THE BURDEN OF TAXATION

The expenses of this Government amount in round figures to $500,000, 000 annually. This amount of money must be raised and it must be raised by taxation of some kind. For years the expenses of Government have been increasing out of all proportion to the increase of population, and the people have become so accustomed to this extravagance that in all probability they will never getback to the economy that, until this generation, prevailed in our Governmental affairs. It is much easier to slip into a rut than to get out of it, and whatever the effort may be, however honestly made or well dimay reduce these $500,000,000 expenditures a few millions, but the rewith the amount that must still be

With economy and stopping the frauds in pensions, which may decrease from year to year, there will be a saving, but in the meantime there will be increases for other purposes, so that we may calculate on this round $500,000,000 expenditure for years to come. -

With all its honest efforts at retrenchment the Democratic administration have reduced expenditures this year about $14,000,000 net, and this was done by saving about $28,-000,000 in pensions. If there had frauds, the appropriations, with all tempt it. the economy, would have been about $14,000,000 more than last year, and we would have gone over the billion appropriated we would have gone very far above it.

But the fact is that while we write down the bills more, the people themselves are responsible for the put upon themselves. By a sort of common consent and common usage grown strong by years of indulgence the United States Treasury has come to be regarded as a fund from which all have a right to draw, and from which all are trying to draw as much as they can and each trying to get more than the other. Going for "the flag and an appropriation" has been the order of the day, and geneutility and efficiency are measured by the amount of money he can squeeze out of the Treasury for some object in which his constituents may be in-

The Representatives of the Seaboard cities want millions for the improvement of rivers and harbors. They want millions more for fortifieations for those cities, and millions more for warships and floating forthe interior want millions to improve the navigation of the lakes, millions more to cut canals to connect lakes and rivers, millions more to make reservoirs to water the arid plains, and millions more for great national parks among the crags and peaks and geysers and tumbling waters of the towering mountains. If they were all of one mind and the selfishness of one didn't offer a barrier to the selfishness of the other, there is protection advocates that putting tions would reach. with a theory, or the crank with a industry in this country. This was hobby who wants not millions only said in the face of the fact that under for some job or scheme, some useful the protective McKinley tariff the or useless purpose, but tens, hun- price of domestic wool was steaddreds and thousands of millions to ily declining until it had got as low carry out some crank idea that he as ten cents a pound. Now, contrary to raiding the Treasury, from the all these prophecies of disaster, there private pension bills to the man with his bill for hundreds of millions to improve the public higyways to give the Coxey gangs work, or feed the idlers at the public expense, and every one of these has a constituency behind him, ready to applaud him and to keep on electing him while he is pulling for them, provided they have votes enough to elect him.

They either forget or ignore the fact that every dollar, for whatever purpose, that comes out of the Treasury of the United States comes out of the pockets of the people and at last out of the pockets of the working man and the poor, for in the final process nearly all if not all taxation trick es through to him. Congress levies import duties for revenue. The importer pays the duty to the Government and the purchaser of the goods pays the duty back to him., Congress levies excise taxes and the consumer of the liquors, tobacco, cigars and other things taxed pays the taxes. Congress puts a protective duty on sugar or other things grown or produced or manufactured in this country and the people who use them pay the protective duty. And thus it goes on everything. Taxes are levied and the few, however large the burden may be, shift it on to the shoulders of the masses, and the masses are poor. And yet the rich and the protected howl ten times as much when the protection is reduced as the poor, struggling masses do who bear the whole burden. The masses are getting mighty tired of that thing and some day they will give the howlers more reason for howling.

Since Marion Butler has gone into co-partnership with the Republican bosses, he is not only pulling with them, but imitating their methods. He has learned the art of tapping the faithful for contributions. Several years ago, Chairman Eaves, of the Republican State Committee, who was at the late Republican Convention sat upon and bounced, achieved some notoriety by issuing his secret circular to his strikers to pick out a dozen or so "not afraid of the devil" sort of fellows to bulldoze the registrars and hang around the polls on election day to help 'challenged Republican voters to get in their votes and intimidate as many Democratic voters as they could. Eaves' game rected, we will never get out of this | didn't work worth a continental for | rut of extravagance, and increasing his side, but it made Demoextravagance, in which we have been crats indignant and red hot, and running for thirty odd years; We the result was a gain of several thousand votes to the Democratic ticket. Marion has lately been folduction will be a trifle in comparison lowing the example of Eaves by urging his strikers to send picked delegations before the Boards of County Commissioners with lists of "reliables" and insist that some of them be appointed judges of election to represent the Populists. They appeared as directed in many counties last Monday but, while they were treated courteously, as far as we know they were generally informed that the Commissioners understood the law and could perform their duties without any assistance from Marion and his tools. Marion doesn't play the bluff game with half the cowbow dash that Eaves did. He isn't been no lopping off of the pension | built that way and he shouldn't at-

If | Congress made a record for dashing all the money asked for had been financiering which has doubtless never been equalled in any legislative body past or present on the face of the earth. There were ten bills about economy and talk about it, introduced by them calling for the and scold Congress for not cutting expenditure of sums ranging from $1,000,000, the smallest, to $12,000,-000,000, the largest, aggregating burdens put upon them or which they $35,507,300,000. Of course they didn't expect these bills or any of them to go through. They were not introduced for that purpose, but to make capital with the deluded constituencies which these mountebanks represented. But if they had a majority in Congress and a President to back them then they would have got down to business instead of buncombe and we would have had a lot of legislation just as crude, wild rally speaking a Congressman's and msane as these bills, and the appropriations for all sorts of rattlebrain purposes would have been passed not by millions only but by hundreds of millions. They wouldn't have, minded the expense for they would have set the wheels of the Government printing presses in motion and printed stacks of paper and and put them afloat as long as anybody could be found to take one of them and give anything in extresses. The Representatives from change for it. They would put the mints to work to coin all the gold and silver offered and with a hatful of paper to a dollar of coin they would say "here's your flexible volume of currency." Since the new tariff with its free wool has gone into effect the prices of domestic wools have advanced about ten per cent, while the prices of foreign wools have declined forty per cent. Facts and figures are one thing and theories are another. We have some men in this country who imagine themselves statesmen and insist that the Government ownership of the railroads would be a panacea for many of the ills the country is suffering from. Possibly the Government might operate a tew of the railroads successfully, when all the conditions favored, but when it came to operating about 177,000 miles of road then it would find an elephant on its hands than it would soon be very anxious to trade off, and would probably have to give away to get rid of. The following which we find in the Baltimore Sun, shows about what the size of this elephant would be:

"The capital invested in railroads in the United States, according to the recent report of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, gets but a small return, reckoned in percentages. The aggregate of share capital on June 30, 1893, was $4,669,000,000, but of this $2,859, 000,000, or 61.24 per cent.-more than half-paid no dividends. In the previous year the percentage of non-paying stock was 60.60 per cent., and in 1890-91 it was 59 64 per cent. But in addition to the large amount of stock making no return, there were $743,-000,000 of bonds, or 14.39 per cent, of the whole, that paid no interest. No less than $3,602,000,000 of stocks and bonds failed of income in the year ended June 30, 1893. In the year just ended, since the arrival of the panic and depression, the case has doubtless been much worse. Not only have rates fallen lower. out gross and net earnings have gone together. The figures at hand for the first six months of the calendar year 1894 show gross earnings of but 357,201,483 against $427,934,491 in the like period of 1893, the miles of road reported being 112,570 against 111,165 in 1893, A loss of $100,000,000 in six months shows the intensity of the depressing influences that have recently weighed upon business.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The demand upon the Treasury for small notes is one of the many indications now visible on every hand of the rapid recuperation of business. If the Republicans in Pennsylvania in providing a $40 per capita issue could make it in ones and twos they would confer an addi,

- When Democrats start to abusing Populists it is well to remember that Populists are the same sort of people they are: that a few years ago they were good Democrats. and in a few years they will all be Democrats again. There is no wisdom, therefore, in making breaches that it will be difficult to bridge over, and personal differences that it will be hard to heal. Politics is not a matter of prejudice, personalism or fanaticism, but is a question of Governmental policy and statecraft .-

A STRONG TESTIMONIAL.

What a Leading Educator Thinks of the American Encyclopædic Dictionary, The high standing of Capt. Washington Catlett, Principal of the Cape Fear Academy, both as a scholar and an educator, gives a real value to the annexed testimonial:

WILMINGTON, April 11, 1894.

MR. W. H. BERNARD Dear Sir :- I have examined very carefully the 1st Part of the American Encyclopædic Dictionary. I am really surprised at the excellence of the work both for its intrinsic merit and its price. I have made a parallel comparison with Webster's Unabridged; and with the Century, published also in parts, costing me $2.50 per volume; or, complete, $60 I find the American Encyclopædic

Dictionary superior in many respects to Webster's Unabridged, and for genera purposes equal to the Century. The type is distinct and full, the illustrations numerous, the derivation o words scholarly and accurate, the definitions exceedingly complete and verified by many extracts from leading modern authors, the encyclopædic information very full, the diacritical marks plain, with prominent equivalents at bottom of I unhesitatingly endorse the First Part of this Dictionary as meeting the require-ments of the scholar and filling the wants of the general reader and man of business needing general information in a compact and reliable presentation. No one need fear that his money will be misspent, who invests in this work.

Yours truly, WASHINGTON CATLETT.

PARISIAN IDÉAS. Hats, Cravats, Bonnets of the Period.

The two choux which have been so popular a finish for the neck bands of crepe and mousseline de soie cellars are giving place to small bunches of artificial flowers selected to match those trimming the hat, Veils of net covered with a close pattern in application are the fashion of the moment. They almost hide the face from sight and are admirably calculated to conceal the ravages of time and the complexion specialist.

Parisian women favor white kid shoes with yellow leather trimmings, as well as the all white ones which have been so much seen here. Guipure continues in general use and shows no sign of a decline in public estimation. It is always effective and may be even more satisfactorily combined with wool and velvet goods than with thin fabrics, so it will probably be one feature of fall tollets if not of winter ones. The hat of the period is of ample pro portions. There are a few close toque shapes consisting of flowers, jet and a bow of ribbon, but large hats are the rule. They are often made of shirred mousse line de sole or have lace brims, or a round straw shape is trimmed with choux of mousseline de sole and a flounce of the same material falls over the edge of the brim like a valance. With the addition of a bow of changeable ribbon, this style is ensidered altogether charming in Paris Immense white cravats of creps do chine, mousseline de soie and similar fabrics are coming in again. They are sure to be well received, for they are almost universally becoming. Everybody acknowledges that a man looks better in evening dress than at any other time, because of the large expanse of white near the face, and the same principle applies to women in dark gowns. The blg white scarf produces the same effect as the broad shirt bosom. The illustration shows a reception bon net of rosebuds, lilles of the valley and vio lets. It is trimmed with two jet wings and has no strings. The cravat is of cream mousseline de soie trimmed on the ends with antique lace. Artificial flowers are more fashionable than ever, so much so that their popularity is said to have given renewed vigor to the business of making them.

NECESSARY LUXURIES.

Relative Importance to Life of Sleep and The term "sybarite" has come to and is generally applied to somebody whose pet indulgence is different from our own. As a matter of fact, it is a question whether it better describes the who makes necessities of luxuries or the one who makes luxuries of necessities. One's sympathy is naturally more engaged by the latter individual, since as he-or she, for present purposes-must have ne cessities, she may as well have them of the best kind. There is something more rea-onable in the idea that a woman demands the very best sort of bread and butter than that she insists that she cannot live with out truffles and champagne every day. Bread and butter are necessities and truf-fles and champagne are not.

But the tending of these remarks is meant to be toward the subject of beds. Beds are a necessity, and too often a stern necessity, unyielding as fate. An astonishing number of housekeepers wear pretty clothes, set their table with pretty dishes and arrange an agreeable bill of fare for their guests, but condemn them to sleer on a mattress stuffed with iron filings and pillows like a dry meal poultice. The bed linen being fresh and an allowance offextra coverings being provided, everything is supposed to be satisfactory.

But it is better to have the guest's couch an uncomfortable one than that of a member of the family, which is occupied every The more thresome and trying one's daylight hours are, the more one r quires complete rest and relaxation at night on a bed that will not keep one awake with aching bones, and with pillows that are thoroughly substantial. We all know that sleep is more important to the preservation of life and health than is even food. Better is a dinner of herbs with a soft-bed to retire to afterward than a stalled ox that must be digested for a couch of stone. The moral of this is I good are a worker of any sort, with brains or hand, indulge yourself with a good spring bed and hair mattress even if you have to without two new gowns to pay to them, for you need all the case possible. light in order that nature may exercise

'There are more queer things to the acre in Arizona than in any other part of this wide land," said Colonel Brace Dion of Houck's Tank, Apache county, "and, according to my idea, and I know pretty near what queer things are, the queerest thing in all Arizona is the tree that has a temper worse than a blond comic opera prima donna's and gets its dander up with just as small provocation. They tell me out there that this tree belongs to the coniferous species. It grows to be something like 25 feet high and then stops. Its leaves are long, slender and pointed, like porcupine quills. When this tree is in a good humor, these leaves lie close to the branches, and it spreads a pleasant aromatic odor all around. But when it is angry every leaf on the tree rises up on end, and the aspect of that particular piece of timber is about as fierce and threatening as anything you would care to look at. The pleasant resinous odor the tree sent forth in its peaceful mood gives way to an odor that will put wings on your feet to place as much distance as you can between the offensive tree and yourself.

For generations they have been rich and saving until at last their annual accumulations have become greater than the annual openings for legitimate investment. So severe has the pressure become that latterly the money lender has been forcing his money into every kind of undertaking, in all parts of the world, creating, by his own eagerness to lend, the corresponding desire to borrow. It is the weight of uninvested money which stimulates borrowing, not the cupidity of the impecunious. Borrowing has not produced lending, but lending borrowing. Interest has continued to fall because there are more lenders than borrowers. If Englishmen think, then, that any communities have dipped too deep into the English purse, they can easily apply the corrective by a little self control. They should abstail from further lending. This may seem a heroic remedy, but it is the only remedy. —Contemporary Review.

She Put Illim to the Test. "Yes, darling," he said in tenes of deep tenderness, "I would do anything to show my love for you.' "Ah," sighed the gentle maiden, 'that's what all men say when they are striving to win a woman's heart." "Put me to the proof," he said in wild, passionate tones, "put me to the proof. Test me and see if I fail. Set me any test within the bounds of possibility, and it shall be performed.' "Ah," she murmured, "if I could only believe you!"

"Put me to the test. Say to me, 'Do this or that,' and it shall be done." "Yes," she murmured slowly, "there is one thing I should like you to do, "Oh, tell me, and let me do it! Now you shall behold the height, the depth, the length, the breadth, the circumference of my love for you," he cried exultantly. The maiden dropped her lashes, a smile dimpled the corners of her mouth as she gently murmured, "Marry some other girl."-London Tit-
