WHICH DID THE LEAVING?

Capt. W. H. Kitchin in his speeches says he didn't leave the Democratic party, it was the Democratic party that left him. That is about the only excuse that men like Kitchin who either through pique or ambition turn a political summerset can offer-the party left them, they didn't leave the

The Populists of this section cal themselves Jeffersonian Democrats, and claim, like Kitchin, who isn't a full-flegged Populist yet, that the Democratic party has left them. It left some of them very suddenly, so suddenly that they never discovered that it had taken its departure until they saw, or thought they saw, an office within reach by becoming a Populist or half Populist and half left the Democratic party, and the mile outside of the breastworks .-Republican.

When did the Democratic party leave Mr. Kitchin? He was with it so fully up to the time of the last election that although he threatened to bolt and stump the State against speeches for him. He was with it he would vote for Faircloth and of trying to "get even" with him.—

along with it longer and the Democratic party wouldn't have left him

But how did the Democratic party leave Mr. Kitchin? When and where did it slide off from its principles and leave him standing alone the sole custodian (if we except the Jeffersonian Populists) of those principles? The Democratic Congress repealed the purchasing clause of the Sherman act, but it took Republican votes to do it. But the Democratic platform adopted at Chicago denounced the Sherman act as a 'cowardly makeshift," and although tdidn't in so many words pledge the party to its repeal virtually did so by declaring that every one should favor its speedy repeal. The phrase "a cowardly makeshift" was borrowed from Mr. D. B. Hill, whom Mr. Kitchin would have nominated instead of Cleveland, if he could. He never objected to that declaration of the platform and he couldn't consistently object because he knew that the Sherman act was not a Democratic but a Republican measure. which was opposed when before Congress by the Democrats and favored by the Republicans, who used it to hold the silver States in the Republican column. After the election and the Republican party was defeated they were as ready to repeal it as they were to pass it, and none more so than wily John Sherman, who was credited with its paternity. Mr. Kitchin can't claim that the Democratic party left him on that, because the Democratic party had no lot nor parcel in originating it nor in passing it, but on the contrary opposed it when under discussion. given us free and unlimited coinage the matter. But when did the Democratic party promise that? It didn't do it in the platform of 1892, which simply declared in favor of free cointhat a great many Democrats were then, (and some of them were in that convention,) and are now in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver, but they didn't go off sulking by themselves, nor go over to the Populist party and get up a little circus of their own to go around and scold the Democratic party and swear it left them, as Captain Kitchin does. If he was consistent and sensible and really as anxious for free agine. Some of these meetings silver as he seems to be he would | might be held on Saturdays when the stay with the free silver Democrats and keep on fighting for it, instead | up, or at night when the farmers of pulling out and getting up a little | could attend without leaving their guerilla warfare on his own account.

Representatives and Senators were, with few exceptions, right, and voted | if it is done it will tell on election right on the silver question, and yet day. he says they have all left him, because they wisely decide to make their fight for it within the party lines. So the Democratic party has not left the Captain on the silver question, because it never committed itself at any time to the free and unlimited coinage of silver. That to not a question of principle, anyway. It is simply a question of finances, of all parties differ.

When Democratic candidates in this State in 1890 favored the free coinage of silver, and the People's party leaders were afraid that this might take some of the wind out of their sails, they declared that the free coinage of silver wouldn't amount to a continental, as capita issue of greenbacks.

a good many Democrats who would prefer a somewhat different tariff, but they recognize the fact that as they study it this is on the whole a very people, and especially the Southern people, many millions of dollars a year, and they are not going around quarrelling with the Democratic party and swearing it left them, but they are taking the tariff and propose to peg away on the tariff reform line and help to improve it all they can, just as Captain Kitchin should have done if he had acted sensibly and

In view of these facts we are forced to the conclusion that it wasn't the Democratic party which left Captain Kitchin, but Captain Kitchin who Democratic party can stand it better | Phil. Record, Dem. than Captain Kitchin can.

MINOR MENTION.

The Wadesboro Messenger says that when Captain Kitchin spoke in Cleveland if he was nominated, he that town he refused to say, when swallowed Cleveland and made the question was put to him, whether after the election for he put in a bid Furches for Supreme Court Judges. Richmond State, Dem. for an office and although he didn't It was a rather embarrassing quesget what he wanted he got an easy | tion to put to him, for he couldn't | job in a very nice town to live in- well say that he would vote for two New Orleans-a job that thousands representative men of the Republiof men, not so hard to please as the can party, which he has been degentleman from Halifax, would have nouncing for years and still deconsidered a soft snap. If the salary had terest he is working and making These books can be obtained through been larger he might have worried those tremendously long speeches. other column,

He did the only thing he could have done under the circumstances, snapped his jaws and said nothing. A man in his position, who when a question like this is put to him can say neither yea nor nay, must something like a fellow feel setting astride of a barbed wire fence with nothing above to hang on to. But isn't this one-half the "new partisan judiciary" that Marion Butler and the other Pop machine managers are asking the people whom they are attempting to lead and humbuging to vote for? And one of them for Chief Justice. Marion and the other Pop fusers plume themselves on being Jeffersonian Democrats, too, that is better, purer, straighter Democrats than modern Democrats, who can't see any Jeffersonian or other Democracy in conspiring with Republicans, and nominating and supporting Republicans for office, the most responsible offices in the State, on the hypocritical pretence that they want to make these offices "nonpartisan." We are disposed to halfway sympathize with the "Jeffersonan Democrat" Kitchin, in his embarrassment, but we can't help despising the gauzy hypocrisy of the Marion Butler "Jeffersonians."

The State Democratic Executive Committee is doing what it can to send and keep speakers in the field. but if it had three times as many speakers at command as it has, it could not meet all the requirements, hence much must necessarily depend upon the efforts of county committees and the zealous, patriotic Democrats of the respective counties, who know the counties best and the But the Democratic party has not localities where meetings will do the most good. We are now within a of silver. Perhaps that's what is few weeks of the end of the campaign, and much earnest effort and solid work should be done within this time. Meetings should be held in as many places in each county as age on certain conditions. It is true possible, in the remote places where it is not convenient for the people to leave their homes and travel to county seats or other towns. Appointments should be made at these places even if not more than a couple dozen or even a dozen men might be expected, for through these dozen a dozen more might be influenced, and much more good accomplished than the speaker or speakers who addressed might im-But he admits that the Southern possible to do in country localities should be done from this on, and

One of the campaign cries of the fusion black-and-tan party in this State is for "a free ballot and a fair court," "purity and honesty in elections," &c. This is one of the howls the Populists have borrowed from the Republicans, and to one who knows everything about the election methods of the Republican party in on which financiers and the people | the South, and in this State, in its day of power the cry is an exceedingly big burlesque. That was Tom Watson's yawp in Georgia, too, and the other Pop politicians down there echoed Tom. They wanted a "free" ballot and it looks as if they meant what they said, for in one county where they had control and where there were 3600 registered voters, there all the Government could coin if it | were 4,200 votes cast, which wasn't kept the mints running steadily doing bad for a "free" ballot. ADAPTABLE GOWNS. The Same Dress May Do Duty For Several

The almost endless variety of pretty dress accessories in fashion nowadays is a wonderful help to a scantily filled purse. With their aid the same gown may be made to do duty many times in different characters. Take, for instance, a soft textured, silky striped black crepon, lined throughout with thin black alpaca. ranged to take off or on at will. This makes a stylish, fashionable gown to wear at any festive afternoon gathering by add ing to the plain bodice a colored plastron of bengaline, surah or indeed any pretty silky fabric. Trim the edge of the plastror with a fine make of lace and cover the neckband with a lace ruffle. This will give a dressy effect to the entire gown if worn out of doors. The hat or bonnet must of course harmonize in color with the plastron. The same gown may be turned into a charming evening dress for wearing at a dinner party, the theater or an evening "at home" by replacing the plastron with a deep lace yoke, with epaulets of the same lace gathered full on the shoulders. The voke is made in one with a high collar band and fastens behind with small hooks and eyes. The band may be draped with silk and a sash of the same silk worn round the waist, tied behind with a large bow and long ends, the ends trimmed with lace to match the voke and epaulets. To give a more full dress effect for the evening the long ouffs may be removed, leaving the arms bare to the cl

A Woman Carpenter.

The progressive women of the times are striving not only for political power, but for admission into the medical legal and clerical professions. Very few of them, however, are desirous of earning a livelihood as ordinary mechanics. It is interesting, therefore, to learn from the Philadelphia Carpenter that a lively young Danish woman, Miss Sophic Christensen, is anxious to get work in Chicago as a carpenter and joiner. In the city of Copenhagen she learned her prentice. When her apprenticeship was completed a short time ago, she was admitted to full membership in the union. She displayed great aptitude and skill as a worker at the trade, and she is ready to display specimens of her handicraft. Among other things, she has made a "self closing bookcase" which is serviceable, artistic and beautiful and which is admired by everybody who sees it. She is but 26 years old, and she expects to get a good job in Chicago as soon as the trade brightens up.

"I say, McCarty, an is this slot fur droppin a penny in?"
"Yer off. It's fur droppin a cent-aboard. D'ye moind that?"—Texas SiftSPOUSE OF A SIOUX PRINCESS.

Charles P. Jordan, Cousin of General Custer and a Typical Border Scout.

The queen of the Sioux is the wife of a white man. Neither of them is or has any reason to be ashamed of it. Red Cloud, without question the greatest Indian chief of this generation, gave her away at the altar on the Sioux reservation. The Sioux queen's husband is Charles P. Jordan, brother of Lientenant Colonel Jordan, United States army, a cousin of General Custer and one of the most tried representatives of the government in the Indian country. He bears the honor of being the only white man who was ever elected a member of the Sioux council. In their days of power, before hardly a single white face had been seen west of the Missouri river. the Dakotas (Sioux) were one nation, ruled by one chief. The last of this autocratic dynasty was Old Smoke, who died in 1859 after seeing his people pushed westward and his power curtailed. Although the husband of more than one squaw, he left but one child, a tiny girl, who could hardly coo when Old Smoke got ready to float upward to the happy hunting grounds. When dying, he took her in his arms and named her The Beautiful Woman, and so she has since been known. The Beautiful Woman was a princess. She did no work but learned of missionaries, scorned dog meat and kept her nails trimmed and her glorious black hair plaited and combed. She grew to womanhood, high spirited, proud and capricious—an ideal squaw. But as no ideal chief came to woo her she scorned an alliance with any common member of the tribe.

Young Jordan, a tall, bright eved fellow of good education and address. came west as clerk to the Indian agent at Pine Ridge. He fell in love with the princess, and his love was reciprocated by the Sioux maiden. And so they were married by a priest in stole and surplice and with all the formalities of the white man's laws and customs. The big Sioux chiefs came from miles around to attend the wedding, the army officers from the neighboring posts jingled their spurs in the Old Virginia reel, which followed the benediction, and the pretty Sioux queen has since been plain Mrs. Jordan. bevy of black eyed children bless the alliance. Charles P. Jordan, the Sionx queen's husband, has lived on the frontier for many years. He is still in his prime, and his adventures would fill a book-or several of them. He has been scalped, shot full of arrows, has been tortured and even condemned to death by the hostiles. Thirty miles from Rosebud agency he has a fine farm and stock ranch, well wooded with oak, elm, ash and box elder. There is a big orchard of cultivated fruits close by and a series of artificial dams down the valley, in which beaver are encouraged to construct their own peculiar fortifications. -Sionx City Journal.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS.

The English Drummer Compared With His Fellow Salesman In America. The commercial traveler in England s little different from his American brother, pursuing the same line of policy in "getting there" so far as securing trade is concerned. His invariable rule, however, is that his first price given to a local merchant is his last and only with an offer and then in the afternoon with an extra inducement to make the trade. This being the invariable rule, it saves much labor and apprehension in done so well as he could have done with more diplomacy. Everything is done for the comfort of the traveler, and at the hotels a special apartment called the commercial room is set apart for his exclusive use. In this room smoking is prohibited until 9 p. m., a place being devoted to that purpose at other times. The traveler takes his meals in the commercial room, the dinner being a set affair in which all travelers in the house generally participate. The oldest man is at the head of he table and is called the precident, while at the foot is the youngest man, and he is termed vice president. Selections of food are often made by vote, and two or three will club together for special dishes or wines, the president

At these dinners and in the general conversation no introduction of one to the other, if strangers, is necessary, and all join in the general conversation and story telling, a trait common to the whole brotherhood commercial travelers, be they found London, New York or Kamchatka -- angement that the portion of the deck so called was about one-fourth of the whole space. Fore or forward castle received its name as being the principal part of the ship in which the fighting took place, being raised much above the level of the other part of the deck and holding a commanding position. Poop, the raised afterpart of the ship, set apart for officers, both in meaning and derivation, comes from the Latin.

Gangway has been handed down from the days of the ancient galleys of the Phonicians, Carthagenians and Romans, it having been a board which ran along the whole length, serving as passage for the rowers to and from their seats. It was also utilized as a resting place for the mast and sake when not in use. The term now denotes a place of exit or entrance from or to a vessel, generally from the shore, by means of a long plank or platform .-Chambers' Journal.
