arrested a colored man, Jno. Dawson, on suspicion of stealing chickens and ducks. When arrested he was trying to sell a drake and three ducks. Dawson had been suspected before of stealing fowls. The ducks are at the City Hall awaiting a claimant, and a lot of fowls supposed to have been stolen by the same man.

Low Water,

The steamboat Cape Fear, Capt. Robinson, from Fayetteville, due here early yesterday morning, arrived late last evening, with a good freight of naval stores. She was delayed on her trip by low water in the river; had to pull over the shoals. When she came in, her wharf was piled with freight for up-river points. She will leave for Fayetteville to-day at 2 o'clock p. m.

Narrow Escape from Drowning.

Last Wednesday, about 5 o'clock in the evening, four young men-Messrs. Ino. F. Tolar, Walter Silva, Robt. Hughes and Chas. Do not wet them, as they will adhere to the paper. Be sure to write your name, postoffice address and State plainly, so as to avoid error.

As we have to send orders to the Publishers, severa days—possibly two weeks—may elapse before the Parts ordered are received by subscribers.
We are now offering Parts 1 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. Order these Parts, and satisfy yourself as to the merit of the work. Others will follow in quick succession.

Sample Parts may be seen at the STAR Office. It is absolutely necessary that you designate on the coupon the Nos, of the Parts wanted. See "Part No.——," at bottom of Coupon, and fill it up.
When no number is designated, Part 1 will be sent.
