The Morning Star. BY WILLIAM H. BERNARD. WILMINGTON, N. C.

WILMINGTON, N. C. SATURDAY MORNING, AUG. 25, 1894.

A GOOD SIGN.

The convention which met at Lumberton last Wednesday was a remarkable one in several respects; remarkable in the number of delegates and citizens who attended it, too large for the Court House, which is a fair-sized building, to hold; in the high order of intelligence of the men who participated in it; in the earnestness and zeal which they showed in the business which brought them there, and the fidelity with which they clung to their favorites from the first to the last.

The nominee, James A. Lockhart, of Anson county, is a man of imposing presence, tall in stature, physically robust, handsome of mould, graceful in carriage, affable in manners, glib in speech and voice, eloquent in delivery, and with mental vigor and discerning judgment—a man who would attract attention in any assemblage, and one of whom any constituency might be proud.

While we in this end of the district would rather have seen the banner placed in the hands of him around whom we rallied, we have no cause, nor have the people of the district, to regret that the honor of bearing it has fallen upon one so eminently trustworthy and deserving.

As this district is safely a Democratic one there is no reason to doubt his election, and the only uncertain feature is as to the size of the majority which he may receive, which will be large enough to satisfy any ordinary ambition if the friends who stood for him so zealously, and the men who contended for others so steadfastly show one-half the zeal and determination in the canvass that they did in the convention which choose him as the standard bearer of this district.

We like these earnest, hard-fighting conventions where men animated by a noble rivalry contend bravely and honorably for the privilege of naming the leader, for they are a good sign that the people are awake, that they take an interest in the success of the Democratic party and realize that on the success of that party depends their prosperity, their happiness and the welfare of the State.

While in some respects this was a remarkable convention, it was in others typical of the conventions which have been held so far this year throughout the State, all of which have been notable for the determination to put strong men at the front and for a confidence of strength and a singleness of purpose never heretofore surpassed, if equalled.

The people, who are always right when their deliberate judgment is formed, realize the importance of keeping North Carolina solid where she is within the Democratic lines, and of demonstrating to the ambitious and disgruntled who have strayed off after new gods, and to the old enemy against whom we have been fighting for years that it is not in their power either singly or united to break that solidity or to phase it. They may not be versed in the intricacies of tangled questions, and there may be differences of opinion as to the methods to arrive at certain ends and to solve certain problems, but on the great, main, vital issue of keeping North Carolina safely moored in the safe haven of Democracy there is no difference of opinion. They are as firmly rooted in that as the mountains which lift their heads amid the clouds in their beautiful Land of the Sky. They were never more thoroughly in earnest in that determination than they are now, and never more resolved to rebuke the schemings of the disgruntled Democrats (few in number) and their Republican allies.

MINOR MENTION.

There are men who would swindle the Government by selling it rotten meat, rotten clothing, &c., for its army, in peace or in war times, but it is hard to understand how a corporation like the Carnegie Company, of Pittsburg, which had its reputation at stake, could ever have consented to palm off on it defective armor for its war ships, when for the profit it might make it not only imperiled the ships and the lives of the men on them, but the causes which those ships battled for. Defended by ships presumably strong but weak in fact, our sea-coast cities it attacked would be at the mercy of the great war ships of other nations, and the fact that it is not known how much of this defective plate there may be in the ships armored with it lessens the confidence that our seamen had in them and lessens the fear that their antagonists might have of them. In view of the serious consequences that might result from the perpetration of such fraud it is astonishing that any corporation would have resorted to it even to the smallest extent. Even as business matter, if honesty and conscience and patriotism were not considered, it seems to us that it should have been the aim of the company to have furnished plates above rather than below the requirements of the contract, for of course after these exposures confidence in the honesty of that corporation is blasted and the Government will go elsewhere to have its plates cast. While the Government may have lost something in a money way, the Carnegie Company has in the outcome lost much more.

We have heard much talk from Populist leaders in this and other States about the political "machines," and how they manipulate and control nominations, &c., but if there ever has been a more effective machine than the Populist machine it hasn't appeared up to date. It not only slates the candidates, makes platforms, &c., but goes into conventions with every thing cut and dried, so that the conventions, so-called, are mere formalities, the delegates (selected by the machine) simply voting to ratify what the machine manipulators had previously done. In South Carolina the Populists call themselves Reformers; but this is the name they have adopted simply for purposes of deception. In all the essential features they are Populists. How the machine runs the Reform party in that State is graphically told by Dr. Sampson Pope in the dispatch from Columbia, published yesterday. Tillman and his ring run the machine in that State, and any man who does not come in and subscribe to what they say and do will be ruled out and, as Dr. Pope says, practically disfranchised. And yet some of the honest yeomanry who obey the mandates of this ring innocently think they are supporting the cause of reform.

According to the reports from Washington there seems to be doubt as to whether the President will sign the tariff bill or permit it to become the law without his signature. We do not see what Mr. Cleveland has to gain for himself (if he permitted self to enter into a question like this), or for the party, the unification of which ought to be a paramount object with him, by refusing to sign the bill, for the whole country knows that there are some features of it to which he is bitterly opposed, and no one would ever suspect him of surrendering his convictions on these by signing the bill, any more than voting for it at last, committed the Senators and Representatives who contended for free raw materials to the features to which they objected. It is better that he should sign it, and say nothing about it, than that he should let it go unsigned, for if he refuses to sign it, the Republicans and the Populists will make capital out of it, each putting upon it the construction to suit themselves. The bill has passed. It is as good a bill as we could get, and a much better bill than it has been represented to be. We must go before the country on it, and the President ought to be with us in standing by it. It ought to bear his signature.

Republican journals talk glibly of the desirability of free sugar; but Republican Senators vote solidly to lock up the Free Sugar bill passed by the House by sending it to the cold storage of the Senate Finance Committee. Actions speak louder than words.—Phil. Record, Dem.

For several weeks past the Republican press has enjoined upon the Republicans of the country to keep an eye on Alabama. Now, however, with one consent all the papers of radical persuasion declare that the Alabama election signified nothing, being merely a fight among Democrats, or, at most, among Democrats and Populists. According to their hind-sight, it was not much of a rain after all.—Mobile Register, Dem.

What a Leading Educator Thinks of the American Encyclopedic Dictionary. The high standing of Capt. Washington Catlett, Principal of the Cape Fear Academy, both as a scholar and an educator, gives a real value to the annexed testimonial.

WILMINGTON, April 11, 1894. DR. W. H. BERNARD: Dear Sir:—I have examined very carefully the American Encyclopedic Dictionary. I am really surprised at the excellence of the work, both for its intrinsic merit and its price. I have made a parallel comparison with Webster's Unabridged; and with the Century, published also in parts, costing me $2.50 per volume; or, complete, $60. I find the American Encyclopedic Dictionary superior in many respects to Webster's Unabridged, and for general purposes equal to the Century.

The type distinct and full; the illustrations numerous and accurate; the definitions exceedingly complete and verified by many extracts from leading modern authors, the encyclopedic information very full, the diacritical marks plain, with prominent equivalents at bottom of each page. I unhesitatingly endorse the First Part of this Dictionary as meeting the requirements of the scholar and filling the wants of the general reader and man of business needing general information in a compact and reliable presentation. No one need fear that his money will be misspent, who invests in this work.

Yours truly, WASHINGTON CATLETT.
