oratery Harker Says It Will be the Best in the State Whether the Board of Agriculture Breaks Faith with the People Or

W. B. Harker, of Maxton, secretary of the Border Exposition of the Carolinas, is in the city. Referring to the report in the Raleigh correspondence of the Messenger that the Executive Comnittee of the Board of Agriculture met last Tuesday and decided that they could not make an exhibit at the Maxton Fair, he says: The Executive Committee did not meet. Col. Green, chairman, did go to Raleigh and consult with Secretary Bruner, who has been opposed to making the exhibit from the street, and has exerted himself in throwing obstacles in

Mr. Harker says that the Executive Committee, composed of Col. W. F. Green, Capt. Capeheart and Hon. J. F. Payne, met in August and ordered the secretary to make the exhibit, if the dates did not conflict with the State Fair, thinking that the museum ought to be kept intact at a time when an unusual number of visitors were in the city. There is no conflict in dates, and the only question is one of time to pack. With a willing secretary, or one who preferred the promise of the Board, who have honored him, and the interest of the people, above his own ease, this question would not have been raised. No meeting of the Executive Committee has since been held to reconsider their action in ordering the exhibit, and as the Secretary of the Border Exposition has advertised the exhibit in good faith, as well as been put to trouble and expense

State cannot afford to trifle with their close their museum for all time. It should be understood that the Border Exposition was to pay all expenses of the exhibit, which they were willing to do, believing that it would stimulate the State pride of thousands of our people to see the State's resources in minature, thousands who will never see it in Raleigh. But whether the Board of Agriculture breaks it solemn promise or not the Maxton Fair will excel anse special trains will run from Wilmington, and low rates prevail, large crowds are expected from this city.

THE GIBBONS-WALCOTT FIGHT. Walcott a Terrific Hitter-Gibbons No

Match for Him-Full Description of the The New York Herald gives the folowing detailed account of the recent fight between Austin Gibbons and Joe Walcott at Coney Island: The event of the evening introduced

Austin Gibbons and "Joe" Walcott, of Boston. The Jerseyman was seconded by Richard and Jim Gibbons, "Johnny" Kerwin and John Norton, of Patterson, and "Con" Riordan, of California, Walcott's interests were cared for by "Tom" O Rourke, of New York, and "Jack" Fogarty, of Philadelphia. His timer was Jack Bradley, of Providence. "Honest John" Kelly held the watch for the club. Joe Walcott was the first to enter the ring. Black as an ace of spades, he sat in his corner and showed his ivories, without thought that he might have them knocked out. Gibbons was some time in taking his corner. He was given cheer after cheer, and was evidently the favorite in the hearts of the crowd, though the majority of the sports had their money on the black

Jim Gibbons and Tom O'Rourke had quite a long wrangle. O'Rourke wanted the man having the best of the bout at the end of ten rounds, or in case of interference on the part of the authorities, to be declared the winner. Gibbons wanted a draw if the police interfered. Gibbons finally gave way and the battle proceeded.

LIVELY FROM THE BEGINNING. . As the men stepped to the centre after shaking hands it was seen that Gibbons was at least a head higher than Walcott. After sparring carefully Gibbons led and caught Walcott hard in the stomach, and got in a return one on the eye that nearly closed it. He caught the colored man two terrible blows with the left in the stomach. The men then came together in a mixup, the fighting being in the white man's favor. Then the colored man led and caught Gibbons with his left. Just before the gong sounded Gibbons caught Walcott with the left on the stomach and cross countered with his right. The round was very even, but slightly in Gibbons' favor.

GIBBONS NEARLY DONE FOR. In the second round Walcott was the aggressor, landing hard with his left on the body. Flushed by his success, Walcott tried to repeat the feat, but failed. and Austin landed heavily with his right on the jaw. A sharp exchange at close quarters followed, both men doing effective execution. The colored man tainly the representatives of a great changed his tactics, trying for the Gibbons backing and laughing at Walcott's inability to hit above the chest. They soon got together again, and Gibbons, in attempting to plant a swinging right hand blow on the jaw, slipped and fell heavily. He jumped up quickly and, catching the colored boy off his guard, landed heavily on the jaw, knocking Walcott against the rope. Gibbons followed this up with a left band jab on the body and a right swing on the neck. He tried the mark, and Walcott landed a terrific right hand blow over the Jerseyman's heart, almost doubling Gibbons up. This blow really settled Gibbon's chances. He returned to his corner in a very weak condition. Walcott, on the other hand, was as fresh as when he started, and Gibbons' blows did not seem to have had any effect on him. THE GONG SAVES THE JERSEYMAN, The men went at it with the greatest eagerness in the third round, Gibbons led with his left, catching Walcott with terrific force on the face. Walcott returned the compliment with a left on the iaw. Gibbons then landed twide on the mouth. In close exchanges Gibbons got in three lefts in rapid succession on Walcott's face and body. The white man then uppercut his opponent, but it seemed to be impossible to hurt him. Walcott woke up and hit Gibbons two very swift and hard ones in the face The Paterson man responded with quick left hands for the He continued the work with two in the stomach, but went down from a cyclonic drive on the nose. The gong saved him, for Walcott had changed his actics and was doing all the work. In the fourth round Gibbons tried hard to give his opponent the impression that he still considered his chances good, and he smiled faintly. It was the smile of despair, and not one of confidence. Walcott knew it. The Bostonian toed the mark smiling and confident. He knew he had his work all but completed. A SETTLER ON THE JAW.

Gibbons was the first to lead, and sent his left across lightly on the colored man's face. For his pains the Jerseyman received a hard left hander on the body that staggered him. The Jerseyman again tried for the body, but fell short, and Walcott planted a swinging right hander on Gibbons' neck. Gibbons clinched to avoid the cruel blows of his adversary. The referee had just separated the men when Walcott walked up to his man and feinted with his left. Gibbons, thinking that the blow was intended for the body, dropped his hands to throw it off, leaving his jaw unprotected. That was exactly what the colored gladiator wanted. Quick as a flash he sent his powerful right across. It landed squarely on Gibbons jaw, and the Jerseyman shook convulsively for a moment and then fell like a log on the floor of the ring. He was beaten and out. He was not counted, however, for the referee did not wish to decide it a knock out. So when Iim Gibbons jumped into the ring to assist his brother Eckhardt did not interfere. Jim carried his brother to his corner, and after a good deal of rubbing Austin recovered. The referee, of course, declared Walcott the winner.

Walcott demonstrated that he is not only a great hitter, but a very clever fighter. The general opinion of the sports was that he can beat any man in
