WILMINGTON, N. C Wednesday Morning, June 20, 1894

TWO REASONS WHY.

There has been general complaint of the depression of the farming industry in this country, a depression which began about twenty years ago and has continued ever since, being greater in some years than in others, generally in those years when the seasons were the most bountiful. There have been several causes contributing to this, for some of which Governmental policies have been responsible, chief among them being the financial and tariff legislation, the former of which contracted the volume of currency by calling in about $300,000,000 of legal tender notes and demonetizing silver, which enhanced gold, made money dearer and commodities purchased with money correspondingly cheaper.

The latter put obstructions in the way of our foreign commerce, reduced the demand for American food-stuffs and compelled the food producer to depend mainly upon the home market which was not able to purchase the full products of the farms, and thus left a surplus in the hands of the farmer which must be disposed of in foreign markets or go to waste. Unfortunately for the American farmer the prices in the home market are governed by the prices in the foreign market, and it is only when there is a shortage of supplies on the other side of the water which must be made up on this side, and the demand is accordingly brisk that prices rule high in the home market. The amount of food stuffs usually raised is so much greater than the home demand that the shortage on the other side must be large to materially affect the run of prices here, and this is one reason why for some years past the farmers have not received enough for their products to leave them much margin for profit. They got more for their grain and provisions twenty years ago than they do now and could pay their debts with one half they can now, although it costs them as much, or nearly as much, to raise their products as it did then. The advocates of the present monetary system stoutly deny that the volume of money has had anything to do with the fall in prices, which they admit, but assert that it is due to overproduction. They ignore the fact that the contraction in the currency and the demonetization of silver and the fall in prices have been coincident, and have gone along together.

In one sense the assertion about over-production is true, not because there was more grown than could be consumed, but because the contraction of the volume of the currency has limited the capacity of the people the world over to buy and has thus caused over production when if money were plentitul and wages high there would be no over production, assuming that this condition existed in the countries which purchased food supplies from this country as well as in this country. But this currency-contracting policy has prevailed in other countries as well as in this, until a scarcity of money in general circulation has become a world-wide complaint.

A comparative tew control it and keep it locked up to keep it dear. It has drifted to the money center where there is a surfeit of it while the world suffers for it. To-day there is over $600,000,000 In gold locked up in the banks of Europe, and out of the $600,000,000 supposed to be in this country one seldom sees a gold coin in circulation.

They say this money is locked up because there is no demand for it but there is no demand for it because locking it up had much to do with causing the industrial paralysis which made thousands unable to borrow and give the security demanded. It is not because there is no demand for the money that it is not in circulation, but because those who need it and would use it if they could cannot borrow it. If it could be turned loose and by the action of the several Governments the volume now in circulation -or said to be in circulation-were doubled there would be a revival of industries the world over and a revival of prices and a return of good times such as has not been seen for a quarter of a century. There are other causes for the agricultural depression with which Governmental policies have had nothing to do, and are in no way responsible. but these two have been potent ones, and will continue to exert a depressing influence while they exist.

MINOR MENTION.

Senator Hill is posing now as the opponent of the income tax and the champion of "free raw materials,"

but it is so apparent that he is opposing one and favoring the other from personal motives, to draw attention to himself as a Simon pure Democrat who insists on the strict and literal compliance with Democratic pledges and utterances, that his course commands very little respect and very small following in the party. There are thousands of Democrats who agree with him that raw materials ought to be the free list, but when he proposes to put them on the free list and couples that proposition with the declaration that he knows it is no use and that his proposition is foredoomed to defeat, he puts himself in the position of a man who likes to hear himself talk, and talks for buncombe. We are not disposed to question Mr. Hill's Democracy, but he should not claim a monopoly of it nor to be the only straight-out Democrat in the Senate, or a better Democrat than the Senators who are supporting the tariff bill without kicking, although it contains some features which they do not like, and in making his contention he should not misconstrue or distort the Democratic platform, as he did when in his speech in support of his free coal amendment, Monday, he asserted that the platform adopted at Chicago substantially demanded free coal, and that the Senators who voted for a duty on coal were virtually ignoring the platform. The only reference to free raw materials in the platform is in the tariff plank in the sentence "we endorse the efforts made by the Democrats of the present Congress to modify its (the Mc-Kinley tariff's) most oppressive feature in the direction of free raw materials and cheaper manufactured goods that enter into general consumption" It endorses the efforts in the direction of free raw material, and that is precisely what the tariff bill now under discussion is doing. It cuts down the duty on bituminous coal nearly. one-half, which is making reasonable progress "in the direction" of free coal. The STAR would like to see free coal and contended for it while there was a hope of securing it, but when the Democratic Senators have almost unanimously decided that this is not the best thing to do now we do not see the sense or use in one Senator holding out and contending for the impossible, when he knows and admits that he can accomplish nothing by his contention.

There is a decided difference of opinion among Democrats in North Carolina (as there is in the country at large), on certain issues that have been or are under discussion in Congress, and some have in debating these differences evinced an intemperate zeal, which, if persisted in, could only result in disruption of the party, and in the defeat of all our hopes. There is not as much of this spirit of dissatisfaction now as there was, for the people are taking a cooler and a more thoughtful view of the situation, and are more fully comprehending the difficulties that the Democrats in Congress had and have to contend against in the efforts to carry out the pledges made, and there is more disposition being shown to R. R. Bellamy's Drug Store.

give credit for the efforts that have been made and due allowance for what has not been done. When the record is made up and the Representatives of the people render an account of their stewardship we think it will be found that much progress has been made in the direction of reform, and that the country will have reason to congratulate itself on the progress made. In the meantime Democrats should be coolheaded and wise and tolerant of each other and also show due consideration for those who represent them in Washington. In this connection we present the following extract from an editorial in last week's Wilson Mirror which we commend for its practical good sense:

It is time for some Democratic papers to call a halt. It is time for us to defend the Democracy, not to criticise it. We notice with regret that so many of our contemporaries are disposed at times to utter words with which the enemy may condemn them out of their own mouths. They are furnishing ammunition for their opponents and hazarding our chances of success. To our mind this is clearly wrong. Radicals and Popu-lists are laughing in their sleeves, while Democrats are engaged in the work of destruction.

The original plants of the sugar refineries which formed the Sugar Trust were valued at $8,900,000. The combine was capitalized at $50,-000,000, in addition to which $10,-000,000 of 6 per cent, bonds were issued. In 1888 it paid out cash dividends amounting to $5,000,000. It did likewise in 1889 and 1890. Since then, with the help of the Mc-Kinley bill, it has paid 12 per cent. dividends and 10 per cent. on the common stock out of the surplus profits of 1891 and 1892 and now has a surplus of $5,000,000 for distribution. The man who runs that concern need not care whether he ever "saw Cleveland" or not. From a money standpoint he's a bigger man than Cleveland.

The debt of New York city is $98,000,000. This is about $3,000,-000 more than the combined debts of Philadelphia, St. Louis, Chicago, Buffalo, Albany and Washington. But New York looks on these as all rural, provincial towns, which don't know how to achieve distinction.

CURRENT COMMENT.

- Senator Teller says he is not and will not be a candidate for President, and wouldn't accept a nomination under any circumstances. This is precisely General Harrison's position, except for the "emergency" that Colonel New may be depended upon to provide, if possible.-Phil. Ledger, Ind.

-- The Democratic Senators who absent themselves from the Senate and paralyze the effort of the party to push necessary legislation are finding thousands of imitators among disgusted Democratic voters who stay away from the polls and let elections go by default .- Phil. Record,

A STRONG TESTIMONIAL.

What a Leading Educator Thinks of the American Encyclopædic Dictionary, The high standing of Capt. Washington Catlett, Principal of the Cape Fear Academy, both as a scholar and an educator, gives a real value to the annexed testimonial:

WILMINGTON, April 11, 1894. MR. W. H. BERNARD:

Dear Sir :- I have examined very carefully the 1st Part of the American Encyclopædic Dictionary. I am really surprised at the excellence of the work. both for its intrinsic merit and its price. I have made a parallel comparison with Webster's Unabridged; and with the Century, published also in parts, costing me $2,50 per volume; or, complete, $60. find the American Encyclopædic Dictionary superior in many respects to Webster's Unabridged, and for genera purposes equal to the Century.

The type is distinct and full, the illustrations numerous, the derivation of words scholarly and accurate, the definitions exceedingly complete and verified by many extracts from leading modern authors, the encyclopædic information very full, the diacritical marks plain, with prominent equivalents at bottom of each page.

I unhesitatingly endorse the First Part of this Dictionary as meeting the requirements of the scholar and filling the wants of the general reader and man of business needing general information in a compact and reliable presentation. No one need fear that his money will be misspent, who invests in this work.

Right Arm Paralyzed! Saved from St. Vitus Dance.

"Our daughter, Blanche, now fifteen years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. We feared St. Vitus dance, and tried the best physicians, with no benefit. She has taken three bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine and has gained 31 pounds. Her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she attends school regularly, and has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid."
