The Morning Star.

IS IT TRUE?

It is true that love lies on the door
When poverty strikes on the window
It is true that the heart of a woman
Cares for luxuries and nothing more!

MANDY.

Eph Parks and his family lived in that part of Livingston county where the farms are red and gully washed, where the cornstalks are thin and sickly looking and burn yellow in the sun almost as soon as they are green.

He was strong and rugged, this sturdy farmer, with his big, bony hands and not brown, lean cheeks, and as he stood in the burning August sun, striking vigorously his hands against his forehead, his eyes were full of a striking illustration of those people who toil throughout their lives with little thought of the rest of the world or its pleasures.

A tall, angular woman of perhaps 40, though she looked much younger, came to the door. Her hair was soiled and torn. A pair of Eph's boots with great patches of rawhide and with the heels run over peeped out from under her rickety up and down shoes.

"You, that's him over there in the field," answered the woman. "The stranger dismounted, tied the bridle rein to the rail fence and started across the field toward Eph. The children instinctively clustered around their mother and fussed unconsciously at her dress. She smiled them right and left impulsively. She was watching the stranger. The man finally reached Eph, and the two had a parley for several minutes.

"Don't you know me?" asked the woman. "I'm your mother-in-law, Eph. Eph's parents and his wife and children were all standing close together when the pair reached the house.

"Mandy, this 'ere's a gov'nment constabler, and he's here to take you to jail for makin' them dollars. 'Twan't no harm no power, let's give 'em a church member yet."

"How long has he been a failure, She-You must have had and wasted some opportunity.

"Yes," she murmured, "that there's Jim Dobson's work. He stole on Eph. She shook her head several times, looked down the road once again and then she turned back to the constable. She prepared the scanty meal without a word. There was a strange silence in the house, as if a corpse were near. The children were put to bed, and soon the old man and old woman followed. Then Mandy pulled her stool over to the open window and looked out into the night. She placed her elbows on the sill and rested her chin in her hands. The moon came creeping up from behind a distant hill and shed its soft light over the farm. Still Mandy gazed out into the night.

HOW TO TREAT A BABY.

A Great Many Mothers Are Ignorant of Best Methods.

Don't put a weak, helpless baby to bed between two grown people, for if it is not crushed to death the adults will absorb its vitality and leave it pale and lifeless. Don't let it sleep with its mouth open. Place it on its side, smooth out the pillowcase, and sleep will be longer and sweeter. Snoring is a bad habit, for which mothers are entirely to blame. Snore the people sleep on their backs when a baby. This invariably brings colds and throat trouble.

Keep the baby's bib dry if you have to make 60 changes an hour. Give him not a scrap of meat before his third birthday. Don't let him kiss his friends. Keep the sun out of his face and his head above the clothes.

Never put a baby hard nor trot it violently, bringing the heel down with force. Better not to walk with a baby at all.

Never toss or jump it about or make loud noises as an amusement. Never give it an empty feeding bottle to suck anything in its place. Do not unnecessarily put the baby to bed. Never try to make a baby eat by first putting the spoon in your own mouth.

Cover the bottom of a bottle with water about two inches in depth. Add 8 teaspoonfuls of a saturated solution of carbolic acid and the same quantity of oil of eucalyptus. When nearly at the boiling point, add a few drops of the essential oil of eucalyptus. This will be found excellent in the convulsive cough of the disease.

Antisepsis is a specific for the disease. One stick of camphor should be given for each month and 1/2 grain of each year of the child, given three times daily.

How to Make a Dress Model. Take an old waist that fits to perfection and which buttons down the front. Button it, then sew the bottom all right and cut the buttons off. Then take a piece of cardboard the size of the neck and sew it in as a cover, and upon this raise a plimoushin by means of rags and sawdust. The sleeves cut at the elbow and tightly pack with sawdust. This must be allowed to settle for two days, and then again punch and pound until every crevice is rammed tight. Then another piece of cardboard and the same process of rags and sawdust is used in and all needed to do is to place the model on the table, put on a pair of corsets and fit the material over them.

How to Select a Husband. For a man's birth look to his linen and finger nails and observe the infections of his voice. For his tastes study the menu card of his restaurant, and his habits, if any. For his propensities walk round and look carefully at the back of his head, and remember, never marry a man who has a mole on his forehead.

How to Wash Underwear. Never wash underwear in the same suds which have served for white things. Wash them in cold water, and if you have a good water supply, wash them in a tub of warm water and soak the things in it for 15 minutes. Then wash rapidly through a good white soap, rubbing as lightly as possible. It should be soiled with a handful of powdered borax in a pall of warm water and soak the things in it for 15 minutes. THE COMEDIAN.

Alan Dale's novel, "My Footlight Husband," has been dramatized.

Miss Johnstone Bennett has returned from Europe, engaged to marry a captain in the French army.

Edwin Milton Royle is writing the libretto and Lucius Henderson is composing the music of a new opera.

The success of Mr. J. M. Barrie's "Professor's Love Story" at the Comedy theatre, London, is so great that extra stalls have been added.

Albert F. Southard has had Pauline Hall and her husband for $1,412, which he alleges is due him for salary and expenses as business manager last season.

The "S. R." signs will be of no use in New York theaters, as they are the reason that the fire department will not allow the presence of "standers" heretofore.
